County building department cuts hours

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Faced with a languishing housing market and near stagnant construction, the Charlevoix County Building and Safety Department finds itself making more fiscal cuts.

Beginning earlier this week, Nov. 1, building department head Ken Doty has his employees working nine hours per day, four days per week in a move which cuts just over $20,000 from his outgoing expenses — a move which came five months after the department went from its own ledger to the county's general fund due to a nearly $30,000 deficit.

Doty

"Since January we've cut about $150,000 out of our budget," Doty said. "We continue on and doing our job just like always and hopefully things will pick up."

Doty said he has never seen construction so depressed. And, since a large portion of the building department's revenue comes from permits to build new homes, he said there does not seem to be any upturn in sight.

"We hope this is temporary," Doty said. "But we want to prepare for the worst now instead of waiting 'til the first of the year. This will allow staff to keep their benefits and look for a part-time job, if there's one available."

A measure which Doty said would definitely help his department's situation would be to raise permit fees to their 2008 level. Current permits are calculated at 2006's price of $88 per square foot; Doty wants the fee increased to the current national standard of $96 per square foot.

Doty said he understands the concerns of builders and those considering building a new home when it comes to increased fees, but added, "I am tasked with doing the best job I'm allowed to do with what's available."

Though unlikely in the near future because county commissioners have not been eager to raise fees, a permit on a 120,000 square foot house would increase from $591 to $638.

District Three Charlevoix County Commissioner Ron Reinhardt refuses to put more burden on the taxpayers.

"To me, he just wants to keep everybody working, and there are too many people being laid off right now," Reinhardt said. "We've made it so he can go down to four days a week and we'll try that for awhile. If that don't work, we've got a couple people, in my opinion, that could be laid off for awhile 'til spring if we have to."

He added, "I'm not for raising fees, I can guarantee you. It's public money — we've got to guard it."

Doty understands the plight of the contractor and homeowner, but said he cannot operate in a deficit.

"So we continue to make cuts: we didn't use our part-time plan reviewer; we did not rehire a support staff person who left a year-and-a half ago; two inspectors were laid off earlier this year."

He added, "Things will pick up, they always do. Do I know when things will get better? No."

Doty will meet with commissioners at the end of January to determine whether the cuts are enough to keep the department solvent and whether construction has increased enough by then to adequately fund Doty's operation.

The building department currently employs seven full-time workers including Doty.

Discussion series begins with girls in juvenile court system

The Girls Juvenile Court Program was the topic of the first program in the Women's Issue Discussion Series sponsored by the Hestia Women's Giving Circle. Lisa Muncio of the Emmet and Charlevoix County Juvenile Court, Kara Copeland from Lakeview Academy, and two young women from the program were the speakers.

Vice-President Ellen Breining welcomed the members and guests and thanked the speakers. "You are here tonight because you value women and girls in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties."

Breining described the Giving Circle, which started in 2006 and now has 45 members. Earlier this year, the group awarded nearly $42,000 in support and seed money to 7 local programs that serve women and girls. Among the programs funded was the Court Program, as well as, Girls on the Run, Planned Parenthood, Community Free Clinic: WRC – Employment Services, WRC Children's Learning Center; and Cross Village Rug Works.

These programs will be featured over the next several months in a Women's Issues Discussion Series, which began with a program on the Girls Court Program.

Muncio explained how youth get into the Juvenile Court system. Girls are usually involved in substance abuse or are considered incorrigible. "More and more, they are involved in assaultive offenses."

There are typically about 100 youth in the court system, half of whom are girls.

Ten years ago, girls made up about 10 percent of the case load of the court, but now they are about 50 percent.

In most cases, these female offenders were previously victims themselves, usually of assault. This often leads to problems at home, truancy, and substance ahuse.

The court staff has recognized that adolescent girls and boys need very different programs. The Court's Girl's Program was developed to help meet the unique needs of girl offenders. Girls specifically need and want to talk, so many opportunities are built in for them to talk with trusted adults including staff from the Women's Resource Center, Planned Parenthood, MSU Extension and other local agencies, as well as court staff.

Copeland described the court school, Lakeview Academy, which includes both hoys and girls. This alternative school helps youth in the court system keep up with their academics while providing them special support to stay out of further trouble.

Two students from the program also spoke, describing the paths that brought them into the court system and how the Girl's Program and Lakeview Academy have helped them.

"They give you the skills you need to move on," said one of the students. "I'm a changed person and I'm so happy."

One of the Hestia Giving Circle's goals is to educate our members and the public about the issues facing women and girls in our community. Future Discussion Series programs will focus on education, employment, job training, and health and feature the other programs funded by Hestia this year.

The Hestia Giving Circle currently has 38 memberships which include 47 women, and the group is actively seeking new memhers.

The annual membership fee is $1,000 and all of the funds received are distributed directly to local organizations serving women and girls. The funds are held as a donor-advised fund of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, which assists in the grant review and funds distribution.

For more information about the Giving Circle or the program, contact Martha Lancaster, Hestia Secretary, at (231) 526-2326 or Leah Cole at Planned Parenthood 347-3710 ext. 15.

MDOT updates highway bridge information

State Transportation Director Kirk T. Steudle today announced that the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) has again updated information on the MDOT Web site at www.michigan.gov/highwaybridgereport about the safety of 4,398 state highway bridges.

This is the fourth time MDOT has made bridge safety information available on the Web. State bridges can be downloaded by route number and/or county, and are current as of Oct. 1, 2008. Only highway bridges greater than 20 feet in length are included. Ratings for pedestrian and locally- owned bridges are not included. MDOT is making updates on the Web four times a year.

"By releasing the latest bridge inspection report, MDOT is continuing its commitment to be open and transparent with this information. Citizens can be assured that Michigan's bridges are safe, carefully inspected and well maintained," said Steudle. "We are using our limited resources to maintain the state highway bridge network to the best of our ability. When we need to take action, we will."

National Bridge Inspection Standards require MDOT to inspect bridges every two years. The Mackinac, International, and Blue Water bridges are inspected annually, exceeding federal requirements. These three bridges are managed by bridge authorities, and their ratings are not included in the list MDOT has posted to the Web.

Of the 4,398 bridges on the Oct. 1, 2008 report, 510 have been classified with the engineering term of "structurally deficient," meaning they may require repair, modernizing or replacement at some time in the future; 921 bridges are classified as "functionally obsolete" or outdated. The department is reporting 27 fewer structurally deficient bridges and 16 more functionally obsolete bridges in October than it did in June, the third time it put bridge inspection information online.

Charlevoix schools in tech' showcase

Charlevoix Elementary School was chosen to participate among 40 Michigan schools in the eighth annual AT&T/MACUL student technology showcase.

An Algebra class uses the "America's Got Talent" hit TV show to make the creation of mathematical charts and graphs come alive.

Second-graders communicate on a regular basis with e-pals in the state of Georgia.

Fifth and sixth graders learn about the engineering process by working in teams to build an underwater robot. And third graders create a slide show to demonstrate an appreciation for other cultures, customs and traditions.

These are among 40 amazing, highly-visual and successful student technology demonstrations to be displayed at the eighth annual AT&T/MACUL Student Technology Showcase from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 12 at the State Capitol building in Lansing. Following an opening ceremony at 9:15 a.m., there will be three separate demonstration sessions, from 9:30 to 11 a.m., 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., and 1:30 to 3 p.m.

Presented by the Michigan Association for Computer Users in Learning (MACUL) and supported by AT&T, the Showcase provides a venue for student groups to set up computers and displays to show Michigan state legislators how technology is being used in the classroom to facilitate learning.

The projects, which cover a wide variety of learning areas including science, mathematics, social studies and language arts, will feature student TV news shows, movie-making, computer-controlled industrial-like automation, Internet-driven and handheld computing educational projects and advanced graphics designs.

Ric Wiltse, MACUL executive director, says the projects clearly show how technology is impacting student learning.

"Students learn more quickly and with greater retention when they have access to technology," he stated. "And, the value of the Showcase goes beyond student teams visiting the State Capitol and meeting the legislators from their districts. Students and teachers also learn and receive inspiration from each other."

Gail Torreano, president of AT&T Michigan, explains the reason for AT&T's support: "Technology is such a powerful tool for enhancing education and encouraging lifelong learning. Through our collective efforts, we can make a real difference as youth transition from the classroom to the workplace."

MACUL is an organization dedicated to bringing educators from all levels together to share their knowledge and concerns regarding educational uses of computers and technology. For further information about the event, and a complete list of participating schools and projects, visit the MACUL Web site at www.macul.org.

Natural selection of politics

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

As we attempt to determine who would be the best to fill a particular public office we often subject the candidates to an extremely rigorous set of processes.

We elect to national office people who have leaped an impressive set of hurdles; primary campaigns, lengthy fund-raising efforts and grueling election campaigns.

A sort of election goes on in the natural world as well. It is usually called selection rather than election, but there are characteristics in common.

Like election, selection is a winnowing process which begins with many potential candidates for survival and finishes with an exceedingly small set of successful survivors.

Like election, selection is a grueling process that asks the best of the candidates and is merciless in its decision about who wins.

For a million maple seeds produced by a forest tree, probably only a few thousand will ever germinate, and of those few thousand there may be ten that survive their first year. Some years ago we noticed the abundance of maple seeds that germinated in our law every spring and decided to leave a small corner of the yard unmowed to see just how well they would do if we didn't cut their heads off each springs.

Out of what were literally hundreds of seedlings in the first year, only 12 survived to be a foot tall.

That small corner of the yard certainly hasn't room for more than a single tree of any size, so if left to fend for themselves, all but one of those small trees will eventually be choked out by its fastest growing or widest spreading sibling.

Even the weeds that plague our lives are involved in that same struggle for space and that same process of selection.

Giant ragweed usually gets stared in agricultural fields or waste spaces. By summer's end it may be a plant eight or nine feet tall. It starts the growing season as a carpet of seedlings. There can be as many as 2000 plants per square yard when they are a few inches tall.

By midsummer there may be only 200 left in that same space, and by the end of the growing season only 50 will reach maturity and produce seed for next year's crop.

The other 1950 didn't grow quite fast enough to hold the space they began in and as the plants increased in size, the slightly slower ones were shaded and crowded out of existence.

No wonder weeds grow so fast.

One out of thousands or even millions is the usual selection rate for plants as they grow from seed to maturity.

The longer lived and larger plants like trees have the most impressive selection statistics.

An oak tree may live for three centuries and produce bushels of acorns each year for most of that time.

On the average only a single one of those acorns will survive to replace the parent tree.

If we assume conservatively that a large oak produces 4,000 acorns per year, that the single survivor is one very elect oak; the best or luckiest of 1,200,000.

All that we see around us when we look at the pants that survive without our help in the natural world are the selected few, the elect, the one in a million.

We should be so lucky with politicians.

This week's poll question:

Take time to support our veterans on Nov. 11

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

The old man used to say there is no good war, only necessary war.

One could argue for or against his premise, but that's hardly the point of what I'm doing today.

I'd rather stick to the topic of Veterans Day and why it is so important to show our appreciation to those who served and those future veterans who are serving or getting ready to serve—even if you do not support the war

Hawk or pacifist, Republican or Democrat, we have one line of defense should this country be attacked, and that is the United States military with its various branches.

Contrary to popular belief, you can be against the war while simultaneously supporting the troops. I've for the most part remained silent on this minor point, but have grown tired of the rabid super patriots who would like to see the American military used to destroy every foreign country, which dares exercise its sovereignty, merely out of their own morbid xenophobia.

The funny—perhaps sad is the better term—part of this is how many of these super patriots do not have a proverbial dog in the fight.

Of course, the only thing worse than the super patriot is the person who has a loved one in the military and believes that, by proxy, this makes them an expert on foreign policy.

I do not tell you about my little brother because I expect you to care; He's not the only one putting his life on the line for his country and I use him to illustrate a point only.

Li'l John, one of six of us boys, is about three weeks away from the half-way point of his first tour in Iraq. He is in the advanced infantry which, for those of you like me who haven't been in the army, means he is on the front line.

He shoots, gets shot at, and complains that the mortars dropped around him each night because they keep him from sleeping.

He likes to joke about the enemy's lousy aim, but it makes me cringe.

We stay connected via e-mail and he tries to contact me every 10 days or so. When it gets to the two week mark I start to get nervous, but so far he's responded to all my letters.

So, how do I honor the veterans in my family even though I oppose this current skirmish?

First off, we don't talk politics; which is really easy for us because we'd rather be making fun of our other brothers or commenting on some awful horror movie we rented.

I don't know who Li'l John's voting for, and he doesn't know who I'm voting for.

I send him care packages filled with candy, magazines and American cigarettes, because he gets lonely so far from home and it reminds him that there is a world outside the great sandbox. And, if you've ever smoked middle-eastern tobacco, you'd know it has a taste something like I imagine you'd get from burning old gym socks and skunk weed.

He is grateful for the support, and I am grateful knowing there is an army of strong, young men ready to defend my out of shape behind should some very bad people decide to attack my country.

Maybe it's trite—and you may ask "who is Gohs to do the urging?"—but I hope at least some of you take a few moments to visit with the veterans in your family before, during or after this Tuesday, Nov. 11.

Bake some cookies for the grandfather who served in World War II; call that uncle who served in Vietnam and say thank-you or give a few bucks to a vet who's down on his luck.

Per his request, I'm supporting my soldier at the end of this month by making him all the homemade pizza he can eat, all the pina coladas he can drink, and —Udza B'Ga—enough caramel apple pie to put him into a diabetic coma.

You can observe Veterans Day in Veterans Park in Charlevoix and thank some veterans in person at 11 a.m., Nov. 11. There will be a short ceremony.

RAINBOW SHOPPE VOLUNTEER LUNCHEON

On Oct. 24, the Rainbow Shoppe of Charlevoix hosted their annual volunteers appreciation luncheon.

Some 120 men, ladies, and pastors from the local churches enjoyed the tasty repast, as well as the entertainment by the Charlevoix Men's Chorus.

The president of the Board of Directors, Karen Campbell, thanked the volunteers for being so dedicated and loyal in their attendance on their designated work days even at times of inclement weather. Mrs. Campbell also extended compliments to the volunteers that had given of their time since we first opened our doors in 1983 and to our new workers who have offered their services.

The president also stated that we now have 152 volunteers from ten of the churches in Charlevoix. Our purpose has always been to sell merchandise at nominal prices, and in turn, reach out financially to non-profit organizations and the needy. After 25 years in business, we have been able to extend to these recipients over $2 million.

We are so very thankful to the community for donating the merchandise, the patrons, and of course these super necessary volunteers for without them, we would not be able to open our doors.

Board Member

YOUR HELP IS NEEDED

These are tough times in Northern Michigan. Many of our neighbors are struggling to stay in their homes and to keep their families warm and fed. Northwest Michigan Community Action Agency offers foreclosure counseling, emergency utility assistance, homelessness prevention counseling and services, food programs, home repairs and Weatherization, Meals on Wheels, and educational programs to help struggling families regain self-sufficiency. But the demand is great and WE NEED YOUR HELP.

NMCAA is looking for volunteers to answer phone calls and help welcome and guide our neighbors in need to the help they are reaching out for. Free training will involve acquiring agency program knowledge to answer program question calls and make referrals. You will make use of your good listening and people skills. You will give out lots of information, and help fill out applications. If you like helping people and can volunteer with us 2-4 hours per week or more, this is the job for you! You will be a hero to many. Please have basic phone operating skills, basic computer and e-mail knowledge and a desire to work with the public.

To volunteer, please call 947-3780 and ask for Val Stone.

Val Stone

Castle Farms wins 'Beautiful' award

FILE PHOTO

Linda Mueller, owner of Castle Farms of Charlevoix was recently awarded the statewide Keep Michigan Beautiful Award.

The totally renovated Emmet County Fairgrounds in Petoskey and Linda Mueller, owner of Castle Farms in Charlevoix, won President Plaques for 2008 from the Keep Michigan Beautiful organization.

The awards were presented to Agnes Shaw, manager of the Emmet-Charlevoix Fair, and Mueller, by KMB Executive Director Bob Eldridge at the organization's annual awards ceremony, held at the Frankenmuth Inn Lodge in Frankenmuth on Friday, Oct. 17.

The President's Plaque is the highest of four awards given each year by Keep Michigan Beautiful, a volunteer organization made up of individuals and municipalities, businesses, foundations, local clubs/organizations, schools and places of worship.

The President's Plaque is given to an exceptional program, project or person who exemplifies the goals of KMB. The organization's other awards include the Michigan Plaque, the Distinguished Service Plaque and the Award of Merit.

Renovation of the Emmet County Fairgrounds was completed in 2005 with the dedication of the county's $1.4 million Community Center that features large open space, wooden ceiling trusses, a stone fireplace, superior acoustics and air conditioning. The dedication culminated a process that began almost two decades ago when the county board decided to continue the county's presence at the fairgrounds and not move elsewhere.

The KMB award cited Emmet County Controller Lyn Johnson and the county board of commissioners "for their belief in keeping public lands in public hands forever."

In use almost daily, the fairground hosts weddings, fund raisers, garden expos, antique shows, horse shows, indoor and outdoor concerts, and the annual fair in August. "The vision of the future has made the 'Gateway to Petoskey' a beautiful site for all to enjoy, " the award said.

The award to Mueller described Castle Farms as a "French Renaissance style castle with stone walls and towers, fragrant gardens and romantic courtyards. It is a taste of European charm right here in Michigan. Castle Farms is now a wonderful place to enjoy magnificent buildings and gardens, play giant chess, find your way through a hedge maze, watch model trains, feed trout in a pond, and explore the enchanted forest. Built as a dairy farm in 1918, the castle went through numerous changes over the years, from an art studio and gallery, a rock concert venue and eventually to an empty ruin."

Now restored by the Muellers to its former beauty, Castle Farms is open for special events and daily tours.

ANNIVERSARY

John M. Stebe and Catherine Kiebel were married in Petoskey on Nov. 8, 1958.

They celebrated their 50th anniversary by going on an Alaskan cruise in September.

Mr. Stebe was a local contractor and retired in 2001; Mrs. Stebe worked at Char-EM ISD, and retired in 1994.

She was also a homemaker.

Jack and Catie are active members of the Buckley Old Engine Club, Flywheelers and were active members in the Grange, Sports boosters, Band boosters and continually help out where needed if it involves their grandchildren and their events.

They have three children. Gary (Kelly) Stebe, Rob (Sandy), and Scott (Laura) all of Charlevoix. They are devoted grandparents to their six grandchildren, two step-grandchildren, and one great-grandchild and two step-great grandchildren.

Jack and Catie remain very active; Jack is seasonally employed by Mt. McSauba during the winter.

They love to travel in their motor home and especially enjoy the Amish country.

A family celebration dinner will be held on November 8 hosted by their children will be take place on November 8 at the home of Scott and Laura Stebe.

Barns of Old Mission Peninsula

Old Mission Peninsula is cherished by residents and tourists alike. Barns of Old Mission Peninsula, by Evolyn Johnson, is a documentation of traditional barns and local stories and experiences of the peninsula. Johnson will present slides of the barns and speaking about her experiences researching the book at 7 p.m., Nov. 18 at Charlevoix Public Library. She has recorded a great deal of the history of Old Mission Peninsula through its barns. "Interviewing barn owners and photographing their barns was the equivalent of photographing life," she said. "I wanted others to know that a part of who we are today comes from someone whose roots are firmly planted on farmland where they always had a barn." The photos and stories from Barns of Old Mission Peninsula highlight facts and anecdotes about just what life was like on the farm. OBITUARIES

Rex Bruce Davis: Feb. 26, 1942 - Oct. 28, 2008

Rex Bruce "Rick" Davis, 66, of Charlevoix, died Tuesday, Oct. 28, 2008, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The funeral was 11 a.m., Friday, Oct. 31, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

The Reverend Michael Arp of the Family of Faith Ministries in Charlevoix officiated.

Burial was in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Rick was born Feb. 26, 1942, in Charlevoix to Rex and Lucille (Thompson) Davis.

On June 23, 1962, he married Jean Curtis in Charlevoix.

Rick worked for DME for 28 years, and then worked as a boat refinisher for Bellinger Marine and then Bergmann Marine, retiring in 2004.

He operated Rick's Charter Service as a great lakes charter fisherman for several years piloting the "Jeannie Sea."

Rick was a volunteer fireman for the City of Charlevoix, and a long-time member of the Charlevoix Rod & Gun Club, and had served on the Rod & Gun Club Board of Directors.

His favorite pastimes include spending time with friends in his garage, shooting sporting clays, and deer hunting.

He is survived by his wife Jean; son, Scott (Susan) Davis of Harrison Township.; daughter, Michelle "Shelly" Stevens and her special friend Jody Putnan of Charlevoix; grandchildren Brandon Stevens (Rick's special shooting partner), Bailee Stevens (his little angel), James "Jimmy" and Jeffrey Davis (his pier fishing buddies); sister Kay (Tom) Webster of Petoskey; mother-in-law Ruby Curtis, and sister-in-law Linda Ostling both of Charlevoix; nieces and nephews Kimberly (Jim) Atkinson, Dennis Curtis, Shannon Ayers, Mat (Chris) Webster.

Rick's parents: father-in-law Eugene; brother-in-law Gene Ostling; brother and sister-in-law Jack and Katie Curtis preceded him in death.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Area Hospital or to the Charlevoix Rod & Gun Club.

Visitation was from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Teresa Marie Seese: passed away on Oct. 29, 2008

Teresa Seese, 33, of Charlevoix passed away Oct. 29 at Carilion Roanoke Memorial Hospital in Roanoke, Va.

Her greatest loves were her two sons Prestyn, 8, and Hayden, 7.

She enjoyed cooking, classical music, reading and writing poetry.

Teresa is survived by her two sons Prestyn Seese and Hayden Prevo; her mother Linda Hall and father Edward Germain; grandmother Elaine Avery; brother Greg Seese Jr.; two sisters, Karen (Tim) Fraley, and Jennifer Oliver, all of Charlevoix. She is further survived by many nieces, nephews, aunts, uncles, and cousins.

Services will be held for the immediate family at a later date.

A benefit fund has been established for her boys, Prestyn Seese and Hayden Prevo, in c/o Karen Fraley at Charlevoix State Bank.

Flu shots offered this Thursday

The First Thursday Health Screening takes place from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 6, at the Community Health Education Center, located across the parking lot from the hospital's main entrance.

The $20 screening provides a place where healthcare professionals measure participants' height, weight, body composition, good and total cholesterol levels, blood sugar and blood pressure during 15-minute screenings. Based on the same-day results, participants receive follow-up recommendations.

In addition to the routine screenings, $25 flu shots will be offered by VitalCare from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. VitalCare will directly bill Medicare/Medicaid for those who qualify.

Registration is not required. For more information, contact HealthAccess at (800) 248-6777.

Northern Michigan Regional Hospital is a 243-bed, regional referral center located in Petoskey, serving residents in 22 counties across northern lower Michigan and the eastern part of the Upper Peninsula.

A medical staff of nearly 200 physicians represents nearly all medical and surgical specialties, enabling full-service care with an emphasis on heart, cancer, orthopedics and neuroscience services. Additional information can be found at northernhealth.org.

Memories of a veteran

Veterans Day services are 11 a.m., Nov. 11 in Charlevoix's Veterans Park. A dinner for veterans is 6 p.m. at the VFW hall on US 31 in Charlevoix.

ALICE PERRAULT

Charlie Butcher is an army air force veteran from World War II.

Butcher was born in August of 1927. He enlisted in 1944, and served for eight years. He was on active duty for 28 months.

"I was a flight engineer and a copilot. I was given an air plane and a crew. We carried cargo, VIP, and troops. We did a lot of search missions for down planes," Butcher said.

After the war, Butcher graduated from the University of Michigan and got his Bachelor of Science degree in engineering.

Since then, he worked for different engineering corporations, and was eventually sent to corporate offices in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

"I was the chief engineer in investoral groups," Butcher said.

In 1981, Butcher left corporate offices, and became a private consultant.

His favorite part was testifying.

"I was in expert witness programs. I drew back on all the knowledge and education I had for product liability," Butcher said.

Butcher is now retired, and has two grown children, Charles III, and Kathryn. He also has four grandchildren. Like her father, his daughter has also gone into mechanical engineering.

Butcher has not always lived in Charlevoix, as his jobs required him to move from time to time.

"I used to vacation up here with my kids, and I decided that one day I was going to live here, so here I am," he said.

Now that he is retired, Butcher spends his spare time working with different veteran organizations. Butcher is the past commander of the American Legion Post, and the Veterans Foreign Wars. He also currently works with the Marine Core League.

"Right now we are working on the toys for tots programs. I enjoy working with these programs, and I like working with the kids. I enjoy helping out," Butcher said.

Before he retired, Butcher spent time fishing, and hunting.

"I love the north country. I always have, ever since I was a boy," he said.

Being a veteran and celebrating Veterans Day means a lot to Butcher.

He said, "Being a vet is a very special feeling. There is a type of pride that you have. It's a feeling of being a part of something that is much bigger than yourself. Being a vet is very special. It was an honor to serve."

One memory that stands out in butcher's mind is getting lost over Switzerland.

"We got lost flying from Italy to Germany in the Alps Mountains," he said. "We were lost for an hour—It was a little dicey."

Butcher also remembers traveling all over seas to different bases.

"I was in England, France, Germany and Italy. Europe was so badly torn up during that time," He said.

"When I see the kids in schools, I tell them there is nothing glamorous about war. It isn't about uniforms and flags. It's about serving, and putting your life at risk. Sometimes war is forced on us, and we have to just stand up and fight," Butcher added.

Butcher never doubted his decision to enter the war.

"You have pride as a soldier. You feel apprehension and also comradeship," he said. "The hardest part is the loss of people, but I would do it over."

If he could give one piece of advice, Butcher would tell soldiers today to keep their collective heads down.

"You're likely to get hurt if you put your head up. But, I am very proud of our volunteer military. I believe in enlistment and volunteering," Butcher said. "A military career is a fine career. There are many different things you can do."

Local E coli outbreak

not related to other Michigan cases

Laboratory results show the strain of the E coli virus that infected several individuals from the local health district definitely was not related to any other cases in the state, including the outbreak at Michigan State University.

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan investigated five cases of E coli infection, four from Emmet County, and one from Antrim County.

Based on results of tests performed at the Michigan Department of Community Health State Laboratory in Lansing, public health officials have concluded the Emmet County cases are not related to the Antrim County case or to outbreaks down state.

The source of the Emmet County outbreak is unknown at this time.

Michigan Department of Community Health and U.S. Centers for Disease Control (CDC) & Prevention is investigating a possible link between the Antrim and Emmet counties' cases with other E coli cases around the nation involving the same strain.

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan is mandated by the Michigan Public Health Code to promote wellness, prevent disease, provide quality health care, address health problems of vulnerable populations, and protect the environment for the residents and visitors of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego counties. For additional information about E coli infection and other food-borne illnesses, visit www.cdc.gov.

Slicker roads this winter

STEVE ZUCKER
NEWS-REVIEW WRITER

At Friday's Emmet County Road Commission meeting, engineer-manager Brian Gutowski said motorists should expect to see less pavement — even on state highways — at times this winter thanks to efforts both at the state and county levels to save money on salt and overtime costs.

Gutowski said Michigan Department of Transportation officials have changed the standards for the condition at which they want some state highways maintained on overtime in the winter from cleared down to bare pavement in both travel lanes to one travel lane down the center of the road (half of a travel lane in each direction.)

Those changes will apply to M-119 and M-68 in Emmet County and M-75, M-66, and M-32 in Charlevoix County.

Gutowski said he plans to institute similar guidelines for many of the county's roads as well. He hopes with the changes in salt application guidelines and a system that pre-wets the salt with a chloride solution, he can save 20 percent on the road commission's salt usage this winter. That would save about $60,000.

"People are going to have to realize that the roads won't be in as good of shape at times," Gutowski said.

In Charlevoix County, road commission manager Pat Harmon said his crews are hoping for a 10 percent reduction in overall salt usage on county roads. He noted that even though his crews will be limited to the same constraints for road maintenance on state highways as in Emmet County, he expects sections of M-75 will still see some shoulder plowing during overtime hours.

"We have a unique situation here because our garage is located right on M-75," Harmon said. "If we have a truck driving out to (U.S.) 131 on a weekend and there's six inches of snow along M-75, (the driver) isn't just going to drive past it."

Harmon said he hopes to see salt usage savings on the county by some more minor adjustments to the way and times of the road commission applies salt to the roads.

Most road commissions do salting and plowing on state highways in their respective counties under a contract with the state. The state then reimburses the road commission at a set rate for its costs to salt and plow those roads. The state will not reimburse road commissions for work done in excess of the maintenance standards it sets out.

Earlier this fall Charlevoix County's Harmon said crews will plow county roads on weekends if needed. Last year Charlevoix experimented with a policy of not plowing secondary roads on weekends, but discontinued the practice in response to public outcry when an early-season weekend snow storm left many residents stranded.

In Emmet County, Gutowski said he plans to continue with a program started last winter under which the road commission used private contractors to plow 28 miles of subdivision roads.

Dictionary project

COURTESY PHOTO

Third-graders around Charlevoix County have the chance to be better spellers and have better vocabularies thanks to a gift from the Barnard Grange. It's called the "Dictionary Project" and more than 4.9 million children nationwide have received a dictionary. Charlevoix, Ellsworth, St. Mary's, Ebenezer Christian, and Northwest Academy schools recently benefited from this program. Pictured (from right) are Randy Cebulski from the Barnard Grange presenting Colin Davis with his dictionary.

Michigan film discussion to promote movie industry

According to the West Michigan Film Video Alliance, film producers from all over the United States are looking to Michigan as a prime venue for their upcoming projects, thanks to 40 percent tax incentives introduced back in April. Securing the projects is just half the battle, however. The success or failure of this program lies within the communities of Michigan who must be able to provide goods and services, with an unparalleled level of expertise, teamwork and communication.

There is a 7 p.m., Nov. 5 meeting of a group of concerned individuals with ties to the film industry—known collectively as the Northern Michigan Film & Media Group—who will be hosting this informational discussion geared toward chambers of commerce, visitor bureaus, economic development organizations, businesses and individuals interested in learning more about the incentives and the potential it provides for Michigan.

The session will be held at Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant in Charlevoix. A social hour for networking will start at 5 p.m., with the formal round-table discussion and Q&A session starting at 7 p.m.

Dianna Stampfler, President of Promote Michigan and a Board member of the West Michigan Film Video Alliance, will be the moderator for the evening's discussion.

"Since the incentives were introduced, everyone is trying to capture a piece of the action and become an expert in the industry," said Stampfler. "It's important that Michigan's businesses, organizations and communities work together to make this industry a viable part of our state's future economic foundation. I invite anyone who is passionate that Michigan's future and our growing film industry to attend this session to learn more."

Some California industry executives have been invited to participate in the session, including George Colburn a historian and filmmaker who has offices in Petoskey, New Mexico and Washington DC. Colburn will be a featured panelist for the evening.

"It is critical that Northern Michigan start immediately to establish itself by organizing collaborative coalitions of communities, businesses and individuals to showcase their inventory of assets," Colburn said. "By working together, northern Michigan can soon earn a preferential position with the film industry, and everyone involved can profit from the designation."

Scout's project benefits area youth

COURTESY PHOTO

Brennen Stebe shows off several of the features he built for his Eagle Scout project over the last year. An avid snowboarder, Stebe created seven pieces for Mt. McSaube's new terrain park. The park will include low flat boxes, long slender boxes, a straight rail, a rail with curves and there are even plans to eventually build a quarter pipe.

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Not only did 17-year-old Brennan Stebe exceed the number of hours of community service needed to finish his quest for the rank of Eagle Scout, he create something which could attract people from all over the region.

What was once an empty hill on the backside of Mt. McSauba will be transformed this winter into a full-fledged snowboarding park complete with rails, boxes and eventually a quarter pipe.

"I didn't want to come up with the typical eagle project like building benches or fixing up a park," Stebe said. "So, I built boxes and rails and features to hit on your snowboard and have fun grinding on."

He added, "I love snowboarding so much."

Snowboarders will find at least seven new features including two rails, two flat boxes and several long boxes, on the hill.

"I probably go, during the winter season, to some resort or ski hill five or six times a week," Stebe said. "No cities around here have what we (McSauba) have except Nub's Nob and Boyne Mountain, but I had somebody last winter try one of mine—he said mine are the best ones he's used."

Stebe began planning the terrain park back in January, 2007.

"I went to the city (Charlevoix) and got a grant for about $2,000 to order all the materials and then we began working on building them," said Stebe, who enlisted the help of nearly 20 people who each worked various hours during the project.

"To obtain Eagle Scout you have to earn 21 merit badges ... and do more than 100 hours of community service," he said. "We totaled 136 hours."

Stebe must now go before a committee for an interview before he will know if he will receive this most prestigious rank in scouting.

"I'm pretty nervous," he said. "I finished all my merit badges, and last Wednesday sent in all the paperwork to the Scenic Trails Council."

Stebe added, "Becoming an Eagle Scout's not an easy thing."

Difficulty or no, Stebe's efforts through organizing helping hands, securing monies and implementing his own sweat equity have ensured that snowboarders near and far will have the chance to do what they love come snowfall this year.

Stebe hopes to study architecture and possibly CAD designing in college and go west to do a little snowboarding following graduation from Charlevoix High School next spring.

"I've been in scouting for about eight years, and it's been really fund and I've learned a lot of leadership skills and how to do good in the community," he said.

Having a green Halloween

All-State Honors

Charlevoix senior Alex Buday also earned All-State honors by placing 28th in the Division III high school boys' cross country race Saturday at Michigan International Speedway.

Buday had to battle to finish 28th in the boys' race and garner All-State honors.

"He got knocked down at the mile and fell back to about 50th place," Charlevoix coach Ken Plude said. "Then he moved all the way up to 13th and he said when he got into the stadium (for the final three-quarters of a mile) his knee began to freeze up on him.

"Thankful that he made it, did get All-State, and it was a big PR (by 14 seconds) for him. It wasn't an easy chore. Everybody wanted those last few spots."

The Rayders, with four freshmen and a sophomore in the lineup, finished 14th with 382 points in the 28-team field. Shepherd won the team title with 117, followed by Hillsdale, 121; and Benzie Central, 157.

"Everybody PR'd except for two," Plude said, adding that he was very pleased with his team's finish in light of the fact that it was so young, and that it had to survive a rugged regional in order to simply make it to MIS. "Especially since we had to try to peak last week just to get to state. I was wondering if the freshmen boys would bounce back from that. They had a hard race, but they did really well. Hopefully the big-eye syndrome is over. They all want to go back and do something with it.

"We're freshman loaded. A good problem to have."

Tony Schafer of Grand Rapids West Catholic won in 15:23.8.

Sophomore Eric Buday, Alex's brother, placed 61st in 16:45.1, and the Rayders' next three runners, Erik Acharya, Andrew Plude and Vinny Von Lau, are freshmen. Acharya was 122nd in 17:22.8, Andrew Plude was 132nd in 17:29.4, and Von Lau was 187th in 18:10.6.

Acharya was fifth among freshmen in the field, while Plude was ninth.

Charlevoix junior Neil Salisbury was 191st in 18:15.9, and Alex Gooch, another freshman, was 207th in 18:45.6.

Volleyball tournament in Boyne

The Rayders, 34-13-14, defeated Kalkaska, 25-21, 25-24, and split with Cedarville, 18-25, 25-14; and Harbor Springs, 25-13, 24-25; then lost to Petoskey, 21-25, 15-25.

Also for Charlevoix, Shauna Spencley finished with 21 kills, 22 digs; Bobby Moulter had 10 kills; setter Jenna Way had 60 assists, 22 digs; Taylor Storm had 33 digs; and Lauren Mielke added 19 digs.

JV VOLLEYBALL

Rayders third

Charlevoix defeated Gaylord, 21-17, 21-12, in the consolation match Saturday to place third in the Gaylord Invitational.

Katie Mays led the Rayders with 12 kills, 15 digs, six assists and six blocks, while Kelsey Way had 10 kills and six digs; Kelly Greyerbiehl added 20 digs; and Allison Hankins had seven blocks.

Rayders fall to the boys of Iron Mountain

Iron Mountain 48, Charlevoix 15

IRON MOUNTAIN — A rough start proved to be too much to overcome for Charlevoix.

Iron Mountain jumped to a 28-0 first-quarter lead and led comfortably, 41-7, at halftime en route to a Division 6 pre-district victory over the Rayders on Friday, ending Charlevoix's season at 5-5.

Iron Mountain, 10-0 and ranked second in the Associated Press Division 6 state poll, will host Boyne City, 9-1, at 3 p.m. (EST) Saturday, Nov. 8, in a district final.

The Mountaineers are in their ninth straight playoff appearance and have reached the postseason 19 times.

"They were a good team, but we came out and didn't play well in the first quarter," said Charlevoix coach Don Jess, whose team made its second straight playoff appearance. "We didn't recover a kick after they scored and it just wasn't the start we were looking for."

Mario Frankini had four carries for 186 yards scored three touchdowns to lead the Mountaineers.

"Their back was really speedy and once he found some space, he was tough," Jess said.

For the Rayders, Jon Putman caught a 10-yard TD pass from Clayton Mitchell and Jake McLean scored on a 13-yard run. Bill Foley kicked an extra point and Mitchell ran for a two-point conversion.

Mitchell completed 11-of-31 passes for 148 yards.

"it's unfortunate the way we came out and played," Jess said. "Making the playoffs was a good experience for our kids and a nice reward for those seniors to have a shot.

"They worked really hard to make themselves better."

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

With a lifetime of farming experience and years readying her property for raising cattle, Candy Mousseau recently opened Candy's Cowboys.

Possibly an odd title for a place which custom cuts locally raised, grain-fed beef without steroids, antibiotics or growth hormones, but Mousseau is confident her lean, juicy and tender cuts of meat will keep her customers coming back.

"I raise calves from day-old all the way up to 18 months to two years," she said. "I have them all processed locally and I sell them by the piece."

Mousseau added, "Selling by the whole beef is hard for people to afford and too much meat for people to store. This way, they can pick out cuts they want and take it home."

Mousseau offers free local delivery with a $25 purchase of burger, New York strip, prime rib, beef sticks, ribs—short and regular—sweetbreads, heart, tongue and more.

"It's all frozen and vacuum packed in clear plastic so people can see what they're buying and there is no need for preservatives," she said. "I have a variety of cuts ranging from nice lean ground beef to filet mignon, porter house, sirloin, Denver steaks, roasts."

Mousseau added, "I can do special orders, and I price it very competitively."

Candy's Cowboys is open from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

Mousseau can be reached by calling (231) 675-2599 or visit her new storefront at 03817 Wickersham Road in Charlevoix.

"I enjoy doing this. It's my hobby; it's my golf game," she said. "I was born and raised on Barnard Road on my mom and dad's beef farm."

Mousseau raises between 12 and 15 head of cattle each year and has hundreds of pounds of fresh meat delivered every couple months.

Despite costing more, Mousseau feeds her cows grain every day.

"Other places would give them hey most of their life and then feed them out (feed the cattle grain) the last couple months," she said. "A little grain every day does better flavor and grain of meat, and it makes them happy—a happy cow makes happy meat."

Mousseau's farm is a licensed and inspected beef producer.

IRA charitable rollover could benefit community

A provision of the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act recently signed into law bodes well for retirees and charitable organizations. Included in the bailout legislation was an extension on the IRA Charitable Rollover—a popular giving incentive that had expired on Dec. 31, 2007.

The rollover permits owners of Individual Retirement Accounts who are age 70 or older to make direct gifts up to $100,000 from their IRAs to qualified charities each year.

Since the assets are transferred directly, retirees don't declare them as income and avoid paying income tax on the amount of their gift

The IRA rollover provision had originally been part of the Pension Protection Act, which took effect in 2006. Heralded by congressional leaders, tax planners, and philanthropic groups, the legislation is thought to have generated millions of dollars in charitable donations nationally.

Here in our own region, local community foundations also reaped the benefits.

"Thanks to decades of careful saving and planning, a number of people have accumulated good-size IRAs," explained Maureen Nicholson, executive director of the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation. "The legislation has allowed those who want to support our local charities to do so without seeing the value of their gift diminished by income tax."

According to Charlevoix County Community Foundation president, Bob Tambellini, the rollover is seen by many donors as a win-win opportunity.

"Given a choice, most people would rather support a charitable cause than pay taxes," he said. "So, the passage of this legislation is good news for all of us: taxpayers, our community foundations and all the local projects and programs we help fund."

Those who are interested in learning how to take advantage of the IRA rollover should consult with their financial advisor or attorney.

The community foundations can also provide additional information.

Call (231) 348-5820 in Emmet County, or (231) 536-2440 in Charlevoix County for more information.

Michigan tax policy slams the poor report finds State status should improve with new tax credit

In 2007, Michigan was one of only 10 states that taxed working families living in deep poverty, a new report released today concludes.

The report by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, a Washington D.C.-based policy group, named Michigan as one of the worst states for taxing those at the low end of the income ladder.

It is one of nine states to tax a two-parent family of four earning less than three-quarters of the poverty line ($15,902), and one of just six to tax a single-parent family with two children earning less than three-quarters of the poverty line ($12,398).

The picture should brighten, however, when Michigan families pay their 2008 taxes early next year. For the first time, they'll be able to claim the Michigan Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC), which was signed into law in 2006.

"There's a silver lining in this report," said Sharon Parks, president and CEO of the Michigan League for Human Services. "Our status as a state that overtaxes the poor should improve in future years because of the Earned Income Tax Credit. This reinforces the need for the tax credit -- and the need to make sure it stays in place as we face another tough year and lawmakers look for ways to cut the budget. We will be anxious to see next year's ranking."

The state EITC is a policy that rewards work and helps low-income workers with a refundable tax credit, allowing them to keep more of what they earn. The state EITC is 10 percent of the existing federal Earned Income Tax Credit in 2008. It rises to 20 percent in 2009 and beyond.

Among the examples cited in the report, which covers the 2007 tax year, are the following:

- A single-parent family of three in Michigan living at the poverty line of $16,530, paid $206 in income taxes; only Hawaii and Alabama were higher out of the 42 states that levy income taxes;
- A two-parent family of four in Michigan living at the poverty line of $21,203 paid $257 in income taxes; only four states were higher;
- Michigan levied an income tax of $131 for a single-parent family of three working a full-time minimum-wage job. Only Hawaii levied a higher tax on family earning the minimum wage.

Legislation introduced earlier this year sought to freeze the Michigan Earned Income Tax Credit because of a shortfall in state revenues. The League and other groups opposed a freeze on the credit.

"We've seen tax cut after tax cut after tax cut given to businesses. It would be unconscionable to freeze the one tax credit that is there to help low-income families at a time when they need it so desperately," Parks said.

Parks called for an expansion of the state EITC to 25 percent of the value of the federal EITC. She said the report makes it clear that along with the EITC, other tax policies aimed at injecting fairness into the state tax structure must be enacted.

"We think it's time for the state to modernize its tax structure and look at a graduated income tax that will help working families and keep needed public services running," she said.

Michigan is one of just seven states with a flat income tax, meaning taxpayers pay the same rate no matter what their income.

The report, The Impact of State Income Taxes on Low-Income Families in 2007, can be found at www.cbpp.org .

David L. Campbell, Owner/Broker of Campbell Commercial Company of Charlevoix

David L. Campbell, Owner/Broker of Campbell Commercial Company of Charlevoix, MI has been awarded the Certified Commercial Investment Member (CCIM) designation by the CCIM Institute, one of the leading commercial real estate associations in the world.

The designation was awarded Oct. 17 during the Institute meetings in Chicago, Ill. Campbell was among the group of 382 commercial real estate professionals who earned the designation by passing the Institute's comprehensive examination, the final element in the designation process. He has been a licensed real estate broker since 1976 and a member in good standing of the State Bar of Michigan since 1972; and, former member of the Michigan House of Representatives from 1976 to 1980 and former Administrative Law Judge with the Michigan Liquor Control Commission from 1982 through 1985.

Since 2000, Campbell has focused almost exclusively in commercial real estate, doing site acquisition work and development for a preferred Walgreens' developer. To date, they have successfully completed over 80 Walgreens' transactions.

The CCIM designation is awarded to commercial real estate professionals upon successful completion of a graduate level education curriculum and presentation of a portfolio of qualifying industry experience. The curriculum addresses: financial analysis, market analysis, user decision analysis and investment analysis—the cornerstones of commercial investment rel estate. CCIMs are recognized experts in commercial real estate brokerage, leasing asset management, valuation and investment analysis.

2008 Realtor of the year

Spencley-Lee

The Antrim Charlevoix Kalkaska Association of Realtors has named Darsi Spencley Lee as its 2008 Realtor of the Year. This award is given in recognition of outstanding leadership and service for the association, the community and the real estate industry. Award winners were chosen by their peers and recognized both locally and at the annual Michigan Association of Realtors Convention & Expo, Sept. 17 through 19 held in Detroit. Nominees are evaluated on their community service, education and business accomplishments and service to the realtor organization at the local, state and national levels. Lee has served on the board of directors for five years and is currently the President of the Antrim Charlevoix Kalkaska Association of Realtors. She has also involved with local community organizations such as Keep Charlevoix Beautiful and the United Way Day of Caring.

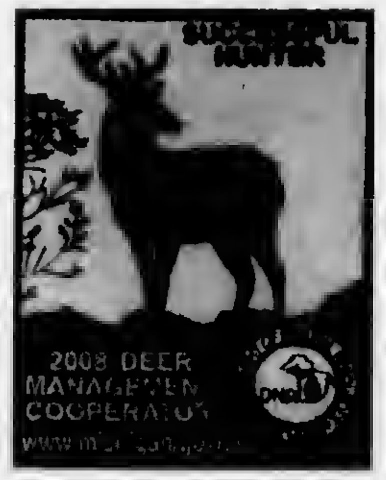
Hunters help CWD monitoring

by bringing their deer to a check station

Unlike some states, which require hunters to bring their deer to a check station, Michigan has always made deer checks completely voluntary, with one exception this year.

With the discovery of chronic wasting disease (CWD) in a captive deer in Kent County, hunters in nine townships of northwest Kent County: Tyrone, Solon, Nelson, Sparta, Algoma, Courtland, Alpine, Plainfield and Cannon, known as the CWD Surveillance Zone (CSZ), must check in their deer at one of four Department of Natural Resources' deer check stations set up in the CSZ - - Howard Christensen Nature Center, Rockford Sportsman's Club, Red Flannel Rod and Gun Club and at the Rockford Rest Area on southbound US-131.



In the rest of the state, visiting a check station continues to be completely voluntary, but DNR officials encourage hunters to bring their deer to one of more than 90 deer check stations across the state that will be open at some time during the deer hunting season.

The DNR maintains three traditional roadside stations on major highways (at the Mackinac Bridge in St. Ignace, on US-131 at Big Rapids and I-75 at Clio) during the busiest days of the Nov. 15-30 firearms season and at a variety of temporary stations at road corners and businesses during the firearms season. A hunter also can check a deer at most DNR field offices during posted business hours during any deer season. A list of check station locations along with posted hours may be found on the DNR Web site at www.michigan.gov/dnrhunting.

Wildlife Division personnel collect information from both deer and hunters at check stations. Hunters are first asked to provide the harvest location by locating the township, range and section on a map. Next the deer is examined to record the sex and age, as determined by tooth wear. If it's a buck, they examine the antlers, counting points

(a minimum of one inch in length) and measuring the beam diameter one inch above the skull, data the DNR has been collecting for decades.

The beam diameter is an important measurement, since it gives biologists an indication of the overall nutritional health of the deer herd.

"We track the average beam diameter for bucks by age-class and region of the state," said Rod Clute, DNR big game specialist. "On an individual deer that information is not very important, but when we can average hundreds of bucks for the year it does tell us the nutritional condition of the herd compared to previous years."

For example, in southern Michigan, the average beam diameter of one-and-a-half-year-old bucks is 22 mm. If that measurement comes in larger on average, biologists know there was better-than-usual nutrition that year. If it's lower, nutrition was not as good.

In the Upper Peninsula the average beam diameter is between 16 and 17 mm, but it can vary by two to three mm annually, depending on environmental factors; a long, hard winter, a difficult spring, a mast crop failure, etc.

"We record the number of antler points because it's easily collected and a measurement that many hunters relate to; however, antler points provide limited biological information," Clute said. "We also make note of broken racks to see if there is an inordinate number of them. Although broken antlers can be caused by aggressive fighting; this is not that common. They often are another indicator of nutritional stress."

Check station personnel make note of whether female deer are lactating. This is especially significant for the one-and-a-half-year-olds, as older does many times force their young to stop nursing well before deer season arrives. But with young does, it is an indicator of whether the doe raised a fawn and helps determine regional reproductive rates. More young-of-the-year does are bred in southern Michigan than in the northern parts of the state.

"Check stations also give us an opportunity to collect heads for disease-testing," Clute said. "Sample collection will be extremely important this fall as we increase CWD surveillance statewide.

"But the most important data we collect is the sex and age of the deer. That information and the mail survey of hunter success are used in a standard sex-age-kill model to estimate the size of our deer herd," Clute added. "We're very careful about aging deer; every year we have a refresher course for personnel on aging deer. If we can't look at a deer's teeth, we don't guess its age. We need good data for the aging model to work well."

Contrary to what some hunters think, check station data is not used to estimate the deer kill. Harvest estimates are done by the mail survey. Years ago, DNR personnel used to make note of the percentage of deer that were hidden (inside of vehicles, under tarps on trailers, or in a covered pickup truck bed, etc.) compared to those that were visible. Then, in conjunction with traffic surveys, personnel could get a rough idea of how the season was going. But those numbers were never used to make management decisions.

"It's one indicator we used to provide to the media, who often are surprised that we can't tell them how many deer were killed by the evening of opening day," Clute said. "But we no longer collect that information. With more SUVs and pickup trucks with caps, fewer deer are visible when transported. Over the past five years, the majority of our harvest occurs in southern Michigan. Northern Michigan highway surveys wouldn't provide an overall picture of the deer season."

One of the most important aspects of the check station, Clute said, is that it gives wildlife personnel a chance to chat with hunters, to see what is on their minds.

"Getting hunters' opinions is invaluable to us," Clute said. "For that reason we encourage unsuccessful hunters to stop at a check station and tell us what they're thinking, too."

Wildlife officials appreciate the sportsmen and sportswomen who take the time to bring their deer to a check station and show that appreciation by giving each successful hunter a 2008 Deer Management Cooperator Patch.

"Last year we checked roughly 45,000 deer out of 476,000 harvested," Clute said. "That's a fairly typical annual ratio. We usually look at about nine percent of the deer killed. For the 2008 seasons we would like to increase that percentage with even greater hunter participation."

Winterize your home

ALICE PERRAULT
STAFF WRITER

Even though heating costs have gone up, there are many efficient ways consumers can heat their homes this winter.

Ken Ashton, a sales manager at Great Lakes Plumbing and Heating in Charlevoix, said, "The first step is insulation. It is relatively cheap, and it works."

Ashton said homeowners need to tighten up their homes.

"Make sure there is no cold coming in. Insulation is great, but it won't do anything if you have cold coming in," he added.

The Energy Information Administration (EIA) recommends installing insulation around your house and water heater. They also recommend caulking and weather stripping windows and doors to help seal out cold.

"We are projecting that the average cost of natural gas will be $193 a month for the upcoming winter months," Judy Palnau, spokeswoman for Michigan's Public Service Commission said.

Palnau added that 80 percent of Michigan residents use natural gas.

"Last year the average heating cost was $154 a month for November-March. This rise is partly due to the demand, and to the increase in oil. However, experts have predicted a mild winter, which means heating costs can go down," Palnau said.

Palnau recommended Michigan's Department of Energy's energy efficiency Web site, www.energy.gov/energyefficiency/index.htm, which lists more than 100 tips for winter.

Some of these fast and easy ways to save money while keeping out the cold are to use insulating caulk, tape and plastic sheets to cover cracks in moldings or window and door frames. Hairdryers can be used to melt the plastic directly around the window, this will create a tighter seal.

Other methods recommended is to use compact fluorescent light bulbs, air dry your dishes instead of using the drying cycle in your dishwasher, lower the thermostat on your hot water heater to 120 degrees, and close air vents for rooms you do not use often.

People can also purchase and install insulating switchboard plates. These are pads that go behind switchboard plates that help keep the draft out.

The U.S Department of Energy recommends closing the chimney shafts when you are not using your fireplace. This will keep cold air from coming in.

Other than blocking out the cold, one way consumers can save money is to dial their thermostat down a few degrees each day.

"Dialing down even a few hours a day can help people save up to 10 percent in their utility bills. Programmable thermostats automatically dial heating down a few degrees," Palnau said.

Joanne Harrison, president of H&B Plumbing & Heating Inc. in Cheboygan, said, "You want to make sure your furnace or broiler is functioning correctly. You need to have them checked to make sure they are efficient. Also, you need to change your filter often."

Harrison said another way to save money this winter is to have a programmable thermostat.

When all else fails, new heating systems can be installed for consumers.

Installing a new gas heating system can cost between $8,000-10,000, and have an operating cost anywhere from $1,000-$2,000 a year. Operating costs for propane can be at $3,500 though, Ashton said.

"It all depends on the size of the house, and whether the consumer is asking for a hot air or hot water furnace," Harrison said.

Ashton recommends consumers first look at what they have to work with, and then look at long term costs. It may be that their heating system just needs an update, or they need more insulation.

"The first thing to do, is check out what you have, and ways you can improve it before getting a whole new system," he said.

Embezzlement saga loose end officially tied up

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

The lesser of two criminal acts perpetrated by a Boyne City husband and wife was finally dealt with Friday, Nov. 7 in Charlevoix County's 90th District Court.

Lockman

Kevin Dale Lockman, the husband of imprisoned embezzler Karla Sue Lockman, pleaded guilty to the reduced charge of receiving and concealing stolen property in an amount less than $1,000.

Officials have been reluctant to explain why it took more than two years to charge Lockman with the crime; he was originally accused of using more than $30,000 to pay for his wife Karla Sue Lockman's defense.

Kevin Lockman must now serve 30 days of community service work, two years on probation and pay $31,238 in victim restitution, fines and court costs.

Karla Sue currently serves a five to 10-year sentence at a women's prison in Washtenaw County after being found guilty in August, 2006 of two counts of embezzling more than $20,000.

She is thought to have taken at least $859,278.25 from her former employer, the now defunct, Northern Preferred Title Company.

Lockman's attorney Robert Banner could not be reached by press time.

Proposed budget up over last year

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Public criticism over employee raises and increased spending, in addition to concerns over the nation's apparent financial crisis, topped the public hearing portion of the county board's Oct 29 budget hearing.

Spending actually increased by 1.88 percent for a total of $244,806, but because the county took the building department into its fiscal folds earlier this spring, it appeared on paper as though the county's spending had increase more than nine percent.

"I am appearing before you this evening to raise strenuous objections to your proposed 2009 budget," said Peter Vellenga. "I am not here to fault the budgetary process, but to cry out that, unless the board takes into consideration this serious economic crisis, you will potentially face a serious budget deficit."

The misnomer over the stark increase

Hayes Township Clerk

Three-year incumbent Marlene Golovich (R) beat newcomer Democrat Michelle Crandell for the Hayes Township Clerk seat 716 to 409 with 63.36 percent of the vote.

"I feel great," Golovich said. "I love my job and I'm glad to be able to keep it."

She added, "I'm hoping to be a part of purchasing some park property on Lake Charlevoix for the township—that's kind of my pet project."

Golovich looks forward to continuing to serve the people of the township.

"Thank-you very much for their (constituents) continuing support," said the 55-year old Republican. "I love being involved with the people in the community."

In uncontested Hayes races:

Supervisor Ethel Knepp received 98.71 percent of the vote with 918 votes.

Treasurer W. Robbin Kraft won with 904 votes for 98.8 percent.

City manager 'far exceeds expectations'

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Straebel

Just over a year in what was once a hot seat of contention, Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel has kept his cool.

And that even temper and yearning for openness with city officials and citizenry alike earned Straebel the highest of marks in his first annual performance evaluation.

"I think he is an unusual combination of a people person and the knowledge of all the inner workings of the city manager's office," said Charlevoix Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. "He's done a great job of letting department managers do their jobs (and) he's been really good for council to work with—he keeps us informed."

Straebel said there were no surprises during the process wherein he was evaluated in staff effectiveness, policy facilitation, service delivery management, democratic responsiveness, organizational planning/management, communication and integrity.

Of 30 grades, Straebel earned 30 marks designated as "far exceeds expectations."

"I continue to be thankful for all the support the city council and community has given me," he said.

Straebel hopes to spend more time getting out in the field and meeting with city employees on the job.

"We've also started to broach the idea with Charlevoix Township regarding fire consolidation," he said. "So, at least, we can move on with a feasibility survey."

Straebel added, "And, another important thing to bring forward is a balanced budget this year. We have a fair amount of deficit spending, and one of the most important things we can do is to cut expenses and increase revenue to bring about a balanced budget."

Carlson feels Straebel and his wife are a perfect fit for Charlevoix, and appreciates seeing Straebel at so many local events.

"The transition has been so smooth," Carlson said. "I look forward to extending a contract with him and having him lead Charlevoix for more than just the three years that he was hired for."

The minutes of Straebel's evaluation are available at Charlevoix City Hall, 210 State St.

Stupak wins re-election bid

NOAH FOWLE
NEWS-REVIEW WRITER

Voters in the Michigan's 1st Congressional District voted overwhelmingly to send Rep. Bart Stupak back to Washington for a ninth term.

The Democratic incumbent captured 213,174 votes, or 65 percent, and his strongest opponent, Republican state Rep. Tom Casperson earned 107,319 votes, or 33 percent.

Stupak said he would keep fighting for Northern Michigan, and looked to Sen. Barack Obama's presidential victory to provide more support to his region.

"I am committed to continuing to stand up for you and fight to implement the change necessary to move America forward," he said. "Voters in Michigan and across our country are hungry for change. What we are seeing tonight gives me hope that the new administration and a new Congress will address the challenges facing hard-working men and women and their families throughout our great nation."

Stupak also had opposition from a trio of third party candidates. Jean Treacy, of the Green Party, Joshua Warren, of the U.S. Taxpayers Party, and Daniel Grow, of the Libertarian Party, each captured about 1 percent of the vote.

Supervisor

In one of the all-time small-town political upsets, Democrat John A. Gallagher beat 12-year incumbent John Works Jr. for the Peaine Township Supervisor seat with a vote of 136 to 113 or 54.62 percent of the vote.

"It turned out pretty good," Gallagher said. "I'm surprised, really surprised."

The 72-year-old beat his 48-year-old rival by just 23 votes.

Gallagher's platform included making governance in the Beaver Island township more open to citizens and working to improve road maintenance.

"We're going to make a genuine effort to invite public participation and get everyone involved," he said. "We need to move this along very quickly and for the benefit of the entire island."

Gallagher, who came into this race with no political experience, said his opponent fought a good fight.

Trustee

Republican incumbents triumphed in Beaver Island's Peaine Township.

Republicans Paul Welke, 58, and Peter LoDico, 67, were reelected to their trustees seats.

"Both of us are in second term I guess we've done the job people elected us to do," LoDico said.

Welke took 180 votes, LoDico 176 and their Democratic competitor, Bob Hoogendoorn, lost with 70 votes.

LoDico said with John Gallagher, unseating former supervisor John Works Jr. in this election, for the supervisor's seat he's hoping the board will continue to progress.

"We are going to see what he (Gallagher) brings to the township and hope he brings in new ideas. We'll try to follow those. As far as myself, I'm interested in improving the roads on Beaver Island which are in pretty poor shape right now. That's always been my goal," LoDico said..

Treasurer

Incumbent Peaine Township Treasurer Larry Kubic, 59, beat newcomer Jean Kingsley. The Democrat won the race 158 to 85 with 64.49 percent of the vote.

"I feel great," Kubic said. "I thought it would be a real close race and (I'm) happy it turned out that way."

Kubic will work to keep the island the way it is and be of service to the township board.

To his constituents, Kubic said, "Thank-you for your support."

This is the second term as treasurer Kubic has won.

Millages:

- Renewal of the Peaine Township Operating Millage passed 152 votes to 97 with 61.04 percent of the vote.

• ST. JAMES TOWNSHIP

Clerk

In what may be the strangest twist of the local races this election day, Republican Pamela J. O'Brien lost 119 to 104 to write-in candidate Jean Palmer who garnered 53.36 percent of the vote.

Palmer and O'Brien began their battle for the seat during the primary when they came to deadlock with an 86 to 86 tie last August.

Under Michigan law, ties must be broken by casting lots. So, on Aug. 14, two paper ballots were placed in a basket and drawn at the Charlevoix County Clerk's office. O'Brien won the proverbial coin toss, leaving Palmer's only recourse to file a recount—which she did not—or run as a write-in candidate.

According to officials in the clerk's office, this is the first tie they have seen in at least the last 30 years.

Palmer could not be reached by press time.

• HAYES TOWNSHIP

Clerk

Three-year incumbent Marlene Golovich (R) beat newcomer Democrat Michelle Crandell for the Hayes Township Clerk seat 716 to 409 with 63.36 percent of the vote.

"I feel great," Golovich said. "I love my job and I'm glad to be able to keep it."

She added, "I'm hoping to be a part of purchasing some park property on Lake Charlevoix for the township—that's kind of my pet project."

Golovich looks forward to continuing to serve the people of the township.

"Thank-you very much for their (constituents) continuing support," said the 55-year-old Republican. "I love being involved with the people in the community."

In uncontested Hayes races:

Supervisor Ethel Knepp received 98.71 percent of the vote with 918 votes.

Treasurer W. Robbin Kraft won with 904 votes for 98.8 percent.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY UNCONTESTED SEATS:

- Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema — 10,554 totaling 98.27 percent
- Clerk Cheryl Potter Browe — 10,336 votes totaling 98.57 percent
- Treasurer Marilyn Cousineau — 10,302 votes totaling 98.76 percent
- Sheriff W. Don Schneider — 10,847 votes totaling 98.4 percent
- Judge Richard Pajtas —
- Register of Deeds Charlene M. Novotny — 10,350 votes totaling 98.98 percent
- Drain Commissioner Marc Seelye — 10,109 votes totaling 98.74 percent
- Surveyor Lawrence R. Feindt — 10,003 votes totaling 98.77 percent
- Commissioner Shirlene Tripp (R-District 1) — 2,090 votes for 98.96 percent
- Commissioner Chris Christensen (R-District 2) — 1,563 votes totaling 98.06 percent
- Commissioner Joel Evans (R-District 4) — 1,365 votes totaling 96.88 percent
- Commissioner Robert Drebenstedt (R-District 5) — 1,833 votes totaling 99.08 percent
- Commissioner Shirley Roloff (R-District 6) — 1,883 votes totaling 98.02 percent
- Circuit Judge Richard M. Pajtas — 9,551 votes totaling 98.81 percent
- District Judge Richard W. May — 9,314 votes totaling 98.59 percent

CHARLEVOIX CITY COUNCIL UNCONTESTED SEATS:

(Council seats are nonpartisan)

- First Ward - Lyle Gennett, 57, with 364 votes totaling 98.64 percent
- Second Ward - Greg Stevens, 52 with 351 votes totaling 98.6 percent

Mayor Norman L. Carlson Jr., 41 — Ward 1: 358 votes for 97.81 percent; Ward 2: 340 votes totaling 97.14 percent; and Ward 3: 373 votes totaling 98.16 percent.

COUNCIL NEWCOMER DEFEATS VETERAN COUNCIL MEMBER

City council newcomer 46-year-old Shane D. Cole bested veteran city council member Shirley Gibson 362 to 25 with 93.54 percent of the vote. Cole could not be reached for comment by press time, but said the winning candidate in a previous interview, "I know what is in the heart of the constituents of the third ward and my goal is to go to bat for everybody there. We have to work together as a team on the council to keep a balance between ... keeping business here and not becoming a metropolitan area. I don't want to sit around and wait for another factory to close."

Cole is currently serving in his fourth year on the Charlevoix City Planning Commission.

Gibson came in late in the race to challenge Cole because she felt, "In a democracy, no one should be running unopposed, and I miss it. I have six years of experience on city council and I want to be a part of that operation once again."

A moment of silence

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

He leaned against the crumbling, brick building taking a moment to wipe the dirt from his brow. The air was cool and the sky was telling him that very soon the ground where he stood would be covered with snow. He looked around the old church and out into the courtyard. Artillery and tanks everywhere he looked, but it was eerily silent. Soldiers appearing much too old for their years waited patiently to hear the announcement their ears longed for.

At 11 a.m., Nov. 11 in 1918 something profound occurred. The Great War, World War I officially ended.

Fighting ceased when an armistice between the Allied Nations and Germany went into effect on the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of November in 1918. It would soon be referred to as "the end of the war to end all wars". President Wilson proclaimed Nov. 11 as the first Armistice Day, a day to reflect with solemn pride the heroism of those who died for their country.

Time passed and in 1954 President Eisenhower renamed Armistice Day , Veterans Day to insure proper observance allowing all veteran organizations and the general population to take time to reflect, give thanks, or celebrate.

I was in first grade at the time Ike made the proclamation recognizing this special day.

I remember school being closed and watching dad walking in a parade looking so proud in his naval uniform. He was eager to serve his country as a naval officer on an aircraft carrier.

Dad continued his support for the government by working at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Allen Park, Michigan until his retirement. He carefully picked his words when telling us stories from his own war experiences.

We would sometimes use a Saturday night to look at old film footage of air craft carriers tossing in the waves and viewed many a navy pilot maneuvering their fighter jet onto this moving vessel

Veterans Day is more than a day off, not getting mail, government offices closing, parades and proclamations.

It is time to reflect quietly and say a prayer for our children who are presently serving in Iraq and Afghanistan, and providing them with our loyalty, support, and promoting peace wherever they may be

It's a time to think about our fathers and grandfathers who lived in a time we have only slightly grasped through media clips, Hollywood movies and books.

This day had been set aside not just for veterans but for all of us to thank our soldiers and rejoice in their homecoming, to again stress that peace must be in our future. We should remain hopeful that our own grandchildren will not have to fight for their freedom.

Visiting our Civil War and Revolutionary War sites bring certain sadness when you know how many lives were lost and we hope that it served some purpose other than greed or setting new territorial boundaries.

Today is Veterans Day and I am hopeful you are displaying your American Flag.

Take a moment today to reflect what you have and be grateful for your life, family, friends and most importantly freedom.

This is one day of the year that should be held with respect.

When you have finished reading this article, please take a moment of silence to honor family and friends who have proudly served our country.

Thank-you.

FAITHFUL SERVANT

Stephen Guthrie

I remember watching the evening news one night in the week before the presidential election and marveling at the various ways our nation seemed to be unraveling before our very eyes.

That evening's edition carried one story after another of greed run amok on Wall Street, fear and hardship up and down main street, and incompetence and corruption at every level of government. There was not a hopeful, encouraging news item in the entire broadcast.

Watching the presidential contenders barnstorm around the country making promises they had no hope of fulfilling I wondered why anyone in their right mind would lust after that office at this time in history.

One could make an argument that in our entire history as a nation only Lincoln and Franklin Roosevelt entered their office with the variety and severity of challenges facing the country as President-elect Obama will face in January.

As the campaign began to wind down and it became more likely Mr. Obama would emerge as the winner, I saw people on newscasts who seemed so swept up in the gospel of "change" they appeared to swoon in much the same way squealing girls grew weepy and faint over Frank Sinatra, Elvis and the Beatles.

One correspondent, having apparently abandoned even the façade of journalistic objectivity, referred to him as "the messiah" that promised one sent from on high to right the wrongs of the Bush era and restore us overnight simply through the allure of his charisma.

And it's probably a safe bet that for every secular humanist proclaiming him as messiah there is a sincere Christian thinking of him as a candidate for the anti-Christ.

Despite all the rhetoric about change, I suspect very little real change will take place in Washington.

The first loyalty of Congress will continue to be to the lobbyists and special interest groups who buy the vote of our elected officials with campaign contributions and gifts.

The first priority of each elected Representative and Senator will continue to be the ongoing quest to secure their own reelection.

For any given issue on the new administration's agenda, the protection and well-being of the public whom they serve will be their last consideration

Money will continue to oil the machinery of democracy.

Favors will continue to be bought, sold, and traded like commodities among the power brokers. The rich will get richer, the middle class will continue to evaporate, and the gap between have and have-not will grow larger.

This system has been in effect for at least all of my life, and there is no impetus to change it now because all parties involved – all except the public – find it profitable to perpetuate. Indeed, it is the same system from which Senators Obama and Biden have emerged as leaders, and it is not in their best interest to tinker with it.

So, the more things change the more they stay the same. As I consider the world around me I am grateful that there is one thing I can count on to never change.

God is still in charge.

He made us all, He continues to provide for us all, and He continues to love us all.

Every promise of His Holy Word stands in place, timeless and unchanging.

By His own account He is the same yesterday, today, and forever.

While the government demonstrates its untrustworthiness each day, God demonstrates His faithfulness.

As institutions fail all around us, He stands on His promise to never leave us or forsake us.

As I watch my 401(k) start to look anemic He reminds me that everything on the earth is His and the righteous believer will never beg for bread.

The new President coined the phrase the "audacity of hope."

As much as I wish him well and respect the Office of the president, I do not place my hope in him. Or my faith, or my trust.

He is not the messiah, only a mere man faced with a daunting challenge. He deserves our respect, but not our adoration.

As for his ability to effect meaningful, positive change I will take a wait-and-see position, but have no reason to believe he will tamper with the system that brought him to power.

For me and my house, we will put our hope in the God who actually can deliver on His promises; the God whose steadfast kindness and generosity have earned our trust.

In that hope there is no audacity.

LETTERS to the editor

NURTURE YOUR NATURE

Editor:

In economically challenging times our thoughts turn, among other things, to the needs of people in our communities, and the needs of local charities.

Some people have acute needs for food, shelter, and other basics.

Then there are larger community needs for stability and promoting the kind of local economy that will provide opportunities, maintain a healthy economy, and provide jobs.

When it comes to ensuring that we maintain a healthy community that provides opportunities, jobs and a good quality of life, I would like to suggest that people continue to support the Little Traverse Conservancy.

In a resort and tourism-oriented economy, along with strong communities and quality health care, the Conservancy's work is vital. Our businesses, jobs, and prosperity depend upon maintaining a high quality of life with beautiful scenery, abundant wildlife and plenty of opportunities for outdoor recreation. Not only do our area's visitors benefit from these resources; so do those of us who live here full time.

I am the third generation to live on our family farm in Norwood Township, a place that I love like no other. Three years ago, I worked with Little Traverse Conservancy to ensure that my 232-acres would forever remain undeveloped. It is such a comfort to me to know that no matter who owns this land in the future, it will always remain just the way it is. And as you drive along US-31, a ? mile stretch on both sides of the road alongside Lakeview Ranch will remain scenic and untouched. I know it will always contribute to the natural health of this area, not detract from it.

It's the classic story of protecting the goose that lays the golden eggs.

Natural land, scenic beauty, wildlife, and recreational opportunities are the essential attributes that make our area attractive for the resort and tourist trades.

Without these, our economy and environment would suffer and our employment base would wither away.

However, by maintaining a healthy balance between land development and land conservation, we can have the best of both worlds: world-class resorts and vacation homes, a lively tourism industry, healthy businesses and a flourishing economy.

Think about the impact if your favorite scenic view were to be blocked, your favorite trail suddenly not available, or natural areas closed to our children for learning about nature in the great outdoors.

These are important elements in our quality of life. Conservancy-protected land is more secure and more enduring than any other form of land protection currently available to us. Even State-protected land is not guaranteed.

All non-profits need some extra help in times of an economic downturn.

As a local business owner, I am well aware that these are challenging times.

But I also know that the long-term health of our part of Michigan and the continuing vitality of our economy depend on ensuring that future generations will be able to enjoy the same quality of life in northern Michigan that we are able to enjoy today. These things are intertwined.

So, I urge everyone to consider an investment in the long term future of our community, our economy, and our quality of life.

Contact the Little Traverse Conservancy at (231) 347-0991; write to 3264 Powell Road, Harbor Springs MI 49740, or look us up at www.landtrust.org

It was a beautiful day and you helped make it extra special for our students. We truly appreciate your generosity.

Deadline approaching for teacher grants

The DTE Energy Foundation is reminding teachers that Nov. 28 is the application deadline for its Energy & Our World Mini Grants for Educators program. The program has awarded nearly $800,000 since 1990 to teachers statewide to fund science projects that encourage students' curiosity and excitement about energy.

"These grants provide teachers with funding for special science projects that school budgets typically cannot afford," said Carol Moore, DTE Energy Education and Community Relations representative. "Last year the program awarded grants to 142 teachers for really wonderful projects that helped students better understand energy and the energy industry."

Teachers of grades K-12 in public, non-public and charter schools within DTE Energy's service territory may apply for the grants. Recipients will be selected by a panel of education personnel, who will look for the best interdisciplinary projects that incorporate problem-solving, decision-making and critical thinking skills. Grants typically range from $50 to $250, but some proposals may be funded for more.

This year the DTE Energy Foundation is especially interested in funding projects that teach students about power generation, energy distribution, renewable energy technologies, environmental issues and energy conservation.

For more information and to apply for an Energy & Our World Mini Grant, go to dteenergy.com/minigrants or contact Carol Moore at (313) 235-7012 or moorec@dteenergy.com.

All applications must be postmarked by Friday, Nov. 28. Grants will be awarded first quarter 2009.

Harvest food and supply drive benefits WRC safe home

Each year hundreds of local victims of domestic abuse and their young children receive services from the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan, Inc. (WRC). In the past year, 177 women and children took refuge at "safe home" to escape the danger of physical, emotional, and/or verbal abuse. More than 7,100 complete meals were provided for the women and children staying in "safe home" over the last year. Clothing, toiletries, diapers, and all daily needs are also supplied for shelter residents. An average of seven people stayed at the "safe home" each day of the year. All WRC domestic abuse services are provided to survivors and their children at no charge. The WRC offers the only shelter for survivors of domestic abuse in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, and Otsego counties. Safe Home provides emergency shelter 24 hours a day, 365 days a year and is fully equipped and staffed to ensure the comfort and safety of families, many who enter Safe Home with only the clothes on their backs. The Safe Home Harvest Food and Supply Drive represents one of the most significant ways that community members can help support battered women and their children in Northern Michigan. During the past year alone, food and supply costs at the "safe home" exceeded $20,000. The WRC needs your donations of food, supplies and personal items to continue helping the many families who utilize these emergency services. Financial support is also essential and appreciated. A donation of just $100 can feed and house a family of four at the "safe home" for a week. Visit www.wrcnm.org or call 347-1572 for more information on how you can help.

MDOT seeks Michigan artists

for project near I-75 Ambassador Bridge Gateway Project

The Michigan Department of Transportation is seeking qualifications from Michigan artists interested in creating public art at two locations near the Bagley Avenue Pedestrian Bridge, which is currently under construction in Detroit's Mexicantown community.

The design award-winning Bagley Avenue Pedestrian Bridge, which connects the east and west sides of Mexicantown, will be used primarily by local residents, particularly during festivals and special events. International visitors crossing the border to the United States from Canada also will frequent the site because it is home to the new Detroit Mexicantown International Welcome Center and Mercado.

Artists are sought to create artwork for two locations near the pedestrian bridge, at a projected cost of $50,000, possibly up to $100,000.

Deadline for submissions is Dec. 1.

Applicants must submit 10 examples of past work in either 35 mm slides or digital files, a work sample narrative, an artist's statement about the applicant's approach to the project, and a resume including three professional references.

Applicants will be evaluated on their conceptual approach in a "summary of the artist" statement; professional qualifications and experience; proven ability to take on a project of this scope, the artistic quality of their work, durability of past installed work; and demonstrated ability to with government agencies, engineers, committee and community groups in the creation of a project.

One or several artists may be chosen to create work for one or both sites depending upon the cost of the art medium they propose. The bridge, locations for artwork, and dimensions of the site, are illustrated online at www.Michigan.gov/gateway at the link to "Public Art" for the Bagley Pedestrian Bridge.

Applications must be delivered no later than Dec. 1, to the following address:

Charlevoix Elementary takes part in MACUL showcase

ALICE PERRAULT
NEWS-REVIEW WRITER

As part of their Web site unit, four students at Charlevoix elementary will be presenting their presidential Web sites to legislature on Nov. 12.

Fourth graders at the Charlevoix Elementary School have spent about the past six weeks putting together presidential Web sites. Every year, the kids do a Web site unit, this year the theme was presidents.

"We did presidents because it is a popular issue right now, especially with the election. By the time all Web sites are up and running, we should have about two pages per president," Dana Frank, Charlevoix Elementary computer teacher said.

Frank will be taking fourth graders Mikaya Dixon, Matt Good, Chris Gregory, and Cloe Winnie with her to the state capital for the Michigan Association for Computer Users in Learning (MACUL) showcase on November 12. There, the students will present their Web sites to legislature.

"It's a great chance for the kids to show our legislatures what they are doing, and what they are learning. Sometimes, the legislatures will even invite them to senate to present their work. It's a great learning experience," Ric Wiltse, Executive Director of MACUL said.

MACUL is a nonprofit organization that works to help teachers and schools further education in technology for their students. They provide grants, and do teacher training.

From 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., Nov. 12, MACUL will be partnering with AT&T to host the showcase at the state capital.

Wiltse said he expects about 40 schools, and 50 legislatures to show up.

"We have schools with kids from k-12. We look for teams who can show the legislature the unique and creative work kids have done in their classrooms. This includes everything from robotics, multimedia, and many others. Most of the fun stuff," Wiltse added.

The students at Charlevoix elementary put a lot of effort into their Web sites, and are ready for the showcase.

"The kids are very excited about going, and they are proud of their work," Frank said.

Frank and her students wrote letters to the senators asking them to come and see their exhibit.

"We wanted to make sure they came. It's a great learning opportunity for them. None of them have ever been to the state capital, and neither have I. It is a wonderful opportunity for all of us," Frank said.

In preparation of the showcase, Frank is having her students present their websites to the school board, on November.

ANNIVERSARY

John M. Stebe and Catherine Kiebel were married in Petoskey on Nov. 8, 1958.

They celebrated their 50th anniversary by going on an Alaskan cruise in September.

Mr. Stebe was a local contractor and retired in 2001; Mrs. Stebe worked at Char-EM ISD, and retired in 1994.

She was also a homemaker.

Jack and Catie are active members of the Buckley Old Engine Club, Flywheelers and were active members in the Grange, Sports boosters, Band boosters and continually help out where needed if it involves their grandchildren and their events.

They have three children, Gary (Kelly) Stebe, Rob (Sandy), and Scott (Laura) all of Charlevoix. They are devoted grandparents to their six grandchildren, two step-grandchildren, and one great-grandchild and two step-great grandchildren.

Jack and Catie remain very active; Jack is seasonally employed by Mt. McSauba during the winter.

They love to travel in their motor home and especially enjoy the Amish country.

A family celebration dinner will be held on November 8 hosted by their children will be take place on November 8 at the home of Scott and Laura Stebe.

Chamber Action & Business Briefs

CHARLEVOIX CHAMBER, CVB PARTNERSHIP FORMED

"After numerous months of discussion, a Joint Operating Agreement was recently drafted and approved by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors and the Charlevoix Area Convention and Visitor's Bureau Board of Directors," says Chris Kowal, President of the Charlevoix CVB.

So, what does this mean? It means that both organizations will coexist in the same location at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, 109 Mason Street. It also means that all questions will be answered by the same staff and Charlevoix will be promoted, both locally and long distance, with the same message and marketing strategy. Part of this agreement includes a new staff member, Lauren Brumley, who will serve as the Communications Coordinator for the Chamber of Commerce and also as the Director of the CVB. This partnership enabled both organizations to optimize efficiency and effectiveness.

So when you hear us answer the phone, "Charlevoix Chamber and Visitors Bureau," smile and know that together, we can accomplish much more!

Charlevoix Christmas Celebrations –Community Tree Lighting & 2nd Annual Flurry Fest

'Tis the season! Come join the Christmas festivities at the Community Tree Lighting on Friday, November 28th from 4 to 6pm. Activities available throughout the event include a visit with Santa at the North Pole, decorating your own ornament to hang on the Community Christmas Tree at East Park, and holiday music. Not to mention there will be hot cocoa and cookies to enjoy in the park compliments of Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant. The evening will come to a close at 6pm with the lighting of the Christmas tree.

Shortly following the Community Tree Lighting is the 2nd Annual Flurry Fest on Saturday, December 6th. It is an all day event featuring the Merchant Holiday Open House, a visit from Santa Claus at 12:00pm, followed by a free holiday movie at 1pm, and live music from 3-7pm. There will also be a competition for Charlevoix's best hot chocolate and a special visit from Santa's reindeer. So come downtown to enjoy live music, roasted chestnuts, and the spirit of the season!

George L. Stephan: October 6, 1947 - October 16, 2008

George L. Stephan, 61, of Milton, Fla., and formerly of Charlevoix, died Thursday, Oct. 16, 2008 at his home in Florida.

He was born Oct. 6, 1947, in Grayling to Norman and Dorothy (Goodall) Stephan.

George served in Vietnam in the U.S. Army.

On Jan. 10, 1973, he married Nora (Elzinga) Buttliere in Charlevoix.

For many years, George worked in construction for Hal Forbrig.

He is survived by his wife Nora; daughters, Carol (Lonny) Sweeney of Fort Wayne, Ind., Cathy (Don) Sanman of Plainwell, Tonia (Rick) Wells of Charlevoix; grandchildren, Lonny, Jr., and Brian Sweeney, Ron Zellers, Mellisa Meteer, and Jason Wells; great-grandchildren, Alissa, Halie, Lexi, and Kayden; mother, Dorothy Stephan of Cass City; sisters, Loni, Janet, and Nancy.

His stepson, Jerry Buttliere; father, Norman; and brother Norm preceded him in death.

George is also survived by his two best friends: his dogs Charlie and Mimi.

No services are planned.

Interment will take place in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

James R. Browe: June 28, 1942 - November 5, 2008

James R. Browe, 66, of Ellsworth, died Wednesday, Nov. 5, 2008, in Wilson Township following an auto accident.

He was born June 28, 1942 in Central Lake, the son of Theodore and Ruth (Wilson) Browe.

Jim served with the U.S. Air Force during the Vietnam Conflict.

Jim lived in Charlevoix and moved to Ellsworth twenty years ago. He worked as an electrician for many years. He also worked at Ell-tron Manufacturing Company in Ellsworth and Vanderbilt, most recently as shop manager in Vanderbilt.

He enjoyed bowling, NASCAR, and sports - especially football.

Surviving are his sisters and brothers, Bonnie Rollenhagen of Muskegon, Betty White of Charlevoix, Theodore (Mary) Browe Jr. of Mancelona, Thomas (Wendy) Browe of Charlevoix, Raymond (Cheryl) Browe of Charlevoix, Mary (Alfred) Corp of Charlevoix, Ruth Ann Marley of Benson, AZ, and Rebecca (Daniel) Lester of Belton, MO. He was preceded by a brother, Wilfred Browe.

The funeral mass was held at 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 8, at Sacred Heart Church in Mancelona with Father Joseph Dreher officiating. Burial will be in Ellsworth Cemetery.

For those wishing to make memorial contributions, the family suggests Good Samaritan Family Services in Ellsworth.

Catherine L. Holley: March 9, 1921 - November 6, 2008

Catherine L. Holley, 87, of Charlevoix, formerly of Midland, died Monday, Nov. 3, 2008, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Catherine was a resident of Boulder Park Terrace and the family would like to take this occasion to thank the staff for their kindness and support.

Catherine's funeral was 1 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 6, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix where visitation was from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Wednesday evening.

Pastor Paul Murphrey officiated, and burial was in Sunset Hill Cemetery in East Jordan.

Catherine was born March 9, 1921, in Boyne City to McKinley and Elizabeth (Martinek) Ostrander.

She graduated from Boyne City High School.

She was employed for 17 years in shipping/receiving at the Attwood Corporation in Lowell, retiring in 1986.

She was a faithful member of the Calvary Baptist Church in Midland, Michigan, and enjoyed knitting, crafts and attending senior citizen craft shows.

Catherine was married to Floyd A. Holley in 1961, and he preceded her in death in 1983.

She is survived by her sons, Daniel (Sandra) Cobaugh of Charlevoix, Bill (Clarice) Jenkins of Wisconsin Dells, WI; grandchildren, Sharlynn Parker, Deanna Cobaugh, Todd Jenkins, Christine Bassuener; great-grandchildren, Jonathan and Jacob Jenkins, and Donovan Bassuener; step-sons, Floyd Holley Jr., of Colorado Springs, CO, Jerry Holley of Quincy, Ill., Keith Holley, Harold Holley of Oscoda; ten step-grandchildren; sisters, Annabell Galmore of East Jordan, Dora (Bill) Hahn of New Port Richey, Fla., Maxine Martin of White Springs, Fla., Barbara (Joe) Medlin of New Port Richey, Fla.; brother Robert (Audrey) Ostrander of Lexington, Ky.; many cousins, nieces and nephews.

Catherine's sister, Lula Mae Reynolds, preceded her in death.

Her family cherishes the memories of her courage and faithful love for all.

Employer training council to host sales to the government workshop

The Employer Training Council (ETC) of northwest Michigan will host Sales to the Government Workshop on from 8 a.m. to noon, Wednesday, Nov. 12 at the Waterfront Conference Center in Traverse City.

The event will help businesses learn how to sell their products and services to the federal government.

In the past quarter, northwest Michigan businesses were awarded contracts ranging from $14,000 to over $10 million. Recent government purchases from area businesses have totaled more than $72 million in federal contracts and $31 million in sub-contracts, according to the Procurement Technical Assistance Center (PTAC) of northwest Michigan, a program of Northwest Michigan Council of Governments.

"The increased revenue that's coming into our region through government contracting goes a long way to retaining and creating local jobs," stated Todd Olson, program director for PTAC, who will serve as presenter at the workshop. "This workshop is one of the ways we're educating companies in northwest Michigan about what it takes to sell their products and services to the federal government. And we're providing tangible assistance."

Collaboration between companies is becoming commonplace in win contracts and provide services to the government. A company may serve as a prime contractor or subcontractor on these contracts. The Northwest Michigan Council of Governments hosts government contracting information on their Web site including a listing of companies—the PTAC Client Network—to facilitate the creation of strategic relationships, and a listing of the breadth of products and services which are routinely purchased by the federal government. http://www.nwm.org/clientnet.asp

"Business people may be surprised to learn that the government already purchases products and services from their category," Olson said. "The federal government purchases more than just tanks and jeeps."

This workshop, like others sponsored by the Employer Training Council, is intended to promote beneficial business practices in northwest Michigan. The Sales to the Government Workshop is expected to be of particular benefit small business owners, senior staff, and sales and marketing professionals. The cost of the program is $35 per person which includes breakfast. You may register online at: www.nwm.org/ETC.asp or by calling toll-free (800) 442-1074.

For more information, contact Sharon Laraway-Gordon, Business Resources Assistant at Michigan Works! at (231) 922-3757 or via e-mail at sharongordon@nwm.cog.mi.us.

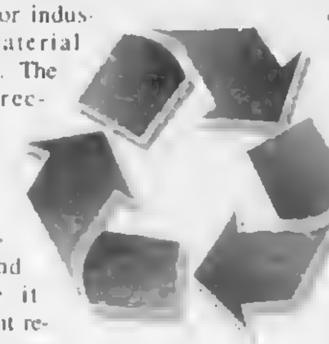
DTE Energy receives U.S. EPA WasteWise Award for recycling

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has selected DTE Energy to receive the 2008 WasteWise Gold Achievement Award for industrial material recycling. The award recognizes DTE Energy efforts to expand and improve it investment recovery process, to ensure that industrial materials are reused or recycled whenever practical. This innovative industry leading program resulted in more than 23 million pounds of material recovered for use in 2007, diverting it from disposal in a landfill.



DTE Energy adopted a new process in 2007 for removal of unneeded buildings. Rather than using traditional demolition techniques, the company employed a "deconstruction" process. Under deconstruction, structures are carefully dismantled and the materials are separated for recycling.

The process resulted in reuse and recycling rates of 99.9 and 93 percent of two buildings deconstructed in 2007.

"At DTE Energy, we continuously look for opportunities to reduce the environmental impact of our operations," said Skiles Boyd, vice president, environmental management and resources. "And that extends beyond our power plants and natural gas facilities to all parts of the company. Thanks to the ingenuity and initiative of our employees, we are finding innovative ways to reducing our waste stream through recycling and other activities."

The award also recognizes DTE Energy for efforts to increase the recycling of fly ash from its coal-fired power plants.

For 2007, the company diverted 269,036,000 pounds of fly ash from landfills by selling the by-product of coal combustion to companies that use it as an ingredient in the manufacture of concrete.

In addition to avoiding the need to dispose of the material, each ton of fly ash used in cement products offsets a ton of carbon dioxide emissions that would be generated to produce an equivalent amount of cement.

DTE Energy is a Detroit-based diversified energy company involved in the development and management of energy-related businesses and services nationwide. Its largest operating units are Detroit Edison, an electric utility serving 2.2 million customers in Southeastern Michigan, and MichCon, a natural gas utility serving 1.3 million customers in Michigan. The DTE Energy portfolio of businesses also includes non-utility energy businesses focused on power and industrial projects, coal and gas midstream, unconventional gas production and energy trading. In 2006, DTE Energy posted revenues of approximately $9 billion. Information about DTE Energy is available at www.dteenergy.com

DTE Energy offers tips to help manage winter heating costs

With the heating season fast approaching – and with natural gas bills expected to rise – DTE Energy has a number of tips to help customers prepare their homes and their budgets for winter.

Some simple steps taken now can pay big dividends when temperatures start to plummet. DTE Energy also is offering a number of free energy efficiency workshops that can help consumers save even more money and better manage their utility bills (see schedule below).

The following tips can help customers manage their energy costs and save money:

BUDGET WISELY...

DTE Energy's Budgetwise Billing program can take the seasonal ups and downs out of energy bills. DTE Energy will calculate an average monthly payment, based on your previous year's usage. You pay that amount for 11 months, the 12th bill of the year will reflect the difference between the energy you actually used and the 11 payments you made. Enroll online at www.my.dteenergy.com or by calling (800) 477-4747

DIAL DOWN . . .

The best way to manage your energy costs is by using energy wisely. For every degree you lower your thermostat, you can save about three percent on your heating bill.

One way to accomplish this is with an automatic set-back or programmable thermostat, which can automatically lower the temperature when you're away from the house, and automatically increase it before you get home.

Homes with proper humidity levels will provide greater comfort at lower temperatures. When humidity is kept at a proper level – about 35 percent at 70 degrees – windows will not sweat and the air won't feel dry. Replace the humidifier pad or clean it of calcium deposits for best results.

FINE TUNE YOUR FURNACE . . .

Schedule a heating system check-up. A qualified heating contractor will make sure your heating system operates efficiently and delivers the maximum energy savings.

Clean or replace your furnace's air filters as needed during the winter season. Dirty filters block the warm airflow in the home, which causes the furnace to work harder and less economically.

Clean and vacuum ducts, vents and heat registers. Check heat registers to ensure that drapes or furniture do not block airflow.

ADD INSULATION . . .

Install attic and basement insulation to keep out drafts and make your home more energy efficient and warm. Adding blown cellulose on top of rolled fiberglass insulation will increase the insulation value of your attic.

Insulate all heating ducts located in attics and unheated crawlspaces, and make sure there are no leaks in your ductwork.

Place an insulation blanket around your hot water heater. Electric water heaters should be placed on an insulated surface, such as foam. Adjust water heater temperature to the warm setting (about 120 degrees F).

KEEP THE COLD AIR OUT AND THE WARM AIR IN . . .

Seal windows and doors with caulk and weather stripping to block unwanted drafts. If caulk cracks and peels away, it allows your home's heat to escape.

Install a fireplace door to prevent cold air from entering your home. And, be sure to close the damper unless a fire is burning. Keeping the damper open is like having a window wide open during the winter. However, if you have a gas fireplace, the flue should be partially open to allow fumes from the pilot light to escape.

Use kitchen, bath and other ventilating fans wisely. In just one hour, these fans can pull out a houseful of warm air. Turn fans off as soon as they have done their job.

LET THE SUN SHINE IN . . .

Open curtains on south facing windows during the day to allow sunlight to naturally heat your home. Be sure to close the curtains at night to reduce the chill you may feel from cold windows.

ENERGY EFFICIENCY FORUMS PROVIDE MORE MONEY-SAVING INFO . . .

DTE Energy is offering a number of free energy efficiency forums that will provide even more tips on how residents and businesses can reduce their energy usage. Vendors of energy efficient products will be on hand to talk about what's new in their industries, information will be available on energy efficiency rebates available from DTE Energy, and all attendees will receive a free gift.

Web site helps schools link to local food

Michigan Farm to School as launched a new Web site o share information, tools, nd resources that help suport farm to school projects throughout the state.

"Farm to school" applies o a variety of initiatives that ink schools and kids to loal food and farms, including rocurement of local food for chool meals programs, fundaisers utilizing local agriculural products, and education pportunities like school garlens, farmer visits to school lassrooms and cafeterias, and school field trips to local farms.

The Web site houses Purchasing Michigan Products: A Step By-Step Guide, a local food purchasing manual for Michigan school food service directors.

Reviewed by school food service directors and an advisory committee, the Guide walks school food service directors through the process of purchasing food directly from local farmers, provides templates of forms for competitive bidding, and compiles regulatory information concerning local food purchasing for school meals programs participating in the National School Lunch Program. From the Web site, Purchasing Michigan Products can be viewed and/or downloaded in its entirety or step-by-step.

The Web site also allows interested readers to sign up for the Michigan Farm to School listserv (MIFARMTOSCHOOL). It provides links to other organizations working on farm to school and additional resources like recipes for school meals programs using local food.

With funding from Michigan State University's Project GREEEN (Generating Research and Extension to meet Economic and Environmental Needs), a manual for Michigan farmers to market to school will be developed over the next two years and posted to the Web site upon completion.

Information about classroom activities, fundraisers with local food and agricultural products, and community resources will be coming soon

Close the cabin for another season

Tips on closing the cabin from www.rustic-lodge-lifestyle.com

All good things come to an end. And so it is with each season at the cabin or cottage. But it's important to take some simple steps to safeguard and protect your property from damage. The folks at Rustic Lodge Lifestyle have created a closing checklist for cabin and cottage owners to use – and this article provides some of the key steps. For the complete checklist see http://www.rustic-lodge-lifestyle.com/closing-the-cabin.html

Mornings with a nip in the air, ripening apples and pumpkins, orange, red, and yellow appearing on the leaves: there's no doubt that fall has arrived.

If you have a cottage or cabin where winter temperatures drop below freezing, then you will be turning your thoughts to closing for the season.

"A checklist is a simple but important tool in ensuring that your valuable property is secure for the winter," said Sandra Thornton of Rustic-Lodge-Lifestyle.com. "That way you're not going to forget an important step during what is normally a very busy time: winter close-up."

WATER

Water is your biggest issue. You need to drain all the lines by turning off the water pump at the circuit breaker and opening all the taps and valves and a drain valve.

Blow the remaining water out with air after draining using a compressor or a hand-operated diaphragm pump. Leave the faucets open.

Use a non-toxic RV anti-freeze (propylene glycol) in anything that can't be drained, such as the drain traps. Failing to use antifreeze in areas with extreme cold could result in freezing of the pipes and their subsequent cracking, which could result in hundreds or thousands of dollars in damage.

Hot water tank - Turn off the gas or electric circuit to the water heater and drain the tank (from the valve at bottom) to avoid damage by freezing.

Toilet tank - Turn off water valve for toilet and flush to empty tank. Pour RV antifreeze in tank and bowl.

Sinks and tub traps - After the water is off and the lines have been blown clear, add antifreeze to all drain traps. Don't forget the washing machine drain, if you have one.

THOROUGH CLEANING TO PREVENT PESTS

Next to water, pests are the biggest concern. Remove all food when you are closing the cabin, even a box of cracker crumbs may attract mice.

To prevent damage from undesirable rodents, inspect both the interior and exterior of your cabin to make sure there are no openings through which these pests may enter. You may want to use mouse poison, with caution.

Wash and wipe cupboards inside and out so there are no crumbs or food bits remaining. Wipe down counters, appliances, and tables. Empty the refrigerator, clean thoroughly, unplug, and prop the door open. And, use a disinfectant cleaner to eliminate all odors from garbage and recycling containers and lids.

Strip the beds and wash all sheets as well as any used towels, dishtowels, or soiled clothes. If you can't wash them, take them home with you. Oils from your body, traces of food, and bacteria in the fabric can attract insects and vermin.

If your linen or clothes cupboards are open, cover them with plastic. I use large green garbage bags. You may want to put mothballs in linens to further protect them. Some recommend cedar chips as another way to deter moths and other fabric eating insects.

Unplug the TV, stereo, microwave, refrigerator, and electric blankets. Basically, unplug everything. Or, turn off the main power supply on the circuit panel to prevent any electricity use during the winter.

IN THE GARDEN

Empty hoses and store them in the garage or shed. Store your barbeque in a secure shed as food residues can attract animals. Stack and store lawn chairs in a shed or under the eaves or porch roof. Dismantle and store umbrellas and gazebos. Metal or glass tables will weather well but to protect your wood tables and other wooden outdoor furniture, store them in a shed or garage. These steps will prolong the life of your outdoor items and add years of enjoyment.

Empty all your flower pots, so they are ready for planting next spring. You'll be glad you did when it's time to replant.

CONSERVE ON PHONE BILLS

As cell phones become more prevalent, more and more people are forgoing "land lines" at recreational properties but if you do have a land line you may be able to have your phone service suspended for a specific period without losing your phone number or paying re-installation charges. This can make a lot of sense if you will be closing the cabin for three to six months. Check with your phone company.

SECURITY

Police say that more thefts occur from empty recreational properties during the winter than at any other time of the year. Make sure all doors and windows are secure and locked. Close blinds and curtains on all windows, upstairs and down. Some people install wood covers on windows and doors for added security.

Take an inventory and photographs of your dwelling and contents. Write down serial numbers where applicable. This will be of great benefit in the unfortunate event you have to make an insurance claim. Take anything that's really valuable, monetarily or emotionally, home for the winter and check with your insurance company regarding restrictions or conditions with respect to your coverage.

Now you can relax, secure in the knowledge that your retreat is secure for another winter.

Carey's Shoes of Charlevoix as changed proverbial hands.

Earlier this October, Cliff onklin purchased the Bridge treet fixture out of his love or the shoe business.

"I grew up in Marshall lichigan down state and I was iving in Columbus, Ohio, before coming here," he said. "I worked with a big shoe retailer managing stores for them and opening different stores."

He added, "I just started because I wanted to make some book money while I was in college and decided I really enjoyed selling shoes. It was something I did very well."

Conklin has already begun transforming Carey's by making room on the sales floor for more merchandise and offering a wider selection of Merrell, Keen, Uggs and Smartwool boots and shoes.

"I've already brought in about 20 new styles and more are on the way," he said. "People are (also) going to see our kids' selection going through the roof."

Carey's Shoes is open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday and noon to 5 p.m., Sundays. Holiday hours will vary.

"I'm planning a sale for the day after Thanksgiving: 20 percent off all Ugg footwear which is huge because they never go on sale."

Douglas Peters appointed to Pinstripe board

Pinstripe, Inc., a leading human resources and recruitment outsourcing company, today announced that Douglas S. Peters has joined the company's Health Care Advisory Board.

"I am honored to announce that Doug Peters has accepted a position on our advisory board. We are extremely fortunate to have assembled such an impressive team of advisors," said Jill Schwieters, Pinstripe executive vice president. "Douglas Peters has an exceptional background leading some of the nation's best health care systems. He is a well known and respected member of the health care community and will provide us with invaluable perspective and insight."

She added, "Doug's recent addition further underscores the quality and depth of talent we leverage at Pinstripe."

Douglas Peters is the former president and CEO of Jefferson Health System and co-founder of ATHS (Advisors to Health Care Suppliers).

During his 35-year health services career, he has served as president and CEO of Main Line Health; senior vice president of Blue Cross Blue Shield Association, an administrator of the University of Nebraska Hospital and Clinics; and executive director and president of Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit. Peters served on the faculties of graduate programs in Health Management at the University of Nebraska's College of Medicine and the University of Michigan.

A Fellow in the American College of Health Care Executives and a life member of the Katahdin Medical and Philosophical Society, Peters serves on the board of number of for-profit and non-profit organizations.

"Pinstripe Healthcare has a wonderful vision and commitment to the recruitment and retention of exceptional talent," Peters said. "The health care industry has seen tremendous advances in pharmaceutical, diagnostic and therapeutic technologies, but there is no substitute for great people. Throughout my career in health care, the most critical factor has always been the quality of talent delivering care. I was particularly attracted to Pinstripe because of their genuine passion for bringing innovative approaches to the health care industry."

He added, "They posses the technical savvy to apply cutting edge recruiting practices together with the wisdom to seek advice from people who have plowed this ground before them."

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

THIS FIRM IS A DEBT COLLECTOR ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT. ANY INFORMATION WE OBTAIN WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE. PLEASE CONTACT OUR OFFICE AT THE NUMBER BELOW IF YOU ARE IN ACTIVE MILITARY DUTY.

Default has occurred in the conditions of a mortgage made by Jeffery L. Gettel and Irene M. Gettel ("Mortgagors") to Charlevoix State Bank, a Michigan Banking Corporation, having its principal office at 111 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan ("Mortgagee"), which mortgage was executed by Jeffery L. Gettel and Irene M. Gettel in favor of Charlevoix State Bank, dated May 26, 2004 in the Register of Deeds of Charlevoix County, Michigan in Liber 616 at Page 491, securing the original principal amount of $192,500.00. By reason of such default, the undersigned elects to declare and hereby declares the entire unpaid amount of said Mortgage due and payable forthwith.

As of the date of this notice there is claimed to be due for principal and interest on said Mortgage the sum of One Hundred Eighty One Thousand Eighty Dollars and Six Cents ($181,080.06), said interest accruing at the rate of 7.25% per annum. No suit or proceeding at law has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, and to pay said amount, with interest as provided in said Mortgage, and all legal costs, charges, and expenses, including the attorney fee allowed by law, and all taxes and insurance premiums paid by the undersigned before sale, said Mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises at public venue at the Courthouse in Charlevoix, to the highest bidder in the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, on December 5, 2008, at 11:00 o'clock in the fore noon. The premises covered by said Mortgage are situated in the City of East Jordan, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, and are described as follows.

Land Situated in the City of East Jordan, Charlevoix County Michigan, further described as: commencing at the Southeast Corner of Lot 1, Block 2; thence West 108 feet, thence North 39 feet, thence West 24 feet; thence North 8 feet, thence East 132 feet, thence South 47 feet to the Place of Beginning, being a part of Lot 1, Block 2 of The Village of South Lake (now City of East Jordan) according to the Plat recorded in Liber 1 of Plats, Page 41, Charlevoix County Records. Commonly known as 101 Main Street, East Jordan, Michigan.

Notice is further given that the length of the redemption period will be 6 months from the date of sale, unless deemed abandoned in accordance with MCLA 600.3241a, in which case the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of such sale.

BUDGET

in spending was corrected when commissioner Chris Christensen (R-District 2) explained that the building department's revenue would offset the majority, if not in excess, of its expenditures.

Audience member Bob Taylor decried the salary increases of several members of the prosecutor's office.

"A reduction in expenditures would be apropos for this time of crisis in our nation and also in our county. We've had several factories in here in our county laying off people. Tax increases would not be warranted," said audience member Roger Conaway. "It's hard enough on a family right now ... I hope you folks would have that servant's heart and compassion for the people of this county."

In addition to county residents in the audience, Bob Drebenstedt (R-District 5), the only commissioner to vote "no" on the budget, felt expenditures should have been trimmed.

"In Michigan, we're over regulating and overtaxing our own people," he said.

Christensen said that, as a realtor and house broker, he understands the current economic climate because he lives it.

"I also understand that it is our responsibility to maintain this government structure ... regardless of the economic climate," Christensen said. "I'm not saying we can't go without notice; all I'm saying is we need to plan for this government to be here five years from now—10, 20, 50 years from now."

He added, "The economic times will ebb and flow. We can't run scared every time things plummet or spike. Considering the economic climate, I think we have made some cuts. We have frugally worked our way through this."

Vellenga said he understood the county's budget process began earlier this year, before said financial crises—statewide and nationwide—"were fully apparent."

"You are the employer of the county employees. In that role you need to act as any other employer," Vellenga said. "We are seeing massive layoffs occurring in the private sector. They (private businesses) have to answer to their shareholders and if their projected sales cannot warrant the outflow of salaries, then there must be either reductions in salary or numbers of employees or a combination of all three."

Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners discuss county finances during their budget hearing Oct. 29.

He added, "For this board not to act prudently in this emerging financial crisis would be a breach of your responsibility to your constituents."

Some of the major projected increases in spending include an 8.44 percent increase in probate court, from $460,560 to $499,410; a 39.92 percent increase in soil erosion, from $31,533 to $44,121; a 7.32 percent increase in sheriff office spending, from $1,048,210 to $1,124,990; a 10.92 percent increase in animal control spending, from $85,236 to $94,548; a 21.41 percent increase in medical examiner costs, from $38,301 to $46,500; and a 70.21 percent jump in spending on the county board of commissioners, from $47,000 to $80,000.

County employees received an across-the-board pay increase of three percent. Commissioners noted that the majority of those employees did not receive a raise of any kind last year.

"I'm pleased ... with what we've done with the budget. We hear a lot about the economy and a lot about people losing their homes. We're responsible with the taxpayers' money and that means being responsible with it," said Joel Evans (R-District 4). "I think you'll find our county in very good shape. I do not think we're spending money frivolously."

He added, "I understand people are losing their homes, but if somebody loses their home, do we say we are not going to pay those who are working for us?"

Despite expenditure increase of less than two percent despite approving a budget that expenditures were increasing by more than nine percent, commissioners are confident the county will remain solvent through 2009.

"I think looking at a 1.89 percent increase you should all be commended," added outgoing Charlevoix County Clerk Jane Brannon.

David Crouse, producer, to give screening of documentary on C.S. Lewis

The Charlevoix Public Library will host a screening of The Magic Never Ends: The Life and Works of C.S. Lewis at 7 p.m. on Nov. 20, with a discussion led by producer David Crouse.

The film represents the first American-produced television documentary on best-selling author C.S. Lewis. The documentary spans Lewis' life from his early days in Northern Ireland, his acclaimed academic career at Britain's prestigious Oxford University, his life-changing friendship with J.R.R. Tolkien, and the legendary love between Lewis and his wife, Joy.

Lewis

The Magic Never Ends features a musical score composed by acclaimed musician David Barrett and narration by Academy Award-winning actor Sir Ben Kingsley. It received an Emmy for Best Musical Score and two nominations in Music and Best Director. The documentary has aired on PBS and will continue to air through 2010.

Other productions by Crouse include Beyond the Gridiron: The Life and Times of Woody Hayes, a profile of one of the most gifted and complex coaches of the 20th century; and Lost in Middle America (and what happens next), a look at how the transformation of Lima, Ohio from thriving manufacturing center to part of the Rust Belt reflects the fate of similar communities throughout the United States.

Crouse is currently working on a new documentary on Lewis and J.R. R. Tolkien and Faith. Both are Christian authors who came to their faith through mythology and created engaging, imaginative, and timeless fiction.

For more information, please visit www.crouseentertainment.com.

Charlevoix Public Library is located at 220 West Clinton St. in Charlevoix. There is no cost to attend.

The screening is part of the area-wide C.S. Lewis Festival, of which Crouse is co-founder and President. C. S. Lewis Festival, Inc. is a not-for-profit, donor-supported corporation that annually facilitates an exploration of the life and works of the man who created Narnia.

Chamber, visitor bureau join forces

Duo projects financial savings, streamlined service

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

"One-stop shopping."

That is how Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Erin Bemis explained the newly formed partnership between her group and the Charlevoix Area Convention and Visitor's Bureau.

"It's a partnership, not a merger," Bemis said. "Our seperate boards and seperate entities realized through a series of discussions and, essentially, round-tables, what things we were doing and duplicating in both organizations, and we discussed what we can do if we shared some of the expenses."

She added, "It seemed silly to have two copiers, two postage machines and two offices. When we become more effective we will create a cohesive united front for information—whether it be for a new business or an inquiry on lodging for the CVB (visitor's bureau)."

Brumlay

While the two will remain separate entities, the chamber and the visitor's bureau now share offices in the Chamber's new location on 109 Mason St.

The chamber eliminated one part-time position.

The visitor's bureau's new director Lauren Brumley will divide her time evenly between heading the visitor's bureau and acting as the chamber's coordinator of communication.

Brumley, who recently moved to Charlevoix from Grand Rapids, served the chamber as an intern this summer through Apple Fest'.

"It's going to be a good time. I'm excited to get it up and going," Brumley said. "We're going to have a lot of learning experience trying to take this in a new direction."

In addition to consumers being able to find both entities in one office, Brumley said she will be updating the Web site and working on developing new brochures.

"It just makes sense," said Bemis, who could not put a dollar figure

Lion speaks on black dog, other mental illness

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Former Detroit Lion quarterback Eric Hipple will discuss depression, suicide and other mental illnesses facing teens today.

Hipple, whose son committed suicide in 2000, will give two talks: one during the school day, Nov. 25 at Charlevoix High School for students only; and another later that evening at 6:30 p.m. in the Charlevoix Public Library for the rest of the community.

"Linda Adams from the public library approached me about having him come. He spoke in Petoskey last year and she had heard how well he interacted with the students and how valuable the discussions were that the students were having afterward," stated Charlevoix High School media specialist Kristin Sidlauskas in an e-mailed response to questions.

According to Sidlauskas, Hipple believes educating people about mental illness like depression, also known as the black dog, and breaking down the stigma related to them is the key to suicide prevention.

"I had just done a book talk for a class that had included several books about mental illness and depression and was surprised how many students came in to talk to me about finding these kinds of books," she further stated. "So, when Linda brought it up, I did some research and thought it sounded like a good idea. He has recently published a book, Real Men Do Cry (and) his presentation for the high school is called, "Keeping a Healthy Mind in High School."

Sidlauskas said Hipple's presentation is important because nearly one in five adolescents suffer from some form of mental, emotional or behavioral issue

Wish granted for aspiring princess

Cinderella, played by Charlevoix High School performing arts student Jordan McCarthy (right) chats with her number one fan Patty during their meeting Monday, Nov. 10 at Charlevoix Area Hospital. The terminally ill Patty, whose last name is withheld by request, had one wish in her life: to meet Cinderella.

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

A recent urgent need at Charlevoix Area Hospital was handled not by a doctor, but by Cinderella.

When Charlevoix High School performing arts instructor Danielle Wager heard a local dying woman's wish was to meet the fairytale princess she found a student willing to play the part and then raced to Traverse City in pursuit of the right garb.

"She doesn't have very long, and the nurses knew they wouldn't get Make A Wish (Foundation) to respond in time and they knew we had a Glynda (from the school's production of Wizard of Oz) costume and asked if we could visit Patty," Wager said. "I drove to the costume shop in Traverse City and got an actual Cinderella costume."

The 49 year old Patty, whose last name and medical information has been withheld upon request, has a cognitive condition which has left her with the mind of a child ... and very big dreams

"She was so excited she started introducing Cinderella to all her nurses and showed her around the hospital telling everybody she

House colleagues elect Elsenheimer

Kewadin lawmaker looks to strong Republican caucus future

State Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer will serve as the Michigan House of Representatives' minority leader in the 95th Michigan Legislature, beginning in January 2009.

Elsenheimer, who will enter his third and final term representing the 105th District of Antrim, Cheboygan, Charlevoix and Otsego counties, was elected early Thursday morning by his Republican colleagues.

"First, I want to thank all the residents of the 105th District who have put their trust in me to serve them as their state representative and then I give my gratitude to my House colleagues who have invested their faith in me to lead our caucus into the future," Elsenheimer said. "We are fortunate to have a very talented and committed group of people from across the state dedicated to moving Michigan's economy forward while protecting citizens and taxpayers.

"I'm more confident about our future than I have been in some time. Our discussions on how to make Michigan better have been focused on ideas and positive efforts, and I'm proud to be a part of making our goals a reality."

Before election to the House in 2004, Elsenheimer served as assistant prosecuting attorney for Antrim County, where he handled a variety of criminal and civil cases. He then formed his own law firm, Young, Graham, & Elsenheimer, PC, with two former Antrim County prosecuting attorneys.

Politically, he served as Antrim County Republican Party chair for many years and was on the Bellaire Public Schools Board of Education from 1998 to 2004, when he stepped down to run for the state Legislature.

Elsenheimer attended Northwestern Michigan College, where he received an Associate of Arts degree, and a Bachelor of Arts degree from Michigan State University in 1987 studying psychology, history and philosophy.

He earned his law degree from Wayne State University Law School where he also was a founding member of the Wayne State University Environmental Law Society.

Elsenheimer, born Aug. 21, 1965, was raised in northern Michigan. He and his wife Ann have three children: Emma, Noah and Jacob.

Auto crash update

Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is investigating a two-vehicle personal injury traffic crash that occurred recently on US-31 and Boyne City Road in Charlevoix Township.

A 36-year-old Traverse City woman was stopped at the stop sign at the intersection of Boyne City Road/US-31, north.

She made a left turn onto US-31 and was struck by a north bound van driven by a 26-year-old Charlevoix woman.

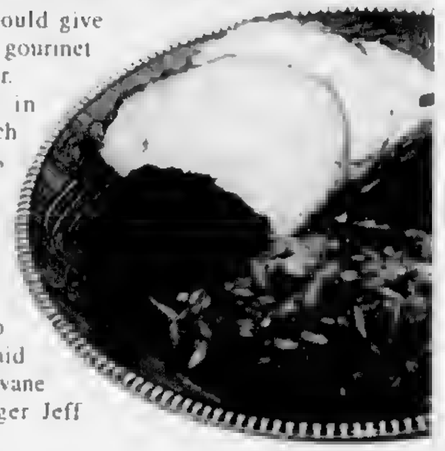
The crash is believed to be weather related

The sheriff's office was assisted on scene by the Charlevoix City Police, Charlevoix EMS and Michigan State Police.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater urges care because similar accidents have occurred at this same location as well as the Walloon Lake junction where vehicles block the view for vehicles entering US-31 and US 131.

Lasater has alerted Michigan Department of Transportation to his concerns about these locations.

Want to help a needy family this Thanksgiving?



For $135 you could give a needy family a gourmet Thanksgiving dinner.

The Neighbors in Need program, which began at Stafford's Pier Restaurant five years ago, is now available in Charlevoix.

"We cook it, box it up and take it to the front door," said Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant Manager Jeff Spreckselt.

The meals, which serve between six and eight people, will be given to families chosen by local food pantries.

"We really don't make any money ... after food costs," Spreckselt said. "We're just the middle man for this whole thing."

Spreckselt said his employees are excited to carry on the tradition begun by their sister business, and Spreckselt hopes to serve as many families as possible.

"We're hoping to do at least 10," He said. "They (donors) can give the whole $135 or as much as they want. They can mail it anonymous or give their credit card info' over the phone."

Call 547-4311 to make a donation, or contact your local food pantry to see if you qualify for help.

Spreckselt added, "It's nice, especially in these hard economical times, to give somebody something—there's plenty (of needy people) in Charlevoix County—I would like to see us do 50 (dinners)."

How much is a billion?

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

We are deluged with large numbers and we often don't completely understand just how large they are. A few days ago I watched an interview with Ted Turner, a famous billionaire. He said with some chagrin that he confused millions and billions, even when thinking about his own money. Everett Dirkson, a once-prominent U.S. Senator, famously said, when talking about the federal budget, "A billion here and a billion there and pretty soon you are talking about real money." Legislators and commentators have confused numbers to the extent of calling the Wall Street bailout a $700 million total rather that $700 billion. Does it really make any difference? I believe it does. We misunderstand numbers at our peril. To partly quote President Bush, we are likely to "misunderestimate".

Currently we hear of $700 billion for this, $180 billion for that, and maybe a trillion or two overall in order to get the national economy back on track. I have been doing a little arithmetic to try to understand just how much that is. Maybe I can help us all to understand.

How much is a billion? A favorite professor of mine used to use tennis balls in his example. Assuming that a tennis ball is about two and a half inches in diameter, we can imagine the following. Set out a row of tennis balls in a straight line, just touching each other. Ten balls would span just over two feet. One hundred tennis balls would reach about twenty-one feet. A row of one million tennis balls would be about 40 miles long, and a billion would reach 40,000 miles or about two and a half times around the Earth. And that is only one billion. If you want to think about a trillion, multiply that last number by one thousand, making a row of tennis balls forty million miles long or almost half way to the sun from the Earth.

I thought this fall that I must have raked up at least a billion leaves from our over-treed lawn. I decided to find out. Ten dry Maple leaves weigh just one-fourth an ounce. That means forty of them weigh about one ounce. Continuing the arithmetic, 640 leaves would weigh about one pound. Six hundred forty thousand of them would add up to a half tom. I probably did not move that many. A billion leaves would add up to a million and a half pounds, probably more leaves that are produced by all of Charlevoix's trees in several seasons.

What we are interested in is not tennis balls or leaves, but money. How much is a billion dollars? My financial consultant tells me that a stack of one hundred new, crisp one dollar bills is about three-fourths of an inch high. That means that a stack of ten thousand would reach just over six feet. A stack of a million would be 625 feet high. We can imagine that. But a billion dollar bills stacked up would be 625,000 feet or just more that one hundred-eighteen miles. A billion is a thousand time a million, not, just a little more.

Finally what does $700 billion mean to each of us? That works out to nearly $2500 provided to Wall Street financial institutions by each man, woman and child in the United States. That is a stack of crisp, new one dollar bills just over a foot and a half high. Most of us would regard that as a significant gift. I wish were could send them leaves or tennis balls.

Relations with Russia: Colder than ever

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

While Uncle Sam has been standing around with his thumb up his proverbial ... Global War On Terror®, one of our biggest and most forgotten threats has continued to strengthen its position while offering threats and insults which American leadership seem determine to ignore.

The Soviets (I'm forever trapped in 1985) may not be as brash as Bin Laden or as freak-show interesting as Kim Jong Ill, but the Russian government is not our friend.

Vladimir Putin was quoted in a June, 5 BBC piece on the proposed missile defense system as saying, "If the American nuclear potential grows in European territory, we will have to have new targets in Europe."

Putin's puppet Russian President Dimitry Medvedev, in a Nov. 5 Associated Press story, said America was to blame for his country's attack on Georgia.

Medvedev also boldly threatened to treat our plans to build a missile defense system in a couple eastern bloc countries as a direct threat.

Can you say Cuban missile crisis?

American officials have said the plan is to stop a so-called rogue state like Iran or North Korea from lobbing missiles across the region, but that hasn't soothed Russia's heartburn over U.S. plans to install missiles in Poland and a radar station in Czechoslovakia.

Medvedev's harsh words are merely cars in a long train of hints that this thing ain't over.

"From what we have seen in recent years — the creation of a missile defense system, the encirclement of Russia with military bases, the relentless expansion of NATO — we have gotten the clear impression that they are testing our strength," Medvedev said during a recent speech at the Kremlin.

George Bush may have seen Putin's soul when he looked into those KGB eyes, but what he has failed to see was the Mad Russian's middle finger.

Make no mistake: Russia will deploy ballistic missiles—with or without nuclear warheads—with the capacity to reach Poland.

Commander-in-chief-to-be Barack Obama gave a frightening, though accurate, picture of American ignorance on the subject when he stated back in August, "Now is the time for Georgia and Russia to show restraint, and to avoid an escalation to full scale war."

Georgia is a sovereign nation—I know, I know, the USA has no business telling another superpower not to invade a smaller sovereign nation—but it's kind of like telling a rape victim to calm down so the rapist doesn't attack you again.

Furthermore, how America is to blame for the attack, considering even the U.S. State Department has condemned Georgia for an alleged strike on its secessionist region of South Ossetia is unknown to this foreign policy amateur.

It is clear that the Russian backing of South Ossetia is intended to destabilize Georgia, thereby making life difficult for its American ally.

So, what's all the fuss over this little country of roughly $4 million? Why, oil, of course.

Georgia has lakefront acreage right on the Black Sea which, according to those in the know, is the third largest oil-rich region on the planet.

Some experts disavow even the possibility of a new Cold War. It is easy to see why: Russia has been painted as a crumbling empire wheezing on its last proverbial leg; and some believe our only differences sprang from the epic battle between "isms," both capital and communal, and now that in Russia's economy at least some free market enterprise exists there is nothing left over which to fight.

But, the two biggest kids on the playground will always seek to do battle, regardless of their similarities or lack thereof, especially when there are unknown billions in oil at stake.

While I cringe when I see nearly defenseless nations invaded by Goliath war machines, I am equally nervous about ideas like those of Lindsey Graham and Joe Lieberman who co-authored an Aug. 26 column suggesting Georgia, "be given the antiaircraft and anti-armor systems necessary to deter any renewed Russian aggression."

Then again, how can we remain idle when a state we claim as an ally is attacked?

Will arming our enemy's enemy deter further clashes? Doubtful. But, neither will pretending we are friends with our age-old nemesis.

This continued policy of blissful ignorance in the face of one of our two largest potential threats—let's not forget the Chinese need farmland, lots and lots of farmland—is a fine and dandy way to jump start the sleeping, but far from deceased, Cold War of old.

Medvedev has spit in Uncle Sam's eye. The question is "Will he blink?"

Marines seek toys for area youngsters

TOYS FOR TOTS℠

The northern Michigan detachment of the Marine Corps League will again be placing their more than 100 toy collection boxes throughout Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan Counties.

New unwrapped toys and gifts are needed for all ages: from babies and toddlers, up through late-teens.

Between 13,000 and 15,000 toys have been donated and distributed during the drives in each of the last several years.

The toys are all distributed locally, and the need seems to be greater each year.

The Toys for Tots program was begun 50 years ago by a retired Marine Major and his wife in Los Angeles, and has quickly expanded to a national program involving thousands of Marines in hundreds of cities, resulting in literally millions toys being distributed to children each holiday season.

Contact Russ Bolt at 547-4855 for more information.

Toys can be dropped off at the following locations:

K-Mart, Rite Aid, Oleson's Food Store, Glen's Market, Ace Hardware, Pat McKeown Ford, Harbor Industries, The Clothing Company, Charlevoix Elementary School, Dollar Tree, Bolt's Gallery, Copy Plus, Charlevoix Hospital, Fox Motors, Weathervane, Kiwanis Club, Dollar General, Flap Jack Shack, MacGregor Plumbing and Heating, Grey Gables, and Bay Winds Credit Union.

Adopt-A-Landscape

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) is encouraging members of the public, community groups, master gardener clubs, businesses, and public agencies to "Adopt-A-Landscape."

Similar to the department's long-standing Adopt-A-Highway program, the new Adopt-A- Landscape program hopes to recruit civic-minded volunteers to help beautify interchanges, boulevards, rest areas and roadside parks. Volunteers will plant flowers, shrubs and trees; control weeds; trim and remove trees; sow wildflowers; remove graffiti front highway structures and perform ancillary mowing. Adopt-A-Landscape volunteers will help MDOT stretch limited maintenance dollars. Planting vegetation also will help prevent storm water runoff.

"We know there are talented people out there who would like to help keep Michigan looking beautiful," said State Transportation Director Kirk T. Steudle. "Several state rest areas and Welcome Centers already are benefiting from the expertise of master gardener groups who plant and maintain flower beds and shrubbery. The Adopt-A-Landscape program will provide an opportunity for more people to contribute their time and talent."

Adopting groups can use volunteers to do the work on their own, or hire a contractor to perform the work on their behalf. Volunteers receive safety vests, safety materials, and name recognition signs to mark the area their group has adopted, similar to the signs used by the Adopt-A-Highway program. Permits to do the work are being issued on a first-come, first-served basis. Interested groups should contact their local MDOT Transportation Service Center (TSC) for more information on what sections of land are available for adoption.

OBITUARIES

Genevie (Jenny) Osenko: passed on November 6, 2008

Osenko, Genevie "Jenny", age 77, died Tuesday, November 6, 2008, at Genesys Regional Medical Center in Grand Blanc, Michigan, surrounded by her loving family. Memorial contributions are suggested to Kanzius Cancer Research Foundation, 915 State St., Erie, PA 16501. Honoring Jenny's wishes, her ashes will be buried in the Norwood Cemetery, Norwood, MI. Jenny was born in Champaign, IL and later moved to Toledo, OH. She married George Osenko in 1950 and was married for 58 years. She had three children,

Osenko

Mark, Ginger and Jeff, who all three believe she was an angel sent from above to be their mom. She graduated from Eastern Michigan University, earning a Masters Degree, and taught elementary school for over 33 years. After retiring from Cherry Hill School District and moving to Sun Lakes, AZ she continued to teach elementary students at the Indian Reservation in Sacaton, AZ. Jenny spent her summers on Lake Michigan enjoying her children and three beautiful granddaughters, Chelsea, Kelly and Alyssa. She spent her winters in Sun Lakes, AZ with truly loving friends and neighbors. No matter where she was, she was cooking delicious pies and sweets and bringing a laugh, a smile and a song to all that were lucky enough to have known her.

Marguerite M. Y. Currie: passed on November 13, 2008

Marguerite M.Y. Currie, 89, of Traverse City, formerly of Charlevoix, died Thursday afternoon, Nov. 13, 2008, at Munson Medical Center.

Born June 14, 1919 in Charlevoix, she was the daughter of the late Earl A. and Irene H. (Harsha) Young.

On Oct. 11, 1947 at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix, she married George D. Currie.

Marguerite was a proud veteran, who served with the United States Navy as a Wave, during World War II.

She also enjoyed her membership with The Presbyterian Church of Traverse City.

Marguerite is survived by her children: Donald (Darlene) Currie of Ft. Wayne, Ind., Constance Gardner of Interlochen, and Elizabeth (Dean) Elliott of Troy, Penn.; seven grand- daughters, Kristanya and Heather Currie, Jessica, Sarah and Victoria Gardner and Joslyn and Eileen Elliott; and two great grand -daughters, Ana and Bridgette.

She was preceded in death by her husband; two sisters, Louise Gill and Virginia Olsen and one brother, Andrew Young.

Memorial Services was held at The Presbyterian Church on Tuesday, Nov. 18, 2008 at 11 a.m..

Dr. Homer Nye will officiated

Burial will take place at a later date a Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix

Revenue-sharing dispute moves to Charlevoix court

RYAN BENTLEY
NEWS-REVIEW WRITER

As local educational institutions continue with a lawsuit against the Emmet County Local Revenue Sharing Board, they'll be doing so in a different court from the one where they filed the case.

Last month, North Central Michigan College, Public Schools of Petoskey and Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District filed a suit in Emmet County Circuit Court challenging the process which the board uses in allocating Odawa Casino Resort revenue-sharing dollars. Along with the revenue board, the Emmet County Treasurer's Office is listed as a defendant because it serves as a fiduciary for revenue-sharing.

Emmet County's only circuit judge, Charles W. Johnson, recently signed an order recusing himself from the case because of his ties to North Central. He is a member of the college's board of trustees.

The case has been moved to Charlevoix County Circuit Court, where Judge Richard Pajtas will oversee the proceedings.

Because the Odawa casino site is in trust status with the U.S. government, property taxes cannot be collected on it.

Under the Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians' gaming compact with the state of Michigan, 2 percent of the Odawa' casino's electronic gaming proceeds are to be distributed to the community by the revenue board.

Using part of this payment from the casino, the board is responsible for compensating schools, the college and other local taxing units for the property taxes they'd collect if the gaming site was not in trust status.

The tribe's revenue-sharing payments also are used to cover local infrastructure and public safety needs and discretionary grants to governments and nonprofit organizations.

School and college officials contend that the revenue board's current allocation approach doesn't provide the taxing units with all of the tax-replacement funds that the compact calls for them to receive.

As these officials see it, the revenue board should be replacing property taxes based on the casino site's current value, including the amenities the tribe has constructed there.

But under the revenue sharing board's interpretation of the contract, tax replacement payments have been based on the site's value at the time it was placed in trust status. At that time, the site was still vacant, and property taxes thus would have been considerably lower than with the casino complex in place.

One early step in the court case will be consideration of a request from the schools and college for an injunction. They're seeking it to ensure that the latest revenue-sharing payment from the casino isn't spent before the dispute is resolved.

A hearing on the request is scheduled for 2 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 19, in the Charlevoix court.

Kathleen Abbott, civil counsel for Emmet County, is representing the county as well as the revenue board in the case. In a recent legal brief, she argued against an injunction.

While the taxing units could suffer some harm if the latest funds are distributed using the board's existing approach, Abbott wrote that the court also needs to consider the adverse impacts which public safety agencies could face if grants that they depend upon are delayed.

Abbott also argued in her brief that the board's approach to allocation has allowed it to provide revenue-sharing funds for all of the purposes specified in the compact: property tax replacement, public safety, offsetting actual costs which local governments face because of the casino's presence, and — using any leftover funds — other lawful local government purposes.

If the schools' preferred method was used, Abbott wrote that not all of these purposes could be satisfied with the funds available.

"(The schools' proposal) usurps the authority granted to the LRSB to determine guidelines for establishment of a criteria or a formula for the distribution of revenues, and all other matters not specified in the compact," she added.

Revenue board member Les Atchison said grant applicants have been notified that this fall's distribution has been suspended because of the pending litigation.

Grand giveaway at Castle Farms

It was a lucky day for Melissa Schultz at the Castle Farms Grand Bridal Expo.

Schultz was the winner of the Grand Giveaway; a wedding package worth over $4,000.

More than 160 brides attended the Grand Bridal Expo at Castle Farms from all areas from Michigan and even out of state. Not only did they travel to see the finest vendors of northern Michigan but also to get a glimpse of the hottest trends the wedding fashion industry has to offer at the sizzling fashion show.

Melissa and her fiancé, Nathan Scott had quite the eventful weekend.

They were just engaged Oct. 11 and won the Grand Prize October 12.

The couple is looking forward to a simple yet elegant winter wedding in northern Michigan.

The Grand Giveaway prize includes a wedding dress gift certificate from Petoskey Bridal; an Engagement sitting with Paxton Photography, clergy services from the Remaly's, a courtyard ceremony at Castle Farms, and many other items for Melissa and Nathan to create their perfect wedding.

Counselor offers help for sex addicts

Christian counselor Stephen Guthrie has successfully completed the process for certification in the diagnosis and treatment of sexual addiction by the American Association of Christian Counselors.

Guthrie directs Christian Counseling Services located at 203 E. Upright St. in Charlevoix.

Sexual addiction affects broad segments of the population, both male and female.

Sexual addiction is not a matter of morals or character, but is a true addiction in the sense that the sexual addict is powerless over compulsive behavior that eventually leads to their lives becoming unmanageable.

Many addicts are filled with shame and self-loathing as they repeatedly try and fail to gain control over their lives.

The addiction has exploded with the spread of Internet pornography, which is said to have the same addictive power as crack cocaine because one exposure is often sufficient to create a neurological addiction.

In addition to offering counseling for sexual addiction Guthrie also sponsors a local meeting of Sex Addicts Anonymous, a 12-step program modeled on AA.

Guthrie is a Board Certified Pastoral Counselor through the American Assn. Of Christian Counselors and holds a Masters Degree in pastoral counseling from Trinity Seminary, University of Liverpool.

Christian Counseling Services is a full-service pastoral counseling ministry which employs both traditional counseling techniques and Biblical teaching. Fees are affordable.

Counseling and healing prayer is offered by appointment at 675-4682.

Final time to enroll in a free state and federally funded academy

The Michigan Youth Challenge Academy is a non-profit organization which serves the entire State of Michigan. There is no military obligation through this school. It is merely a program for 16- to 19-year-old at risk kids who will gain education and employment skills.

Elthible youth may live at the academy for five-and-a-half months followed by 12 months of post-residential work upon graduation. If you have fallen behind or been expelled from school, or have legal issues, this is program is here to help you.

For more information, call Jimmie Jones, Admissions Coordinator at (269) 968-1230 or (989) 205-7352 (cell phone). The class begins Jan. 11, 2009, but there is a seminar slated for noon, Dec. 6 in the VA Medical Center, 5500 Armstrong Road, building 13, Battle Creek.

Those under 18 must have a parent or guardian attend with them. The eligibility seminar consists of an informational briefing and a one-on-one interview with the applicant followed by a Physical Agility Session. Applicants should wear gym clothes and shoes for the physical agility session.

Applicants must complete both an eligibility seminar and physical agility session to be considered for the enrollment into the Michigan Youth Challenge Academy. Call Jones' cell phone if you are lost or late for the seminar. Visit www.NGYCP.org/mi or call (800) 372-0523 for more information.

Woman Writes Historic Letter to Her Congressman

BEXAR COUNTY – After applying Thera-Gesic® to her arthritic hands, Mary Ann W. hand wrote a forty-seven page letter to her Congressman explaining the true meaning of life. When asked where she had gathered all the wisdom for writing such a masterpiece and why she sent it to a government official, she painlessly replied, "None of your dang business!"

SPORTS reviewing the action

USA Swimming readies for record growth in olympic wake

U.S. team's success, strong television ratings point to new members nation-wide

Bolstered by record performances and high television ratings at the 2008 Olympic Games, USA Swimming is anticipating its largest single-year membership boost in history. With past Olympics sparking five to 10 percent increases in membership, USA Swimming hopes to see post-Beijing numbers surpass those marks.

"The excitement surrounding the sport of swimming is undoubtedly at an all-time high," said Chuck Wielgus, USA Swimming's executive director. "We absolutely expect that this sort of excitement and exposure will translate to membership growth at our clubs across the nation. The performances by our Olympic athletes were awe-inspiring, and NBC did a wonderful job of sharing those performances with a national audience. We are confident that those factors will inspire thousands to take up the sport.

Following Michael Phelps' six-gold-medal performance in 2004, USA Swimming saw year-round membership spike by seven percent, the highest single-year gain for the organization in more than 10 years. Early indicators suggest that the 2009 bump will exceed that mark.

"We have been hearing from our member clubs across the country since the completion of swimming in Beijing, and they are seeing the effects already," said Pat Hogan, USA Swimming's Managing Director of Club Development.

The clubs we have spoken with tell us that their phones have been busy all month, and that trend is being mirrored cross the country.

Though swim season and registration won't fully begin until early to mid-September, some USA Swimming Clubs are already reporting results.

At the Sarasota YMCA, Head Coach Ira Klein stated that approximately 100 children turned up for the first day of its three-day try-out period. The 400 member club set an ambitious goal of 25 to 30 percent growth which Klein said now appears attainable.

"We knew we set some high goals, but after seeing the numbers at our try-outs, we've got a real good shot at the 25 to 30 percent mark," said Klein. "We held our try-outs at the beginning of a tropical storm, and we still had record numbers. I think it's not just what Michael Phelps did, but all of the publicity and coverage that the sport got, and the positive image that the swimmers projected that are sparking so much interest.

Across the country, the Spokane Area Swim Club is seeing a similar influx.

"We came back from vacation and I had more than 30 voicemail messages, said Todd Marsh, head coach and director. "I was kind of surprised since we haven't even started our recruiting campaign. We're going to have to try to make room for all these new swimmers."

Marsh's wife, Vicky, who works with the SASC and at the local YMCA, said kids aren't the only ones getting into the spirit.

"As a Coach for the Spokane Area Swimming team for the last 20 years and also an employee of the YMCA of the Inland Northwest, I've seen first-hand the impact the Olympics have had on interest in competitive swimming. Michael Phelps' performance has kids excited about swimming competitively, but I've also noticed that adults are swimming and exercising more. It seems that Dara Torres' philosophy of 'age is just a number' is inspiring many adults to train and get in shape at any age."

USA Swimming's highest post-Olympic bump in history came in 1993, following the highly-viewed Olympics in Barcelona. That year saw a 10 percent increase in nationwide membership. In 1997, the Olympic Games in Atlanta sparked an eight percent increase, and membership lifted seven percent in 2005, after the Olympic Games in Athens.

Charlevoix's swim team, the Stingrays, have had over 45 swimmers in the water over the last few months and are always looking for more swimmers to be apart of the swimming fun. Currently the stingrays have swimmers in age from 6 to 17. Call 547-0982.

Charlevoix Walgreens now open

COURTESY PHOTO

After a short length of construction time, Walgreens at the corner of M-66 and US 31 is now open.

The Walgreens at Bridge Street and M-66 in Charlevoix opened at recently.

Employees were busy putting the finishing touches on the new drugstore.

Manager Frank Stead said the store's ideal location will help it thrive in Charlevoix.

"We're on a great corner at the intersection of two major roads and there isn't much competition in the area," he said "It's a growing area with a lot of tourism. We've hired an outstanding staff whose focus will be delivering exceptional customer service to this community."

He added, "We believe customers will appreciate the level of convenience they'll find in our drive-thru pharmacy, automatic prescription refills and our nationwide network of pharmacies."

The new Walgreens will carry thousands of everyday items, including medications, health and beauty aids, toiletries, designer fragrances, greeting cards, small electronics, housewares, soft drinks, dairy products, frozen foods and snacks.

Walgreens also offers convenient services including digital photo processing and passport photos.

Walgreens advanced pharmacy system links all its pharmacies, making it possible for Charlevoix customers to refill prescriptions at any of the thousands of Walgreens across the country.

Walgreens customers can also take advantage of Auto Prefills, a service that marks monthly medications to be refilled automatically, then calls or sends an e-mail to remind you the prescription is ready for pick up.

Walgreens is the only pharmacy that offers pharmacist counseling and prescription labels in 14 languages and large-type drug information sheets for the visually impaired.

"This store will continue the tradition of trust that has guided Walgreens for 107 years," Stead said. "We are committed to providing the most convenient access to high quality pharmacy services and basic needs."

Walgreens will be open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. every day.

Pharmacy hours will be from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturdays and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sundays.

Walgreens is the nation's largest drugstore chain, with 6,479 stores in 49 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

Wojan Window & Door earns Inc. 5000 ranking

Nearly 56 years old, Wojan Window & Door of Charlevoix has earned a ranking in the Inc. 5000, the top 5000 companies in the United States.

Wojan Window & Door Corp. has earned a ranking in the Inc. 5000 for 2008.

The company received a rank of 3212 from the awards committee of Inc. magazine – which celebrates the fastest-growing private companies in America.

"For the second consecutive year, this Inc. 5000 honor is an indication of our plan to keep expanding the business," said company President and CEO Dennis Wojan. "And the ranking reflects our employees' ongoing efforts toward continuous improvement – in areas such as product development, sales support, customer service, supply chain and manufacturing quality."

According to the publication, for more than 27 years the Inc. 5000 has served as a benchmark for the most innovative, dynamic, and successful companies in the nation.

The company Wojan Window & Door keeps "is notable, as Inc. 5000 alumni include Bill Gates of Microsoft, Larry Ellison of Oracle, and many more," said Inc. Editor in Chief John Koten in his award letter. "Our entire team commends (Wojan on its) success, and recognizes the commitment that has gone into building (the) company into what it is today."

Founded in 1952, Wojan Corp. is a Charlevoix, Michigan-based manufacturer of quality aluminum windows and sliding doors for the U.S. marketplace.

The diverse product line covers light, medium and heavy commercial; as well as architectural applications. Wojan serves its fenestration markets from production facilities in Charlevoix and Coldwater Michigan.

was with Cinderella," Wager said.

Performing arts student Jordan McCarthy, a senior, played Cinderella.

"It was wonderful. It really feels good to go help somebody who can't be exposed to the things she wants," McCarthy said. "She was absolutely beaming. She couldn't stop smiling."

Cinderella spent roughly 45 minutes with her number one fan on Nov. 10.

"She showed me her room and we talked about the movie," McCarthy said. "She said it was her favorite because Cinderella got to kiss the prince."

McCarthy hopes her fellow students will volunteer their services to those community members in need as well.

"I think it was a good experience for Jordan. It's not very often we get to do something like this for someone," Wager said. "Some of the other students look up to her and it's good to see her willingness to help other people."

She added, "I know from personal experience how important things like this are. We we're just happy to on the savings the two might enjoy.

"It adds up quickly, and in today's economy, anybody who can do anything to be streamlined and more efficient is doing smart business," she said. "What it's done is fill our empty office space, and I think we will be a more cohesive, united front for Charlevoix."

Bemis added, "We will be working together on different pieces of marketing and advertising. We're looking into the future to do a lot more—this is just the first step in that direction."

A committee, which consists of members of both boards, will meet quarterly in the first year and semi-annually in following years in order to follow progress of the partnership.

Former News-Review staffer publishes book

BENJAMIN GOHS
COURIER EDITOR

"That's Outrageous!"

More than the mere title of a book, "That's Outrageous!" has been a calling card of sorts for author Fred Gray, a former staff writer for the Petoskey News-Review, Associated Press writer and a 20-year veteran of Reuters where he was a senior editor and director of technical operations.

"It is the last great challenge in my 40-year career in journalism and something I have always wanted to do," Gray said. "I felt I had a unique style and the stories were highly personal and worth telling."

He added, "Admittedly an unusual offering, but why not?"

THAT'S OUTRAGEOUS!
Fred Gray

Whether arguing the merits of a story with editors or verbally pinning down public officials until they answered the tough questions, Gray's in-depth knowledge of the obscure married with the experience of a well traveled soul made for a columnist who was at worst incredulous, and at best observant and more than willing to share what he'd witnessed.

"That's Outrageous!" is a collection of Gray's favorite columns during his more than six years with the Petoskey News-Review.

And, while a few columns like "The Press" and "Procrastination" take place elsewhere, much of Gray's book focuses on northern Michigan.

"It's occasionally sentimental, poetic, evocative, and a few columns have left more than one reader in tears, and others convulsed in laughter. Or so they say," he said

Born and raised in Grand Rapids, Gray attended East Grand Rapids High School.

Groomer

Workers gingerly unloaded the ski hill groomer seen here on Friday, Nov. 21 at Mt. McSauba. The fundraiser the following day at the ski hill was a success, but donations are still sought. Call the recreation department at 547-3253. Or donations can be made at city hall.

Ping-Pong, Norwood style

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

The legal back-and-forth which began nearly three years ago between opponents and proponents of a limestone mine in Norwood continues.

Traverse City Judge Thomas G. Power once again voided the Special Use Permit granted to Wayne Wynkoop to operate his Norwood Limestone Mine LLC.

Wynkoop

"He says a conflict of interest still exists in his mind because some of the people who were on the board when I was supervisor are still there," Wynkoop said of Power's decision. "He said the taint was still there—me resigning didn't get rid of that."

Now that the Norwood Township board has on it at least three known members of the Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety (NTCHS), Wynkoop wondered how he will get fair treatment

"That's a huge conflict," Wynkoop said. "I submitted an application last week but how are they going to properly review my application knowing three of them are NTCHS?"

Concerned citizen and Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety member Bill Gnodtke echoed earlier sentiments on the mine issue.

"We continue to prevail once we get out of the township," he said. "He (Power) voided the SUP based on the same reasons as before the conflicts issue with Wynkoop having presided over the board while seeking a Special Use Permit for his operation."

Gnodtke added, "I think the frustration is nothing has changed in all this except the supervisor (Wynkoop) resigned. And Power said a year ago that since he (Wynkoop) nominated them and participated in the selection of people what was the impropriety. It's really frustrating that we had to go through the same thing a second time."

In addition to applying for his fourth permit to operate the limestone quarry, Wynkoop is appealing at least two decisions at the Michigan Court of Appeals.

"The prudent thing to do is wait for the official order," Gnodtke said. "It appears they'll continue to appeal and they'll continue to apply."

Wynkoop said he has only begun to fight

"If they think it's over they've got another thing coming," he said.

No date was set for review of Wynkoop's latest plan by press time.

Thanksgiving is top day for home cooking fires

NFPA urges the public to follow safety tips to prevent fires

Thanksgiving Day 2007 topped the charts once again as the peak day for home cooking fires. According to National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) reports, there were 1,400 home structure fires involving cooking equipment that year, which is more than three times the daily average.

Cooking is the leading cause of home fires and home fire injuries. Each year, hundreds of people in the United States are killed in fires that involve cooking equipment and thousands more are injured. Annually, these fires result in more than half a hillion dollars in direct property damage to homes and their contents.

"Cooking fires can easily be prevented hy following a few simple precautions, such as staying in the kitchen when preparing a meal because fires often start when items cooking are left unattended," said Lorraine Carli, NFPA's vice president of communications. "As much as unexpected guests are sometimes a part of the holidays, you don't want the fire department arriving because your feast is going up in flames."

NFPA offers these tips for safer cooking:

Stand by your pan

- Stay in the kitchen when you are frying, grilling, or broiling food.
- If you must leave the kitchen for even a short period of time, turn off the stove.
- If you are simmering, baking, boiling or roasting food, check it regularly, remain in the home while food is cooking, and use a timer to remind you that the stove or oven is on.
- Keep in mind that you should avoid wearing loose clothing or dangling sleeves while cooking. Loose clothing can catch fire if it comes in contact with a gas flame or electric burner.

No kids allowed

- Keep kids away from cooking areas hy enforcing a "kid-free zone" of 3 feet (1 meter) around the stove.
- If you have young children, use the stove's back burners whenever possible, and turn pot handles inward to reduce the risk that pots with hot contents will be knocked over.
- Never hold a small child while cooking.

Keep it clean

- Keep anything that can catch fire—pot holders, oven mitts, wooden utensils, paper or plastic bags, food packaging, towels or curtains—away from your stove top.
- Clean up food and grease from burners and the stove top.

Char-Em United Way past the 40% mark toward campaign goal

"At this time of Thanksgiving, we want to thank our donors who are reaching deep in their pockets to help us support community services," said Martha Lancaster, United Way Executive Director. "We know that everyone is affected hy the economic downturn, and we are grateful that so many people and businesses have been so generous to United Way and the community. Our theme this year is Live United, and that seems to be striking a responsive chord."

She added, "We are pleased that we are well ahead of dollars raised at this time last year. We have increased our goal 10% in order to meet the increased need for services in the community. The Frey Foundation has offered an additional $20,000 challenge grant if we reach the goal, which is a great incentive."

The United Way campaign raises funds for non-profit health and human service programs serving residents of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

Earlier this year, Char-Em United Way distributed nearly $200,000 to 34 agencies which, in turn, provided services to over 20,000 local residents.

In addition to investing community donations in the local agencies which do the front line work, United Way is involved in many other initiatives: the Day of Caring, Stuff the flus, Project Connect and more.

Funds raised this fall will he invested in community programs in the coming year.

Much of the funds raised by United Way come from workplace campaigns.

Early employee and corporate support for the United Way Campaign has come from numerous local companies.

The Education Division, made up of public schools and North Central Michigan College increased its giving by 33 percent.

The response from employees of the Cities of Harbor Springs, Charlevoix, Petoskey and Boyne City has also been significant.

"Additional gifts have come from other work site campaigns and many generous individual and small business donors," said Lancaster. "New workplace campaigns this year include Circuit Controls, Northwestern Bank, and the Health Department. We have also gained many new donors to our Leadership Circle of individual and business donors who contribute $500 or more each year."

Char-Em United Way is continuing to accept tax-deductible contributions to the 2008-2009 Campaign.

Donations can be mailed to PO Box 1701, Petoskey MI 49770.

Gifts can be made online by going to http://www.charemunitedway.org and selecting "Give."

For more information about United Way call 487-1006 or e-mail at info@charemunitedway.org.

City actions taken

The following actions were taken hy the Charlevoix City Council during their Nov. 17 regular meeting.

ITEM: DEPUTY MAYOR

In brief: Measure to appoint councilman Jill Picha as the deputy mayor

Board action: Approved. 5—1, with Picha the lone nay vote

ITEM: ROUTINE PURCHASE POLICY

In brief: Measure to allow city employees to make routine purchases, i.e. light bulbs, batteries, nails, from Ace Hardware in light of councilman Shane Cole's employment at the store.

Board action: Approved unanimously, Cole abstained

Council agreed to send the conflict of interest policy to city manager Rob Straebel for possible modifications because, council says, the current policy is causing business to hog down. Currently anyone with a connection to any outside business must have prior approval from performing routine business for the city to avoid even the appearance of a conflict of interest.

The ordinance relating to cleaning up after animals was clarified from referring to dogs and cats to include all warm-blooded animals.

ITEM: MT. MCSAUBA FEES

In brief: Measure to increase ski passes at Mt. McSauba.

Board action. Approved, unanimously

City council accepted the election results from the board of canvassers.

The next meeting of Charlevoix City Council is 7 p.m., Dec. 1 in council chambers, city hall.

Stupak supports loans for automakers

U.S. Congressman Bart Stupak (D-Menominee) supports efforts in Congress to provide loan assistance to the Big 3 domestic automakers. House and Senate committees held hearings this week with executives of Chrysler, Ford and General Motors and efforts are ongoing to craft a package that can receive the votes necessary to pass Congress. Although Congress was unable to pass a bill this week, congressional leaders have asked the automakers for written plans on how the loans will help their industry as memhers continue to work toward an agreement.

"The jobs of millions of middle class Americans – and the pensions and benefits of millions more – depend on a vihrant domestic auto industry," Stupak said. "When Wall Street wanted a $700 billion bailout, President Bush and congressional leaders came together to give the Treasury Secretary a blank check in a matter of days. I voted against the Wall Street bailout because there was no criteria for which companies would he hailed out. The automakers are not asking for a handout. They are asking for a loan, which in the current credit crisis only the federal government can provide."

Proposals introduced in the House and Senate this week would provide $25 billion in loan assistance to Chrysler, Ford and General Motors to he paid hack in full with interest within nine years. The loans would come from the existing Wall Street bailout, requiring no new federal spending.

The loans for the automakers would include restrictions on bonuses for employees earning more than $200,000 annually, a prohibition on golden parachutes and provisions to ensure that the taxpayers are the first to get their money back when the automakers reorganize and pull out of the current financial crisis. The proposals face opposition from Senate Republicans and the White House, although lawmakers are continuing to work to reach a compromise.

"As we continue to hear of plans for a $150 billion bailout of AIG and hundreds of billions more for other Wall Street firms, it is unconscionable to deny the domestic automakers loan assistance to help preserve our middle class and the country's manufacturing base," Stupak said. "In the final days of the 110th Congress and the Bush Administration, we have an opportunity to prevent a devastating hlow to our economy and the loss of millions of middle-class johs hy making a critical investment in our domestic auto industry."

One in 10 American jobs are linked to the auto industry, with Chrysler, Ford and General Motors supporting ahout five million American jobs. More than one million American workers and retirees are directly employed or supported by the major automakers, with two million Americans receiving health care henefits through the auto industry. An estimated three million jobs would be lost in the first year if the American automakers collapsed – nearly three times the jobs lost nationwide this year.

"Particularly in the current global economic climate, three million lost jobs is simply not an option I or many of my colleagues in the Congress are willing to accept," Stupak said.

De-Stress and Be Thankful

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

A Look at Life
By Gayle Gennet

Families aren't always together for the holidays.

This incomplete gathering may be due to someone serving our country, working a holiday shift, illness, financial strain, a recent divorce, jealously towards a family member, or a grudge held over since childhood.

Any of these can be reason some of us choose to stay home with our immediate family. If you feel it's getting smaller at your dining room table maybe its time to think about helping others in need.

The Ministerial Association is hosting a Thanksgiving Dinner and all are welcome to attend. This may be the time to take part and join in this community effort and eat with others who may be experiencing loss or seeking company and comfort.

Helping out by cooking, refilling food platters or cleaning up may be the ticket to focus on others rather than focusing on the life situation you are currently facing.

Holidays, as most know can be a stressful time. It doesn't help with the continuous bombardment of commercials picturing the perfect family and everyone getting along.

This time of year is meant to bring feelings of love and cheer but it also brings on stress.

Elizabeth Scott M.S. tells us that more than 80 % of us find the holiday season to be 'somewhat' or 'very stressful'.

Growing up we all played a specific role in our family. You could be the one who was always in charge, or the cut up, the one who always had an opinion, the favored child, or the peacemaker.

You may have out grown those roles as you started your own family and moved away.

When getting together with relatives you may feel pulled toward old behaviors.

Your spouse may be surprised to view your behavior change in the presence of your family members.

It is important to note if you begin to feel pulled and revert back to your old behaviors.

Helpful hints include bringing up new activities or conversation that stay away from heated issues.

Work on being who you are now or at least more true to your self with the people deep down you love the most. Too many activities fun or otherwise may leave you feeling mentally and physically taxed.

Moderation is the key.

Be reminded that eating, drinking and spending too much will result is weight gain, memories of embarrassing behavior and debt long after the season is over.

Too much togetherness is not always a good thing.

Try to balance your time with seeing some of the family alone is separate activities.

Adults without children can feel lonely at this time of year.

It is important to rely of friends or getting involved with Community Christmas dinners or bell ringing for the Salvation Army.

Prioritize your time. If baking, caroling, shopping, sending cards, and visiting family leaves you exhausted, examine what's really important and pick a few to do and skip the rest. Not everyone needs that perfect gift.

Donate to a charity instead or skip gifts altogether.

A phone call wishing someone well is warmer than a card.

Thanksgiving and Christmas is a time set aside to be thankful for what you have and not focusing on what you don't.

We need to be reminded of a quote from Jackie Windspear who said, "Grace is not a prayer said before a meal. It's a way to live."

Giving thanks is the real turkey

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

I sat down to write a list of all the things for which I'm thankful but, as I often do, I got sidetracked by bills and news and life.

All that reality made it difficult to produce the cliché "why I'm thankful" piece I've done in years past. In fact, I'm starting to think gratitude is overrated.

So, without further preamble, I give you my unthankfulness list just in time for Thanksgiving.

I'm not thankful that the wife is nearly finished with her master's degree.

She was in college when I met her and she's gone to school for 13 of the 14-and-a-half years we've been together. Between her work and school schedule, I rarely see her, and I'm just not sure our marriage can survive a sudden increase in so-called quality time.

I'm not thankful that my son is taking driver education. From my experience, 14-year-old boys are not known for their impulse control or sound decision making skills. Besides, the last time I gave him a driving lesson he floored it into a snow bank: an event which led to a broken headlight and another six months off my life.

I'm not thankful that the wife and I decided to look into buying a house. The maze of horrors, false positives and arbitrary rules have given me new respect for the devil and his associates in the real-estate industry.

Don't get me wrong, we're partially to blame. We made the mistake of working over the last couple years to fix our credit. We now score just well enough to qualify for the Mad Max Beyond Thunderdome loan.

The 50-year-old heating oil tank in the basement that looks like it's going to blow is fine, but the tear in the screen disqualifies you; The asbestos in the attic is OK, but the doorway is one inch too narrow; and while I'm sure the radon test will come back negative, the spirits from the Indian burial ground under the basement are definitely going to raise my homeowners' insurance rates.

I'm not thankful the government is taking so long deciding whether to give Detroit auto makers loans or handouts or whatever you want to call it.

While I'm the last one to call for corporate welfare, I'm also not stupid enough to decry free money in my pocket.

And, since I'm looking for a house, I'd like to know now if Michigan's economy is going to turn around or if the wife and I should pack up the Georgie-Boy and hit the open road a la the Wild Thornberries.

But, since I can't relax at camp if a bee is buzzing nearby, I hardly think I could deal with bears and moose chasing me through the woods while the wife films it.

I can almost hear the narration over my screams now: "My assistant Ben has interrupted the courting ritual of the Kodiak bear. That rookie mistake will surely cost him six fingers and a quart of blood."

I know they say to stay calm and play dead, but my first reaction to peril is to emit high-pitched shrieks and flap my arms in panic.

"By my assistant's screams, I can tell the bear's teeth have found bone."

Finally, I'm not thankful that the radio stations decided to start playing Christmas music seemingly earlier than usual. It makes it very difficult to convince the wife that there'll be no gift giving this year (see also: buying a house) when every store and downtown are already full swing with the Yuletide plague.

If there ever was a war on Christmas, it failed miserably.

Judging by the TV commercials urging people to get out there and shop, the anti-Xmas army is in full retreat.

I imagine Santa is operating POW camps in Candy Cane Bay where captured Humanists, atheists and liberal media types are force-fed eggnog and made to watch propaganda films like "It's A Wonderful Life" and "Santa Claus is Coming to Town."

Interrogator elves make short work of these enemy combatants who seek court orders to get nativity scenes off public property.

"Vair ah zee injunction paipuz."

What can I say, my interrogator elves are German.

Meanwhile, some sweaty ACLU lawyer chained to the wall has snapped and just keeps repeating "Every time a bell rings an angel gets his wings. Every time a bell rings an angel gets his wings."

That's my column. Happy Thanksgiving and try not to let the in-laws get you down.

HALLOWEEN FOR THE HUNGRY

Editor:

I wish to thank the youth of Charlevoix that participated in the Halloween for the Hungry food drive. Many diverse items were collected, ranging from soup, oatmeal, rice and cake mixes. I Also wish to thank the community of Charlevoix for the generous donations of food for the pantry. My gratitude goes out to my employer for their financial support of this project. I also wish to acknowledge the help and support of Ted Poley, the youth minister of Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix and Linda Stoll, a Boy Scout leader and church member.

In these times of need, let us al remember the Christian commission as outlined when Jesus' said, "I was hungry and you feed me, naked and you clothed me," and give generously. Next year we hope to expand the scope of the food drive, and I would like to challenge some of the churches in neighboring communities to participate.

SOME QUESTIONS FOR MY OUT OF STATE (MI) FRIENDS AND RELATIVES:

Why do the "bright minds," that drove all those deadly mortgage derivatives down on Wall Street, deserve a bailout, far more than the people (millions) who earn their livings, directly or indirectly, from the American auto industry?

Why should General Motors be allowed to fail; but Bear Sterns and American International (insurance) group get rescued?

I understand that many people, especially on our nation's coasts, do not like American cars, union workers, or car company CEOs; but to listen to your Senators and late night comedy hosts, I find outright insults and a righteous tone.

I don't understand this actual hate and the expressions of "could care less," at the prospect of millions of your fellow Americans (some in YOUR states) losing their jobs; as the result of one or two "Detroit" car makers dying.

Hundreds of thousands of auto related people are suddenly going to be unemployed, and many millions more who earn their livings indirectly, from these auto related people (many your neighbors), are going to be severely affected.

I'm not defending the past decisions of the auto executives, they need to be totally changed in terms of their business model, but the innocent Americans who are now going to suffer from your Senators' callousness, should not hear the brunt of the nation's: "Who cares about the Detroit autos."

Besides the people's jobs lost, who is going to build, in times of war, our tanks, and other needs of defense; are we to go to Toyota and Mercedes?

I can't help but wonder whether George W, and your Senators, would be as "hands off" if we were talking about the American Petroleum Industry!

We're Americans, too

HARD TO BEAR

Editor:

I was very disappointed in your newspaper promoting the shooting of a black bear by a teenager. It is one thing to shoot a deer during hunting season for the meat but to shoot a black bear just for the killing is wrong.

They aren't as plentiful as deer and this killing was senseless. Plus, by showing it in your newspaper it encourages other teengers to go out and kill animals for no reason other than to just hunt and kill them. Will you put more pictures in your newspaper?

Charlevoix is such a beautiful city and the area around it has such natural beauty and the animals are a part of this nature.

Just to shoot a animal for the mere pleasure of killing it—and getting your picture in the newspaper—this is wrong. It is against nature.

There is enough subscribers to your newspaper that do not agree with what you are promoting and therefore you should be prepared to lose subscribers to your newspaper if this doesn't change.

Peggy Ray

RESPONSE TO "HARD TO BEAR"

Editor:

Perhaps getting the facts before you write would be helpful. Did you speak to the hunter in the picture?

Did you ask her if she was just out for blood and just wanted to kill something, or did you find out what her family, like my family, does with the bear?

It wasn't shot just to "kill an animal"—we eat the meat, it is used to sustain our family for the year; as is the deer we harvest, the fish we catch, oh yeah and the cows, chickens, pigs and so forth that are "killed" on the farm and sold to the supermarkets we shop in.

Yes, animals are part of nature, as is the cycle of life and death.

If man did not control the population of the wildlife, you would see so many more dead animals on the roadside, bear in your backyard detroying your birdfeeder, starving and wasting animals from over-population and the likes.

Then, you will expect the DNR to come remove the "nuisance" animal in your yard or on your road.

Every year people have their say about such things and the last I checked, this is a free country, hunting is legal, hunting has been around for much longer that you or I could ever imagine. As a country, we have become so disconnected with where our meals come from that many people have no idea just how that meat or fish comes to be, believe me, it didn't drop out of the sky.

I think there are greater things to be concerned about than a teenager, who is carrying on a long standing family tradition, is staying out of trouble by being involved in something, is out enjoying the nature that God granted us, is bonding with his/her brother, father, uncles and friends and is an ethical and safe hunter.

Don't like it? Sorry, don't look at it.

There are plenty of things I don't like, but I don't complain about them at every turn of the page.

BAZAAR A SUCCESS

Editor:

Many thanks to all those who attended our fifth Annual Advent Bazaar & Tea which was recently held at Christ Episcopal Church.

We are so appreciative of your continued support, not only of our "tea" but the ministries in which we were able to support as a result of this sucessful event.

Proceeds will again benefit the Charlevoix Ministerial Association and the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry.

THANK-YOU, DONORS

Editor:

The snow was swirling around Charlevoix on Nov. 20.

It felt like a pre-winter blizzard. However, I must commend the American Red Cross staff, the Reformed Church staff and each and every scheduled blood drive volunteer for coming to work.

Volunteers delivered their phenomenal homemade cheesecakes, cookies and bars.

The Charlevoix Lions Club did set-up and take-down. Plus, 108 donors presented themselves. I was so grateful to see all of them. The American Red Cross was able to collect 99 pints of blood.

Considering the downturn in the economy, blood donors know that their donation of one pint of blood can mean life itself for up to 3 hospital patients. All it costs the donor is a couple hours, or less, of their time. Thanks to each of you for giving so generously.

Thank you to the City Water and Electric Department for taking the time to put my banner back up after the wind blew it down.

Winter-like weather certainly presents challenges. Thank you, Charlevoix, for surpassing the obstacles so we could go over our goal for the American Red Cross and the sick and injured.

See you Jan. 15 at the Reformed Church for the next blood drive.

Happy Holidays to all.

Smoke detectors for those in need

In support of their mission to help people prevent, prepare for and respond to emergencies, the American Red Cross of Northern Lower Michigan sets their sights at preparing our local communities for single-family home fires by using a two-fold approach. First, they will provide smoke detectors to families in need in our local communities and second, they will offer assistance to our senior population by changing the batteries in their smoke detectors on an appointment basis.

Throughout their service area of Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Emmet counties, the Chapter will be distributing 575 smoke alarms to at risk families using local food pantries. If you are in need of a smoke detector for your home, please visit one of the following locations while supplies last:

Charlevoix County:

Assembly of God Church – Charlevoix

Bible Baptist Church – Charlevoix

Walloon Lake Community Church

Care & Share – East Jordan

"As heating costs continue to rise, it will become imperative for us as an organization to not only be there to provide relief and support to victims of home fires, but also to better educate our community on how to reduce injury in such an incident. This program was received with overwhelming response last year and through grant funding from the Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawa Indians Revenue Sharing Board, State Farm Insurance and the Fire Fighters Association we have been able to triple our efforts this year," said Executive Director, Lori O'Neill.

O'Neill added, "We are also making members of our Disaster Action Team available to change the batteries in your smoke detector if you are a senior citizen living in our service area and would like assistance." To schedule an appointment to have your smoke detector batteries changed, please contact the Senior Center in your area and ask for a sign-op sheet, or call the Red Cross office. Members of the American Red Cross's Disaster Action Team (DAT) will be on the road changing smoke detector batteries."

All members of the DAT team have completed a background check for security purposes and will be clearly identified as Red Cross volunteers.

If you would like more information about how you can obtain a smoke detector or would like more information about the services the local Red Cross chapter provides in the wake of a house fire, please contact the chapter at (231) 348-7666, via email at info@arcnlm.org, or visit their Web site at www.arcnlm.org.

BookTalkers: The Dante Club, by Matthew Pearl
Monday, December 1, 6:00 pm

In Boston, 1865, a group of literary geniuses are putting the finishing touches on America's first translation of The Divine Comedy and preparing to unveil the remarkable visions of Dante for the New World. Their plans come to a halt when a series of murders sows panic through Boston and Cambridge. Only the members of the Dante Club realize that the styles of the killings are directly from Dante's Inferno and its singular account of Hell's punishments. OBITUARIES

Ann C. Kallman: Dec. 6, 1927 - Nov. 18, 2008

Ann. C. Kallman, 80 of Oshkosh died at Aurora Medical Center on Tuesday, Nov. 18, 2008. She was born in Oshkosh, WI. on Dec. 6, 1927, a daughter of the late Lester and Phoebe Lampert Morgan. Ann married Herbert Marvin Kallman on Dec. 26, 1950 in Oshkosh. Herben preceded her in death on Oct. 6, 1992.

Ann was a member of Trinity Episcopal Church. She retired from the Oshkosh School District after twenty years as librarian and media specialist. Ann was a member of the Gem and Mineral Club. Ann loved to travel, and would go to Kentucky to hunt rocks. She also traveled to South America. Ann enjoyed lapidary work and was an artist. She spent many hours at her cabin "up north".

Survivors include her sons, Joel (Judith) Kallman; Eric Kallman, Kris (Denise) Kallman, all of Oshkosh; Arin (Sherrie) Kallman, Charlevoix, MI; five grandchildren, Jessica (Nial) Ellis, Lukas Kallman, Justine (Ryan) Carlson, Annah and Morgan Kallman; nine great grandchildren, Austyn, Madelynn, Alexis, Carlee, Sydney, Sylas, Seth, David and Veda; three brothers-in-law, Jerry Doemel, Oshkosh; William Suenkel, Osbkosh and Paul Kemp, Florida. She was preceded in death by her husband, and three sisters, Mary Kemp, Jesse Suenkel and Phoebe "Sue" Doemel.

Memorial Services were held at Konrad-Behlman Funeral Home- Eastside on Friday Nov. 21, 2008 at 4 p.m. with Fr Steven Powers officiating.

A memorial has been established

Susan E. Vasquez, 53, of Charlevoix, died Nov. 21, 2008, at her home. No services are planned.

Gail L. Smith, 67, of Charlevoix, died Nov. 23, 2008, at her home. Funeral at 3 p.m., Nov. 26, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Burial in Brookside Cemetery.

Donors needed

If you're searching for the perfect gift this holiday season you may not realize that you have the ability to give something for free that will touch the lives of countless others.

The National Kidney Foundation of Michigan says 50 people can be helped when just one person signs up to become a potential organ or tissue donor. There will come a time when you'll have organs and tissues to spare, and now's the time to commit that you're willing to save someone else's life by donating them. It is also possible to donate a kidney or partial liver or lung while still alive, according to the foundation.

As part of its Holiday Gift of Life Campaign, the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan is reminding Americans that for Christmas, Chanukah or Kwanzaa perhaps the greatest present anyone can give is the promise to save or enhance the life of another person.

Right now, more than 3,000 Michigan men, women and children are on the waiting list for an organ or tissue transplant while 100,000 wait nationally. And while they wait, 18 people die each day.

The mission of the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan is to prevent kidney disease and improve the quality of life for those living with it.

For more information on organ donation or to become an organ donor, please contact the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan at (800) 488-1455 or visit www.nkfm.org.

Red Cross Sponsors "Holiday Mail for Heroes" Program

The American Red Cross is pleased to announce that it will sponsor, in partnership with Pitney-Bowes, the national "Holiday Mail for Heroes" program again in 2008.

Last year, the Red Cross reviewed and distributed over 600,000 cards nationally to our wounded service members at hospitals around the country and overseas.

This year, we wish to expand the number of people we touch with the holiday greeting cards by including not only our wounded warriors, but also all service members and their families, as well as veterans.

Our goal is to reach 1,000,000 persons this year to show our appreciation for their service and wish them well over the holiday season, and with your help we will

The American Red Cross of Northern Lower Michigan, based in Petoskey, will be providing greeting cards people can sign for members of our Armed Forces and their families at several locations this month and early next. The chapter would like to thank Mitchell Graphics, Inc. for donating a portion of the greeting cards.

"We are all proud of our service men and women, and it is easy to understand how difficult it is to be separated from family during the holidays. This is a small gesture to let these courageous people know we are thinking of them and wish them well. It is as easy as signing your name, but can mean so much to the troops," stated Lori O'Neill, Executive Director.

Cards will be available for donors to sign at blood drives, holiday open houses and the Red Cross offices in Petoskey.

This effort will go through Friday, Dec. 5.

The Chapter will have a presence and cards available for signing at the Boyne City Open House Friday, Nov. 29; Cheboygan Hospitality Night Thursday, December 4; and the Petoskey Open House Friday, Dec. 5.

For a complete listing of blood drives in our area where cards will be available for signing, please call 347-5984.

If you would like to purchase your own cards and send them along to the heroes in our Armed Forces, you are welcome to do so; however there are some guidelines to follow to ensure a quick reviewing process before they are passed on.

Cards that contain content that may be considered offensive will not be passed on:

- Please ensure all cards are signed
- Please send cards as opposed to long letters which delay a quick review process
- Please do not include e-mail or home addresses on the cards
- Please do not insert photos, money, religious articles (i.e. rosary beads, prayer cards, etc.), glitter, or like items in cards as these items will be removed during the reviewing process
- Phone cards or gift cards will not be accepted with cards. Those wishing to send calling cards or gift cards/certificates should go to www.aafes.com, scroll down to "AAFES Community Connection" and click on "Help Our Troops Call Home" or "Gift Cards/Certificates for Our Troops" in order to send such items
- No 'Care Packages' will be accepted at this address. Those wishing to send care packages should go to www.AmericaSupportsYou.com and click under "Homefront Groups" to find out how to send care packages
- Participants are requested not to send more than 25 cards from any one person or 50 cards from any one group.
- Note: All cards received may be used in program publicity efforts, including appearing in broadcast, print or online mediums
- End Date of the Program: All cards must be postmarked no later than Wednesday, Dec. 10, 2008. Mail postmarked after this date will be returned to sender.
- Please send all cards to:

Military history buff gives thanks by remembering fallen soldiers

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

With the recent passing of Veterans Day, local veteran and amateur military historian Joe Seidel was reminded of a number of Charlevoix veterans who perished in the line of duty.

This is the first in a series of articles on Charlevoix County veterans—from World War I to Vietnam and Iraq to U.S. Coast Guardsmen—who died in service to their country.

"Hubert Olach made it safely through World War II and was attending medical school when he was recalled on active duty and sent to Korea," Seidel said. "He was killed in action and the only man from Charlevoix to have died in the Korean conflict."

Olach is buried in St. Mary Cemetery.

According to Seidel, local boy Earl Cunningham lost his life while serving in the coast guard in February, 1936.

"A lookout reported a strip of ice, three miles long, bad on it five fishermen," he said. "The coast guard launched a skiff with runners and reached the ice flow."

Three of the fishermen were rescued from the runaway ice flow, but two could not be reached.

"One of the rescuers went back for the other two and by this time the ice flow had moved farther from shore," Seidel said. "He got the fishermen into the skiff, but they couldn't make headway. A dingy was sent out but they were unable, because of the severe snow and temperature, to reach the skiff."

One of the men had made it to shore with frozen feet.

Rescuers found the men the next morning, but they were frozen solid

"The channel had to be blasted with dynamite to get the boat through," Seidel said. "They found them around 4:30 p.m. Both men were dead and Cunningham's body was still in position of handling the boat."

Cunningham received the Gold Lifesaving Medal from the coast guard for his effort

The preceding are but two names on the new Veterans Memorial in Charlevoix's Veterans Park.

While the monument contains numerous names of those who died during wartime, Seidel said the American Legion is always looking for more names and more information on the names they have.

"We wanted to update and honor the people we had known were killed," Seidel said. "We're still looking for information and would be happy to get any kind of knowledge or pictures from anyone who might know about these folks.

Call Seidel at 547-2181 or leave your information on the answering machine at 547-9203.

Support military with new license plate

Michigan motorists can show their support for members of the U.S. armed forces with the new Support Our Troops plate that's on sale now.

The state's newest fundraising plate gives $25 for each plate sold to the Florida-based nonprofit group, Support Our Troops, which sends care packages to troops stationed overseas.

"The men and women of America's armed forces stepped forward when their country needed them so it's wonderful to offer the opportunity to be there for members of the military with this new license plate," Secretary of State Terri Lynn Land said. "I'm pleased that Michigan residents now have the opportunity to show their appreciation and support."

The plate costs $35 in addition to the vehicle's registration fee, which is based on the manufacturer's suggested retail price.

Plate renewals are $10 each year. Collector plates also are available for $35, $25 of which goes to the organization.

Michigan joins about two dozen states in offering a Support Our Troops plate. The Support Our Troops organization worked with the Michigan Legislature to approve the plate and the Secretary of State's Office on its design.

The plate features the attractive logo of the Support Our Troops organization, which has a military member standing with a child and an American flag as the background.

Michigan also offers its veterans 25 plates that highlight their service in the military, and in individual wars and conflicts such as World War II, the Vietnam War and the Somalia conflict.

The department earlier this year began selling plates that commemorate service in Iraq and Afghanistan, and also now allows people to personalize their veteran plates.

Besides the Support Our Troops plate, motorists can choose from a number of fundraising plates that support Michigan's public universities and special causes such as protecting wildlife habitat.

For more information about Secretary of State license plate options, visit the License Plate Store online at www.Michigan.gov/sos. Visit www.SupportOurTroops.org for more information about the organization.

Emerald Ash Borer quarantine now inlcudes all lower peninsula

Travelers urged not to move firewood

The Michigan Department of Agriculture (MDA) today revised its Emerald Ash Borer quarantine to consolidate all 68 contiguous counties of the Lower Peninsula into one quarantine level - effective immediately. MDA, however, is asking travelers not to move firewood to help prevent the artificial spread of other exotic and devastating insects like Gypsy Moth. The ban on moving firewood across the Mackinac Bridge remains in effect.

As part of the amendment, Delta and Schoolcraft counties in the Upper Peninsula (U.P.) were also added to the EAB interior quarantine.

"MDA remains committed to protecting the ash resource in the U.P. from the artificial spread of EAB and this amendment simply allows us to focus our attention there," said Ken Rauscher, MDA's Pesticide and Plant Pest Management Division Director. "Although, travelers are now able to freely move firewood in the Lower Peninsula, we are urging them not to do so as there are several other invasive insects - such as Asian Longhorned Beetle and Sirex Woodwasp - that can hitch a ride on it. Please continue to only use local sources of firewood, burn all you buy, and don't take any unused firewood back home or to the next location."

"Campers and hunters are reminded to purchase firewood locally when visiting state parks, recreation areas and state forest campgrounds," Ron Olson, Parks and Recreation chief for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. "Bringing ash firewood onto state forests, state parks, recreation areas, and state forest campgrounds violates state land use rules."

Prior to this revision, MDA's EAB interior quarantine divided the Lower Peninsula into two quarantine levels: 21 counties in Southeast Michigan were Level I and the remaining 47 counties were Level II. This revision effective merges the two quarantines and make the entire Lower Peninsula on level.

"Hardwood firewood is still prohibited from leaving the Lower Peninsula as it is the leading cause of spreading EAB and other invasives. Quarantine violators can still face fines and jail time," said Rauscher. "The inspection station at the Mackinac Bridge remains in place and will continue to prevent hardwood firewood and other regulated ash material from entering the UP."

The addition of Delta and Schoolcraft Counties to the EAB interior quarantine is a result of an EAB infestation discovered in the fall of 2008.

The Delta County quarantine is divided into two levels; the townships of Garden, Fairbanks and Nahma are designated as Quarantine Level II, and the remaining portion of Delta County is Level III.

The Schoolcraft County quarantine is also divided into two levels; the townships of Inwood and Thompson are designated as Quarantine Level II, and the remaining portion of Schoolcraft is Level III. The movement of hardwood firewood and other regulated material out of quarantine Level II and III areas is prohibited except regulated articles may move from Level III into Level II.

EAB is an exotic insect native to Asia that attacks ash trees. In its larval stage, EAB feeds undetected under the bark of ash trees, disrupting water and nutrient flow - ultimately killing the trees in three to four years. First discovered in 2002, the borer is responsible for the death or damage of approximately 35 million ash trees in the LP.

Individuals or businesses found violating the state's EAB quarantine are subject to fines ranging from $1,000 to $250,000 and jail time of up to five years for moving regulated ash materials, including firewood.

Additional information about EAB, quarantine details, and a map of the quarantine boundaries are available at www.michigan.gov/eab or www.emeraldashborer.info.

Santa Parade & Open House

Friday November 28th 5-9 pm

Local Girl Scouts will begin the festivities at 5 p.m. with a Christmas tree-lighting ceremony in Old City Park.

The parade begins at 6 p.m. and the evening's special guest is the Jolly Old Man from the North. Santa will arrive on his sleigh and be joined by some of his elves. Line-up on East Main Street between East and Lake Streets starting at 5:30 p.m.

The parade route will follow Lake Street to Water Street through the heart of downtown Boyne City ending at Old City Park, where Santa will meet with all the children at the historic gazebo. In addition there will be hayrides from 7 to 9 p.m. and refreshments will be served to all of Santa's guests.

For more information, contact Karen Guzniczak at Country Now & Then/Up The Lazy River at 582-2355, the Boyne City Main Street office at 582-9009, the Boyne Area Chamber of Commerce at 582-6222 or email mainstreet@boynecity.com.

Unemployment benefits extended

U.S. Congressman Bart Stupak (D-Menominee) applauded final action on legislation extending unemployment benefits. H.R. 6867, the Unemployment Compensation Extension Act of 2008, extends unemployment benefits by seven weeks in all states and provides an additional 13 weeks of benefits in states such as Michigan that have unemployment rates above 6 percent. This is the second extension of unemployment benefits by Congress this year.

"I have heard from workers across northern Michigan who are out of work and struggling to find employment," Stupak said. "More Americans are looking for jobs than at any time since 1992. With costs increasing for necessities such as food and health care, these individuals need our help – particularly through this holiday season – while they look for work or retrain for a new career path."

H.R. 6867 passed the House on Oct. 3 by a vote of 368 to 28.

The Senate passed the bill unanimously on Nov. 20 and President Bush signed it into law on Nov. 21.

Standard unemployment benefits provide for a total of 26 weeks of benefits.

Earlier this year, Congress extended the standard unemployment benefits by 13 weeks for all states.

With the latest extension, unemployed Michigan residents would be eligible for an additional 20 weeks for a total of 59 weeks of benefits through Aug. 27, 2009.

Michigan residents with questions about unemployment benefits can contact the Michigan Unemployment

Traveling Stingray

COURTESY PHOTO

More than 40 Charlevoix Stingray swimmers traveled to Gaylord on Saturday, Nov. 15 for a quad meet with Gaylord, Oscoda and Alpena. The team finished in second place. The Stingrays had several swimmers qualify for the M.T.S.L. State Swim Meet. They include: Ethan Siegwert, Brad Klinger, Casey Riley, Alex Gooch and Chrystal Schemanski. The team travels back to Gaylord for an Invitational on Dec. 6. If you have any questions regarding the team or want to join, contact the Charlevoix Pool at 547-0982.

Winter driving saftey tips

Because more crashes involving property damage occur during the winter months than at any other time, AAA encourages motorists to prepare for adverse cold weather driving conditions by preparing their vehicles.

Winter Car Care Tips

First, make sure your vehicle is prepared for winter driving. AAA offers the following tips for motorists departing on winter road trips:

* Have the battery and charging system tested. A fully charged battery in good condition is required to start an engine in cold weather.

* Have the brakes checked to ensure they work properly and apply smoothly, which helps prevent the wheels from locking on slick surfaces.

* Make sure the tires are properly inflated. Under-inflated tires can be dangerous, and may suffer damage. Remember, the air pressure in your tires can decrease 1-2 psi for every 10 degree drop in outside temperature.

* Use the tire size recommended by your vehicle's manufacturer for best snow traction. Overly wide tires tend to float on top of the snow, reducing grip.

* Make sure the engine coolant provides anti-freeze protection down to the lowest temperatures you are likely to encounter; -30oF/-34oC is a good guideline.

* Visibility is critical in adverse weather conditions, so replace worn windshield wipers that streak, and be sure the washer reservoir is filled with a winter solvent that will not freeze.

* Keep the gas tank at least half full at all times to minimize condensation build-up that can lead to gas line freeze-up. If the fuel in your area does not already contain alcohol, use a gas line "dryer" additive periodically to absorb moisture.

* Carry a winter driving kit for use in the event of an emergency. The kit should include a small bag of abrasive material (sand or salt), a small snow shovel, a snow brush, traction mats, a flashlight with new batteries, window washer solvent, an ice scraper, a cloth or roll of paper towels, jumper cables, a blanket, warning devices (flares or triangles), and extra clothes.

* Program your radio for AM 530 or 1610 stations, as you may see signs referencing those frequencies for important traffic advisories.

* Carry a cellular phone and car charger. Program the phone with important numbers including a reliable roadside service provider that can assist you during inclement weather if you have signed up in advance, such as AAA emergency road service (800) AAA-HELP or your local AAA club number.

You can visit a local, reliable auto repair facility for assistance in preparing your vehicle for winter driving. If you are not familiar with facilities in your area or unsure of how to identify a reliable and professional facility, AAA can assist with a listing of AAA Approved Auto Repair facilities that have met and maintained high professional standards. A free listing of AAA Approved Auto Repair facilities is available by visiting the automotive page of AAA.com.

Because more crashes involving property damage occur during the winter months than at any other time, AAA encourages motorists to prepare for adverse cold weather driving conditions by driving defensively while on the road.

Drive With Caution

When taking to the road during winter weather, remember to drive with caution to help maintain your safety as well as that of passengers, fellow motorists and roadside workers. AAA recommends the following tips for winter driving:

* Before starting out in snowy weather, take time to remove the snow from the entire car so it doesn't blow onto your windshield or the windshields of other drivers. Make sure your mirrors and lights are clean as well.

* Drive with your low-beam headlights illuminated.

* When the roads are icy, slow down and allow extra time to reach your destination. Even better, delay your trip, stop early for the day, or take an extended break from driving. Using an online service such as the TripTik Travel Planner at AAA.com can help you find restaurants and lodgings.

* Allow sufficient room for maintenance vehicles and plows, stay at least 15 car lengths (200 feet) back and, if you need to pass, go to the other vehicle's left.

* Watch for icy surfaces on bridges and intersections, even when the rest of the road seems to be in good condition.

* If you get stuck in snow, straighten the wheel and accelerate slowly. Add sand or salt under the drive wheels to help avoid spinning the tires.

* If your tires lose traction, continue to look and steer in the direction you want to go. If the drive wheels start to spin or slide while going up a hill, ease off the accelerator slightly and then gently resume speed.

* Look farther ahead in traffic. Actions by other drivers will alert you to problems and give you extra seconds to react.

* When changing lanes, avoid cutting in front of trucks, which need more time and distance than passenger vehicles to stop.

* Don't use cruise control in precipitation and freezing temperatures.

* Remember that four-wheel drive helps you to get going quicker, but it won't help you stop any faster.

* Apply constant, firm pressure to the pedal with anti-lock brakes.

Donate venison to feed the needy

Since 1991, Michigan sportsmen and sportswomen have been helping to feed the hungry in their communities by donating some of the venison they harvested through the Michigan Sportsmen Against Hunger program.

As the project gears up for its 17th season this fall, deer hunters are reminded there are a number of ways they can contribute to the program.

Hunters may contribute their time or make monetary donations, as well as giving part — or all — of their deer harvest to this charitable cause.

"This is a grassroots effort, a program undertaken by our sportsmen and sportswomen who want to make a positive contribution to their communities," said Ray Rustem, who represents the Department of Natural Resources in the MSAH program.

The DNR became more directly involved with MSAH during the 2005 season after the Legislature enacted a law allowing the agency to collect money to help pay for processing venison to be donated to the hungry.

Previously, the effort was supported entirely by volunteer and sportsmen's groups including the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, Safari Club International, Michigan Bow Hunters Association, Ted Nugent United Sportsmen of America and the United Methodist Men's Club.

"Wild game is good, nutritious food and the liberal hunting regulations in Michigan make it possible for many hunters to shoot more deer than they can use themselves," said MSAH president Dean Hall. "Sharing the bounty of the hunt is as old as humankind and last year's deer season provided hunters with more than 26 million pounds of venison. Just a fraction of that harvest could provide thousands of meals to the needy.

"Half of those who receive food are the very young or the very old -- the most vulnerable citizens of our state," Hall continued. "And nearly half of the families needing help are the working poor; families who cannot afford groceries despite having someone in the household who works. Hunger strikes people in rural, suburban and urban communities.

It's not just a big-city problem; 40 percent of Michigan's hungry live in rural or suburban areas."

The need for food assistance has never been more pressing.

According to the Michigan League for Human Services, one in eight families in Michigan receives assistance through the USDA food stamp program. (You might remember that Gov. Jennifer Granholm recently challenged state citizens to limit their spending on food for one week to the same amount as a basic food stamp grant.)

Community-based food banks also say they are feeling the pinch from growing need.

"On a local level, our food banks are seeing up to a 40 percent increase in the need for food because of the economy," said Jane Marshall of the Food Bank Council of Michigan. "We need all the help we can get this year."

Last year, almost 23,000 pounds of venison was provided to local charities by hunters who were participating in the MSAH program.

Venison donations must be made through participating licensed processors. Hunters may drop off the entire deer at a processor; the MSAH will pay the processor at a rate of 80 cents a pound for the venison that makes its way into community food banks.

"What we pay the processors doesn't really cover their cost -- it's a charitable contribution on their part, too," Hall said. "We've worked through the Michigan Food Bank to identify reputable charities."

Hunters do not have to donate their entire deer. This year, MSAH has initiated the "Give a Pound Program." Hunters, who are having their deer butchered by a participating licensed processor, can tell the processor how much meat they wish to donate to the program. The processor will make sure the meat is picked up by a MSAH volunteer and distributed to a local food bank or soup kitchen.

Sportsmen and sportswomen also can make a direct donation to the program when they purchase their licenses, either online or at a license agent. But hunters who already have purchased their licenses can still contribute by getting online and going to the state's e-license sales system or by contacting MSAH directly.

The MSAH program continues to grow as more sportsmen and sportswomen -- and community food banks -- find out about it.

"For many years, hunters in Michigan have done an outstanding job in donating venison to help families in need in all parts of the state," said DNR Director Rebecca Humphries. "We are grateful for the support of hunters who donate venison, whether it's as little as a few pounds or the whole deer."

where he played football and the trombone in the marching band. Feats he said he performed "almost at the same time."

Gray's connection to northern Michigan began many decades ago when he traveled here to visit relatives.

"I spent part of my summers as a kid at my grandparents' cottage at Point Nipigon, located on the Straits between Mackinaw City and Cheboygan," he said.

Before his long career in the news business, Gray worked for the Kent County Road Commission during two summers while attending Dartmouth College in Hanover, New Hampshire.

"It was great for the physique but the road crew spent far too much time reading girlie magazines in the back of the pickup during rainstorms," He said.

Gray spent the summer of 1963 studying Russian language and civilization, his major, in Munich with five other Dartmouth students, and this may explain his love of borsch.

"We lived with families in Poland and traveled through the Soviet Union in a Volkswagen camping bus for a month," he said. "We had an Intourist guide accompanying us at all times to keep us on the straight and narrow, and spent eight hours as we departed at the Czech border being debriefed by the KGB."

See Gray's column "Nina" for more on his travels in Russia.

"I remained in Munich when the others returned to college and found a job for eight months as copy boy in the multi-language Radio Liberty," he said. "During the summer of 1964 I traveled through Europe, sleeping in barnyards and out-of-the-way places."

Following college, Gray attended two years at the University of Michigan Law, then transferred to the graduate school of journalism school before joining the Associated Press in Detroit in 1970 and beginning his career in journalism.

Some of the highlights of Gray's career include covering the death of Walter Reuther when his Lear jet crashed at Pellston airport in 1970, and later editing the copy of AP Vietnam correspondent Peter Arnett on the Foreign Desk, meeting Peter and the other AP and Reuter correspondents when they passed through New York and during his travels elsewhere.

"I was in charge of Reuters coverage of the Olympics in Calgary and Atlanta," he said. "At Reuters I put together the daily news schedule for the Americas and sent it to London for inclusion in the world digest, then helped edit the major stories of the day."

Aside from publishing his first book, Gray is currently the Director of Communications and Web site Development for Emmet County.

"I truly believe we are blessed to live in this incredibly beautiful region. Our goal is to attract people from all over to live, recreate, retire, and invest in the county. It's a dream job," he said. "We have done some innovative things such as produce quality brochures highlighting the strengths of the area, advertising on the Petoskey News-Review Web site, and producing videos of local citizens expounding on why the have chosen to live here. They include Dan Musser III, president of the Grand Hotel; David Johnson, the visionary founder of Bay Harbor; entrepreneurs Larry Beck and Justin Rashid; Cameron Brunet-Koch, president of NCMC, and others equally brilliant."

Medicare's annual open enrollment is now through Dec. 31

Plans Change. People Change. Shop and Compare.

Each year plans change what they cost and what they cover. Now is the time for people with Medicare to review the changes being made by their current plan and compare it to others to make sure it still meets their needs. Those who don't have prescription drug coverage can also enroll in a drug plan during open enrollment.

All people with Medicare should:

- Review the 2009 costs for their current drug and health plan. (Look at premium, co-pays and deductibles)
- Compare the cost and coverage to other plans in their area. (Check to see if the plan covers their medicines, works with their pharmacy and doctors, and covers the services they need)
- Choose a plan that meets their needs.

You'll find helpful Medicare tools and information on this page. Use these resources to compare the cost or benefits of Medicare health or prescription drug plans in your area. Get answers to your Medicare questions. Learn how to lower health care costs and stay healthy. Find out about local resources in your community. By working together for better health, we can reach those who are unaware, unsure, or unable to make their health plan decisions and apply for the extra help.

Visit http://www.cms.hhs.gov/center/openenrollment.asp to download brochures on drug plans, Medicare Part D and more.

Seniors who do not have Web access may call the Courier at 547-6558 for a copy of the brochures.

Fast Facts for Michigan in 2009

- 99.98% of people in a PDP can switch to a PDP with a lower premium in 2009.
- 27 PDPs offer enhanced benefits or services.
- 29 PDPs have $0 deductibles. • 2 PDPs have premiums under $25.
- $14.80 is the lowest monthly premium for a PDP.
- $44.10 is the lowest monthly premium for a PDP with any generic coverage in the Gap.
- 11 PDPs have a premium amount of $0 for people who qualify for the full extra help.
- 37.80% of people with Medicare will have access to a Medicare Advantage plan with Drug Coverage (MA-PD) for a $0 premium.
- 13 MA-PDs have a $0 premium.
- 100% of people with Medicare will have access to a MA-PD with a $0 drug deductible.

Each year plans change their premiums and what they cover. People with Medicare should review the changes being made by their current plan and compare it to others to make sure it still meets their needs. Make changes to Medicare prescription drug plans from now through Dec. 31.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
Ordinance No. 735 of 2008

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE CODE OF THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX BY REVISING SECTION 9.121, 9.124 AND SECTION 9.122A.(1) OF CHAPTER 113 OF TITLE IX BY REQUIRING THE REMOVAL OF DROPPINGS FROM ANY WARM-BLOODED ANIMAL, REQUIRING CONTAINERS FOR THE DROPPINGS OF AN ANIMAL AND TO REVISE THE DEFINITION OF AN ANIMAL

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

SECTION 1. Revision of Section 9.121

Section 9.121 of Chapter 113 is revised so that it shall read as follows:

9.121. Removal of Droppings.

No person owning, keeping, in possession of or in charge of any animal shall allow the animal to defecate on any public property, public sidewalk, public right-of-way, or upon any other type of public property, or upon any private property without the permission of the owner of the property unless:

(1) The person who owns, keeps, is in possession of or is in charge of the animal shall immediately remove all droppings deposited by the animal by a sanitary method and dispose of the droppings in sanitary method which may include placing the droppings in a public refuse receptacle if the droppings are in an airtight container or airtight bag.

SECTION 2. Revision of Section 9.124

Section 9.124 of Chapter 113 is revised so that it shall read as follows:

9.124. Container.

No person owning, keeping or in charge of an animal shall permit the animal to be on any public property, public sidewalk, public right-of-way, or upon any other type of public property whatsoever, or upon any private property without the permission of the owner of the property, unless the animal is accompanied by a person who has in the person's possession a container or bag of sufficient size to collect and remove the droppings of the animal. The person accompanying the animal shall show the container to any City police officer or authorized city personnel if requested.

SECTION 3. Revision of Section 9.122.A.(1)

Section 9.122,A.(1) of Chapter 113 is revised so that it shall read as follows:

9.122. Animal Control.

A. Definitions.

(1) Except for Section 9.121, the term "animal", as used in this Chapter, shall mean a dog or a cat. In Section 9.121, the term "animal" shall not be limited to a dog or cat, but shall mean any warm-blooded organism other than a human.

SECTION 4. Severability.

If any provision, clause, sentence or paragraph of this ordinance or the application thereof to any person or circumstances shall be held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect the other provisions of this regulation which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the provisions of this ordinance are declared to be severable.

SECTION 5. Effective Date.

This Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its enactment.

ENACTED this 17th day of November, 2008.

Plenty of snow for Flurry Fest

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

With the fledgling festival in its second year, Flurry Fest organizers expect the best one yet.

According to Charlevoix Downtown Development Executive Director Keith Carey, the first festival was merely an abbreviated venture.

"Thanks to mother nature it truly was a Flurry Fest last year, and with the season's first snowfall it seems folks were inclined to hit the road and go home early," he said. "But, we estimated we had between 250 and 300 people come down to the festival tent and enjoy hot chocolate and music from the Petoskey Steel Drum Band."

Some additions to this year's expanded Flurry Fest include music from Gary Stutzman's Tuba Christmas, the steel drum band and the North Country String Band to name a few.

The new snowgroomer will be down from Mt. McSauba and the city will have emergency service vehicles like fire trucks and ambulances for the kids to check out.

To accommodate the increased number of events, a portion of Bridge Street, from Clinton to Mason Streets will be closed from noon until 9 p.m.

The festival itself is from noon until 7 p.m.

There will be a free children's' movie at Charlevoix Cinema from approximately 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. and, shortly

Beaver Island makes list of Top Cops

ELAINE WEST
NORTHERN ISLANDER EDITOR

PARADE Magazine recently announced their annual awards for outstanding police work. Ranking number one on their list of "Top Cops" for 2008 was none other than Michael Niles, son of Beaver Island resident, Jackie Madigan.

Niles, 43, was born and raised in Aurora, IL, where he still resides with wife Becky and daughters Anneke, 11 years old, and Katrina, six years old. He has served as a Police Officer with the Aurora Police Department for 21 years.

Niles was determined to solve four "cold case" homicides and led an investigation that resulted in the arrest of 31 gang suspects charged with 179 counts of first degree murder. Niles and Special Agent Cory McGookin of the FBI traveled all over the U.S. and Mexico interviewing witnesses who could testify in the cases.

PARADE's coverage of Officer Niles dedicated work on behalf of solving the crimes including the story of a six year-old boy, the innocent victim in a gang shooting. The youngster was killed when visiting his grandparents and shots were fired into the room where he was sleeping. After more than 10 years, one suspect in that case has now been convicted of first-degree murder and another awaits trial.

Jackie Madigan attended the general assembly of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, where Niles was named as the 2008 Police Officer of the Year. "It was very special to him," said Madigan, who explained that the assembly and the awards luncheon were very impressive and populated with many high ranking law enforcement officials, including the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security.

The Boyne Area Free Clinic will be open Friday, Dec. 5.

Located at 624 State St., Boyne City, the clinic's phone number is 582-4605.

Existing patients are encouraged to call on Fridays only for questions and prescription assistance for the short term until the new clinic is up and functioning to full capacity.

New patients will have full access from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. every Friday beginning on Dec. 5.

Dr. Richard Mansfield is the clinic's Volunteer Medical Director.

The clinic is dedicated to reaching out to the underinsured to provide health care services through volunteer service and community support.

It also coordinates with the regional medical community to find avenues to help people with conditions beyond our capabilities.

The clinic provides care for people with basic medical needs as well as providing continuous primary care for people with chronic conditions such as diabetes, heart disease, high blood pressure and others.

It is the purpose of the Boyne Area Free Clinic to ensure that all people who need access to medical care are provided that opportunity.

This clinic is a charitable organization driven by volunteers who desire to help provide these vital health care services.

The clinic will provide care to any person in need without the ability to pay.

It will provide this service in the beginning on a weekly basis, but as more funding becomes available and more medical volunteers make themselves available we hope to operate several days per week.

Community members can help by donating generously to support this crucial mission for our neighbors in need.

Charlevoix County land use plan

CHRISTINA ROHN
NEWS-REVIEW WRITER

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission is in the process of updating its future land use plan (master plan) for the first time in nearly 30 years.

On Monday, Dean Solomon, county planning commission member, made an appearance at the Melrose Township Planning Commission meeting requesting feedback on the newly-reworked document.

According to Solomon, the state allows the county a 63-day review period, during which time they plan to visit the county's village, 15 townships and three cities.

Solomon said county planning commission members began requesting feedback in early November, and have given a deadline of Jan. 7, 2009, for all comments.

"Hopefully we'll be flooded with comments," Solomon said. "This (land-use plan) is an overall vision for the entire county — it helps us have consistency between the townships, the cities and the village.

"It provides a tool for them to see the bigger picture of the county and take that into consideration when they're developing their own plans."

Randy Frykberg, Melrose Township zoning administrator/planner, said this update will be beneficial to all parties involved.

"Anytime we have an ordinance change or a master plan issue and the county reviews it, they need a document to review it against — they need a standard," he said. "It's not a direct impact on us, but it's a gesture that we're trying to work together; especially in this economy, we've got to work together.

"I think it can help each township — as we look at (the county's) goals and objectives, we can use some of those too."

The Melrose Township Planning Commission said it would discuss this issue further at its next regular meeting, 7 p.m., Dec. 15.

Solomon said once the Charlevoix County Planning Commission receives all comments from the townships, cities and village, they will make several revisions before conducting a formal public hearing. Once this has taken place, they will make the proper modifications before sending it to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners for a final review.

"Hopefully it won't be too much into the next year — we hope to have this completed in the first two months of 2009," Solomon said.

Frykberg said Melrose Township recently discussed making revisions to its own master plan, however, the township will now wait for the county's results.

"I think it'd be best to wait and see what the county does and use it as a spring board, and then move forward with the (township's) master plan," he said.

Reason for the season

FAITHFUL SERVANT

Stephen Guthrie

There is a sign painted on the window at the entrance to St. Mary School that makes this bold statement: Jesus is the reason for the season.

There was a time in America where that statement would have been regarded as a simple statement of common knowledge and belief, with nothing controversial about it.

Today, though, it would be easy to find someone quick to argue a statement like that could only be made by someone narrow minded or ignorant enough to believe in the God of the Bible and his son Jesus, the presumed messiah come as a savior to those who feel no need to be saved.

Drawn from this population would be folks who resent the Salvation Army bell ringers and don't want children singing carols in the school Christmas program.

They are from the same minority that is so put off by anything Christian they write Xmas each time they should be spelling out Christmas.

And this is the same politically correct group that has somehow turned the time honored and joy filled blessing "Merry Christmas" into a seasonal greeting to be avoided because of its potential to offend.

In just a few quick years, advertisers, businesses, and politicians – basically, anyone who relies on the public's favor - have largely replaced "Merry Christmas" with "happy holidays" as the politically correct greeting of the season.

Examine the history of Christmas, though, and you come to the conclusion that for the two-plus centuries of America Jesus has, indeed, been the reason for the season.

In the third and fourth centuries, as the Roman empire under Constantine began to embrace Christianity, the newly organized church began looking for ways to replace popular pagan festivals with Christian celebrations.

The solution was to co-opt the existing festivals and replace pagan deities with Jesus.

Although it has long been widely believed the actual birth date of Jesus was in late April, His birthday celebration replaced the popular Roman celebration Saturnalia and a number of other pagan festivals based on the winter solstice Dec. 22.

By the time our western European ancestors were ready to bring their traditions to the new world, Jesus was already the reason for the season.

What I find curious and comical is how those who choose the term "happy holidays" do so without realizing it is a shortened form of the once common English term "holy days". The holy days of Christmas, or Christmastide, refers to the season of Christmas, which includes the four weeks of advent preceding Christmas Day and goes until the day of Epiphany, Jan. 6.

So as the symbolic battle of Merry Christmas vs. happy holidays plays out in advertising and greeting cards, and even as those who crave the public's approval are busy distancing themselves from anything Christian, the nation at large still lives and works in what is essentially a Judeo-Christian society clinging to Judeo-Christian traditions.

And Christmas and Easter, bolstered by their Jewish counterparts of Passover and Hanukkah, are irrefutable examples of how school, work, and commerce all pivot around traditions that really matter to people in America. Traditions that are historically Christian.

The Easter and Christmas holidays that bookend Christian tradition bring commerce to a halt, close schools and government, and cause us to rearrange our family priorities and schedules. They give us cause to pause, to take a break to reflect on and celebrate what really matters to us.

This is true even for people who would not count themselves among the faithful. The reason? We are a people who came from a strongly Christian heritage, and it is part of who we are.

Our constitution, with its emphasis on equitable treatment under the law and the protection of individual liberties, was drawn by men with overwhelmingly Christian values.

All the great charitable institutions – and the spirit of charity which distinguishes the United States among nations - grew out of the Christian tradition of caring for those in need.

Our first universities, which formed the basis for our system of higher learning, began as Christian schools and seminaries.

The great leaders of our nation learned to read by reading the Bible, where they absorbed the Judeo-Christian values and moral code by which they governed.

At our very heart we are a nation of Christian values and traditions.

And at the heart of Christmas lies a celebration of the birth of a savior into a world who would not receive Him.

So that's why if I see you during this upcoming period of holy days, I will greet you with the politically incorrect but heartfelt and joy-filled blessing "merry Christmas".

And that's Christmas with a capital C.

Economics and ecology

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Ear to the Ground

By Roger Knutson

We are reminded daily by television and newspapers that we live in a world economy, how interconnected the world's national economies are and how economic problems in one place reverberate around the world like a stone thrown in a pond or the complex web of a spider.

This interconnectedness comes as a surprise to ecologists.

Both ecology and economics get their name from a Greek word, oikos, which means roughly "home" or "household."

It is safe to say that the whole world is our home and what happens anywhere is likely to affect everywhere.

The first solid ecological evidence of the oneness of the world arrived in the 1950s.

Both the U.S. and the then Soviet Union had been testing nuclear bombs.

Everyone knew how locally devastating such bombs were. We had all seen photos of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, where the first nuclear bombs were dropped to end World War II.

We did not know how far-reaching the effects of nuclear bombs exploded in the atmosphere were until it was proven that the radioactive products of those bombs were appearing in the bones and teeth of children across the United States, half a world away from where they had been detonated.

Radioactive material, put into the atmosphere in one part of the world, turned up in may other parts of the world.

This information was frightening enough to bring about the cessation of atmospheric testing of nuclear weapons.

It is now, or at least should be, common knowledge that the whole Earth's air and water are intimately connected and that local circumstances can produce global consequences.

Our knowledge of economics seems to be lagging behind our ecological knowledge. Money now moves so easily and quickly around the world—much faster than air or water.

Apparently few knew or even suspected that banks in Iceland could be rendered insolvent by the issuing of bad mortgages in the U.S

Apparently toxic assets can be as hazardous worldwide as toxic radioactivity.

If economists did consider this possibility, they seem to have said, "Everyone is making tons of money, everything must be all right."

Ignorance of that magnitude is not bliss, it is extremely dangerous; as dangerous as exploding nuclear bombs in the atmosphere without knowing what the worldwide outcome will be.

We can only hope that economists show, in the future, as much diligence about money flows as ecologists did with the spread of radioactivity a half century ago.

LETTERS to the editor

YOUR RIGHT TO EXPRESS XMAS

Editor:

Each year the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) and its many like-minded allies deliberately bully individual citizens, schools, and government officials into removing any mention of Christ or Christianity from the public celebration of Christmas.

Christmas has historically been one of the most celebrated holidays of the American people. Misconceptions and controversy about the fictitious "separation of church and state" and the celebration of Christmas has led many public officials to "remove Christ from Christmas" in places such as schools, parks, libraries, and government offices.

This was not the intent of the founding fathers. No court has ever ruled that the Constitution requires government officials to censor Christmas carols, eliminate all references to Christmas, or silence those who celebrate Christ's birth.

In order to eliminate any confusion with regard to your right to publicly celebrate Christmas, the following will equip you to dispel the myths and excuses that are used to silence the public celebration of Christmas.

Religious Christmas carols may be sung by individual students or by a group of students during school activities such as choir, Christmas programs, and other events.

School officials may refer to the school break in December as a "Christmas holiday."

The Supreme Court has acknowledged with approval that government has long recognized holidays with religious significance such as Christmas. Congress has proclaimed Christmas to be a legal public holiday.

School districts may not ban teachers or students from saying Merry Christmas.

The Supreme Court has stated that teachers and students do not "shed their constitutional rights to freedom of speech or expression at the schoolhouse gate.

In order to violate the Establishment Clause, a teacher would have to use his or her authority to promote religion to his or her students.

The Supreme Court has stated that "the Bible may constitutionally be used in an appropriate study of history, civilization, ethics, comparative religion, or the like. The Court explained that the "study of the Bible or of religion, when presented objectively as part of a secular program of education," is constitutional under the First Amendment.

The Supreme Court has held that the Constitution "affirmatively mandates accommodation, not merely tolerance, of all religions, and forbids hostility toward any. First Amendment rights accompany each student throughout the school day both inside and outside the classroom. School officials must permit students to convey religious sentiments through their school assignments, selection of reading materials, and clothing that conveys a religious message through words or symbols.

Public school officials may display religious symbols such as a nativity scene if they have a clear educational reason for doing so. The Supreme Court has held that the display of a nativity scene is constitutional if it is displayed for legitimate secular purposes, such as to celebrate a holiday and to depict the origins of the holiday.

Public officials may display religious symbols such as a cr'eche or nativity scene.

To determine the constitutionality of municipal religious displays, lower courts evaluate whether the religious display passes the Supreme Court's three-prong Lemon test. Under the Lemon test, courts will inquire "whether the challenged law or conduct has a secular purpose, whether its principal or primary effect is to advance or inhibit religion, and whether it creates an excessive entanglement of government with religion."

The Supreme Court has held that the display of a nativity scene is constitutional if it is displayed for legitimate secular purposes, such as to celebrate a holiday and to depict the origins of the holiday.

Courts often look to the endorsement test or "The Three Reindeer Rule," which asks whether a reasonable observer would believe that the municipal display constitutes an endorsement of religion by the government.

This Rule requires a municipality to place a sufficient number of secular objects in close enough proximity to the cr'eche to render the overall display sufficiently secular.

The Constitution does not require government officials to eliminate all public religious expression of Christmas. The right of public school students and public officials to publicly celebrate the Christmas holiday is protected by the U.S. Constitution and the various court decisions. It's okay to say Merry Christmas, regardless of the legal threats from the ACLU and its allies. To support and encourage others in your community to exercise their right to say Merry Christmas you'll be part of an important effort to protect and preserve the rights of people everywhere to practice and observe their beliefs. We must protect what we have, reclaim what we've lost and shape who we will become. Resources available on request.

DIAL "P" FOR PENSION

Editor:

Much of the controversy over saving the auto makers has to do with paying the pension obligations of union auto makers.

These total $62 billion, and many in government think they are undeserved in addition to being unaffordable.

This of course brings up the subject of all pensions, private and government.

According to Business Week, just 13 percent of those working in the private sector receive pensions while 100 percent of those in government get them.

According to CNN, 50 percent of all government expenditures are pension costs.

The estimated total of federal, state and local government pensions is a staggering $5 trillion.

There are too many examples like that of the administrative assistant working for the city of San Francisco who recently retired with a yearly pension of $147,000.

When a government pension fund loses money, it is made up by the taxpayer. When a private pension fund loses money, it means less pension.

According to the Wall Street Journal, we are nearing the point where we cannot afford government pensions in today's global economy, which government created.

Naturally, we can never expect the politicians to deny pensions to their friends and relatives, so it will take a referendum to eliminate the government pensions that make us uncompetitive in today's global economy.

WATCH OPPOSES ALBA WELL

Editor:

Water Air Team Charlevoix (WATCH) has been observing the Bay Harbor leachate situation for several months with considerable interest and with growing concern.

It was a major topic of discussion at our recent meeting.

We learned from Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council that only 20 percent of the leachate comes from the East Park.

The CKD (cement kiln dust) piles in this area are being properly sealed with a cap and up-gradient diversion wells installed.

The remaining 80 percent of the leachate comes from CKD piles under the golf course. Properly scaling and installing wells reduces the leachate flow by as much as 40 percent.

We feel that injecting the leachate into a well at Alba is a very bad idea because the science indicates that it could affect the Lake Charlevoix watershed, and possibly other watersheds, in the long term.

We feel that the problem should be handled on-site.

Therefore we have passed the following resolution: WATCH is opposed to the Alba injection well.

The CKD piles under the golf course should be capped and up-gradient diversion wells should be installed as was done in the East Park.

This should be done in a timely manner.

The Petoskey waste water treatment plant should be upgraded to handle the leachate and reduce the mercury and other heavy metals from entering the bay.

This should also be done in a timely manner.

WINE LOVERS BEWARE

Editor:

I work for a wine retailer in Madison Heights.

The vast majority of our business consists of us delivering wine to our clients. Our Madison Heights team has developed sound relationships with clients all over Michigan, and we are proud that we can personally cater to our clients' tastes and their budgets when we make suggestions to them. It is this localized, personal touch to Michigan consumers that gives us a leg up over out of state wine retailers and out of state wineries.

The first week of December, the Michigan House of Representatives will likely vote on House Bill 6644.

Supported by the Michigan Liquor Control Commission and the Michigan Wine and Beer Wholesalers Association, this bill would make it illegal for my Michigan-licensed wine company, and other Michigan wine retailers, to deliver wine to our Michigan customers.

The aforementioned advocates of this bill claim that this is the only way to stop minors from purchasing wine for delivery online, in spite of there not being one known instance of a minor successfully purchasing wine from an out of state retail wine shipper in any of the dozens of states that allow the deliveries.

To penalize actual local retailers due to a phantom risk posed by out-of-state retailers seems foolhardy and misguided.

The practical ramifications of House Bill 6644 passing would be catastrophic for my company, as well as hundreds of other wine retailers and catering companies. We would be forced to employ less delivery drivers, warehouse workers, and even customer service reps. During this particularly trying holiday season, the Michigan State House of Representatives would be better served considering a bill that can create more jobs, not one that is certain to take jobs away.

Boss Anniversary

Kenneth J. Boss and Myrna Rae Veenstra were married Nov. 8, 1958 at the Charlevoix Church of God by the Rev. George Majors. Their residence is at 203 Alice St., Charlevoix and have lived in this area life long. Kenneth was employed at Puff's of Petoskey and Myrna worked for Dr. Martin as a nurse at the Charlevoix Public School.

Their children are Scott and Cindy Boss of Charlevoix, Brenda and Randy Wilson of Pendleton, IN, and Cindy and Joe Powers of Grayling. They have nine grandchildren.

A November 30 Anniversary party was held to celebrate Kenneth and Myrna Boss' 50th anniversary. The party was from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Community Reformed Church and hosted by their children.

NWA Christmas concert

Northwest Academy to celebrate holidays with music at 6:30 p.m., Dec. 16 at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix.

The Northwest Academy Bands, Strings and General Music classes will be presenting holiday music. Young aspiring vocalists from grades Kindergarten through sixth will be performing under the direction of Don Neidert.

The string classes will also present some selections suitable to the time of year.

The Beginning Band which is made up of students in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades will be the first group to show off their new found talents on traditional band wind and percussion instruments.

Their final number will also feature the intermediate band as the two groups share the stage and perform together.

The intermediate Band which is made up of 7th and 8th grade students will continue with the selections that they will present to honor this special time of year.

This band will be joined by the Advanced Band and the two groups will perform a song that offers many of the favorites of the season and the audience will be invited to join in a "sing along" that will be sure to be an evening favorite.

The Advanced Band which features grades seven through 12 will then take the stage and present many new selections that will be sure to please the audience and leave everyone with a song in their hearts.

Please come and join us for this special evening of festive music.

OBITUARIES

Gail L. Smith: April 24, 1941 - November 23, 2008

Gail L. Smith, 67, of Charlevoix, died Sunday, Nov. 23, 2008, at her home in Charlevoix.

Funeral was 3 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 26, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where friends may met the family from 1 p.m. until the time of the funeral.

The Reverend Michael Arp officiated and burial was in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Gail was born April 24, 1941, in Detroit to Samuel and Vera (Campbell) Kelly.

She moved with her family to Charlevoix in 1946, and was a 1959 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Gail married Gary D. Smith on Feb. 6, 1960, in Ellsworth.

From 1964 to 1972, she worked as a cook at the Charlevoix A&W.

Gail retired in1996, after working for 17 years as a custodian for Charlevoix Public Schools.

She attended the Bible Baptist Church on May Street in Charlevoix.

Gail was an avid gardener, loved to cook and take care of her family.

She was especially proud of her Irish heritage.

Gail is survived by her husband Gary D. of Charlevoix; daughters, Kathleen (Brian VanStembrouck) Leitner of Charlevoix, Karen (Stanford, Jr.) Follette of Mt. Pleasant; son, Kyle (Shannon) Smith of Charlevoix; grandchildren, Gary, Darick(Bobbie), and Ryan Leitner; Adam and Samuel Follette; Logan, Taylor, and Kelsey Smith; brothers, Don Kelly, and Delbert (Mary Ann) Kelly of Charlevoix, Paul (Della) Kelly of Arizona.

Gail's daughter Koreen preceded her in death in 1993, and her sister Beverly McClanaghan in 2008.

DEATH NOTICE

Jean Hanley Smith Sager, 93, of Charlevoix, and formerly of Indianapolis and Petoskey, died Nov. 14 in Charlevoix. Service is noon, Dec. 3, at St. Mary Church. Visitation 11 a.m. at Winchester Funeral Home. Burial in Indianapolis.

Betty J. Hodgkinson, 76, of Charlevoix, died Nov. 26 in Charlevoix. Burial in Greenwood Cemetary, Petoskey.

MENSA scholarships available

Each year, the American Mensa Education and Research Foundation (MERF) makes available more than $60,000 in regional and national scholarship funds.

In addition, Northern Michigan Mensa is offering a local scholarship of $500.

Prizes are awarded based on essays written by the applicants regarding their academic and career goals.

Applicants must be citizens or residents of the United States and planning to enroll in a degree program at an accredited institution of higher learning in Fall of 2009. Membership in Mensa is not a requirement in this scholarship contest, nor is there any age requirement. The competition ends on Jan. 15, 2009, and all essays must be submitted by that date to be eligible for consideration. For more details, those interested should go online to www.nmm.us.mensa.org and click on Scholarships. Alternatively, applicants can phone (231) 275-6735 for more information.

NCMC scholarships up for grabs

The Jack Kent Cooke Foundation is accepting nominations for scholarships available to students and recent alumni from community colleges.

The initiative, called the Undergraduate Transfer Scholarship Program, awards up to $30,000 annually per recipient to help students and recent alumni from community and two-year institutions pursue four-year degrees at any accredited college or university in the United States and abroad. Scholarships cover tuition, room and board, fees and books.

Current students at North Central Michigan College are eligible, as are alumni who earned a degree at the college since spring 2004 and have not since transferred to a four-year college.

The application deadline is Jan. 15, 2009.

All candidates from NCMC must be nominated by the faculty representative, Erick Haight. Contact him at (231) 348-6648.

Please contact the Chamber at 547.2101 or manager@charelvoix.org with your nominations by Thursday, December 4th.

Stay Informed with Legislative Action Alerts

The importance of an informed citizenry – and in this case, an informed chamber member – is vital for keeping on top of ever changing laws, regulations, and proposed state and federal legislation. Being informed is one thing, but the next step is doing something with this knowledge and being able to take action.

The need for chamber members to communicate with elected leaders becomes increasingly important when legislation is being debated that will impact their bottom line. The Government Relations Division will be sending special email action alerts to chamber members on critical issues so the voice of northwest Michigan business is heard by contacting legislators in Lansing and Washington, DC.

Action Alerts are available only to chamber members, so email your name, business name and address, along with the email addresses to Jamie Callahan in the Government Relations Division at jamie@tcchamber.org or jamie@northwestmichiganbusiness.com to receive these alerts.

Fresh Christmas trees are festive and fragrant

Michigan Department of Agriculture (MDA) Deputy Director Gordon Wenk joined Marsha Gray, Executive Director of the Michigan Christmas Tree Association recently to celebrate the start of the fresh Christmas tree season in Michigan

"Thanksgiving weekend marks the unofficial beginning of the holiday season," said Wenk. "I encourage residents to select a real Michigan Christmas tree - - a fresh, high quality tree benefits the environment, supports local farmers, and Michigan's economy."

Michigan produces and sells more than a dozen tree varieties on a wholesale level -- more varieties than any other state. Our state has approximately 42,000 acres in commercial Christmas tree production, with an annual farm gate value of over $41 million. The top six counties, Missaukee, Oceana, Wexford, Montcalm, Allegan, and Manistee, account for just over 50 percent of the Michigan's total Christmas tree acreage.

The industry also generates an additional $1.3 million in sales of wreaths, cut boughs, garland, and other cut greens.

"Many family holiday traditions include a trip to a Christmas tree farm this time of year to choose and cut the perfect tree," said Gray. "Michigan ranks third in the nation in the number of Christmas trees harvested, supplying approximately 3 million fresh Christmas trees to the national market each year."

After the holidays, there are many uses for recycled real Christmas trees. Many communities chip the trees and use the chippings for mulch, hiking trails, playground areas, animal stalls, or landscaping. Whole trees are recycled for an even greater variety of uses: river shoreline stabilization, sand dune erosion prevention, marshland sedimentation, fish habitat, winter garden decorations, wild bird feeders, even hazardous chemical clean-ups.

For more information on Michigan's Christmas tree industry or to find a Christmas tree farm in your area, visit MDA's Web site at www.michigan.gov/mda or contact the Michigan Christmas Tree Association at 800-589-TREE or at www.mcta.org.

Michigan Christmas Tree Facts & Tips:

Christmas trees typically take seven to ten years to grow to a harvestable size. By planting new trees for a holiday season seven to 10 years in the future, farmers are establishing an environment that produces oxygen, reduces wind and water erosion, improves water filtration into soil, filters sediment from rainfall, and provides a habitat for wildlife. Real Christmas trees also absorb carbon dioxide, which helps counteract possible greenhouse gas effects.

After the holidays, there are many uses for recycled real Christmas trees. Many communities chip the trees and use the chippings for mulch, biking trails, playground areas, animal stalls or landscaping. Whole trees are recycled for an even greater variety of uses; river shoreline stabilization, sand dune erosion prevention, marshland sedimentation, fish habitat, winter garden decorations, wild bird feeders, even hazardous chemical clean-ups.

The climate, soils and topography of Michigan permit the production of many popular species of Christmas trees. The top Christmas tree species in Michigan is Scotch Pine. The three other leading species are Douglas Fir, Fraser Fir and Colorado Blue Spruce.

Consider these tips when purchasing a pre-cut tree or cutting your own:

- Look for a well-shaped tree with few bare spots;
- The tree should be fragrant, not musty;
- The needles should be green and have good retention; shake the tree to allow brown interior needles to fall out, green needles should not fall off a healthy tree;

- Store the tree in a cool, sheltered area to protect it from the
- elements until it is brought inside and decorated.

In addition, to help keep trees fresh throughout the holiday season and prevent Christmas-tree related fires:

- Make a straight cut across the trunk base and place the tree in a stand filled with at least one gallon of fresh water. Expect a freshly-cut Christmas tree will absorb up to one gallon of water the first day.
- Keep trees watered with at least one quart of water daily to maintain fragrance and beauty. A watered tree not only looks better but also is more fire resistant. If the water level in the tree stand drops below the end of the tree stump, a layer of sap can form over the cut stump in just a few hours, making it impossible for the tree to absorb water.
- Place trees away from heat sources such as fireplaces, televisions and radiators.
- Check tree lights to ensure that they are consumer-inspected (UL-listed or Factory Mutual-approved).
- Inspect lights and cords before hanging them to ensure they are in good working order and fault-free.
- Remember to unplug tree lights before going to bed or leaving the house.

BE CAREFUL when hanging Christmas lights

As the holiday season gets under way, Detroit Edison reminds customers that a quick check of electric lights and decorations before installation can provide peace of mind and a safe holiday season

"Safety should be the first priority when installing holiday lights," said Larry Kaufman, DTE Energy's energy efficiency expert. "Just because lights worked effectively last year does not mean that they shouldn't be inspected this year. A few minutes spent checking cords and plugs for potential hazards reduces the possibility of a fire."

Every year, tragedy strikes during the holiday season when house fires start because of faulty or damaged electrical cords and improper use of electrical outlets and electrical decorations. Home decorators should use lights only as directed by the manufacturer. Lights should be thrown away if they have frayed wires, damaged sockets or cracked or missing insulation.

Check for the Underwriters Laboratory (UL) label before stringing lights and setting up other decorations. This label indicates the product has been tested by UL engineers for foreseeable safety hazards such as fire and electric shock. Remember also to check the color of the UL label. Indoor-use only light strings are marked with the UL's green holographic label, and light strings for indoor and outdoor use have the UL's red holographic label.

With so many different types of electrical holiday decorations currently on the market, it is important to read the safety, use and care instructions provided with each holiday lighting package and store these instructions with the decorations for reference the following year.

Seasonal lighting is an inexpensive way to put a sparkle in the holidays. Most lights cost from less than one cent to 7.5 cents per string to operate for six hours, depending on the wattage. For lights that blink on and off, the cost is halved. New LED holiday lights are on the market now that can cut lighting costs even more.

In addition to visually inspecting electrical holiday decorations, Detroit Edison offers the following tips so everyone can enjoy safer holidays:

Indoor lighting

· Do not overload electrical circuits.

Do not use more than three sets of standard lights on each extension cord

Do not insert new bulbs or change fuses when light sets are plugged in

Keep lights away from carpeting, furniture and drapes.

· Turn off decorative lights before you go to bed or leave home.

· Make sure household smoke detectors are working properly

Outdoor lighting

· When hanging lights around your roofline or in trees, be sure to survey the area for overhead power lines and maintain at least a 20-foot distance.

· Use only outdoor extension cords with molded plugs and sockets.

· Keep all electrical connections off the ground and hang sockets downward to prevent water from seeping into them

Do not run electrical cords through door or window openings where they can be damaged.

For added protection, plug outdoor lights and decorations into circuits protected by ground fault circuit interrupters (GFCIs).

MDOT seeks public comment

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) is seeking public comment on its draft 2009-2013 Five Year Transportation Program.

Comments should be e-mailed to MDOT Five-Year Program@michigan.gov before Tuesday, Dec. 30.

The draft 2009-2013 Five Year Transportation Program is available on the MDOT Web site at: www.michigan.gov/mdot5yearplan.

The Five Year Transportation Program, a continuous, interactive dialogue with the department's customers and stakeholders, has become the anchor of MDOT's project development and delivery systems. Each year, a new fifth year is added and program/project adjustments are made to the previous four years.

Duo donates to replace Rex

Donation to replace the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office K-9 Unit Rex who recently died of cancer

Sheriff George T. Lasater advises that two fourth graders from Boyne City Elementary School took it upon themselves to have a cookie bake sale at the Boyne City Glen's this weekend to raise money to help pay for the replacement of the Sheriff's Office K-9 dog "Rex" who recently died of cancer.

The girls raised $204.72 for the Sheriff's Office fund to replace "Rex."

The fourth graders from Boyne City Elementary School were: Alysse Whittet, age 10 and Emma Vondra, age 9.

Sheriff George T. Lasater states this is typical of Charlevoix County residents who get involved when there is a need and these young ladies reflect the overall positive community involvement and attitude.

Understanding Water Damage
In flooding, water typically spreads out and flows through the path of least resistance, especially toward substructures and lower floors. Porous materials, such as wood, sheetrock, or other building materials, will soak up water which can even travel upward. The resulting effects can include discoloration, swelling, broken adhesive bonds, delamination (flooring separation), warping, and overall breakdown of building materials that make up your property. The more time that elapses prior to restoration, the greater the damage. Even if the water evaporates unassisted, it can cause damage to ceilings, walls, and contents.

ServiceMaster Don't Panic is a highly reputable, licensed, and insured water damage service provider. ServiceMaster Don't Panic is endorsed by several major insurance carriers. In addition to our years of experience, our qualified technicians have completed advanced training in water mitigation, dehumidification systems, and mold remediation and corrosion control. They also seek continuing education to learn about new techniques and equipment to better serve you in your time of need.

The answer is always, Yes we can.

At ServiceMaster Don't Panic, our commitment is to our customers. We believe that restoration and cleaning is not a commodity but an opportunity to provide remarkable service. That's why we focus on mastering the basics. Consistent service delivery is foundational to our business.

We partner with our customers to understand their unique needs and continuously monitor the overall condition of their facilities. What's more, customers get the personalized attention of a local business combined with the best practices and stability that you would receive with a Fortune 500 company.

We pride ourselves on going above and beyond all expectations.

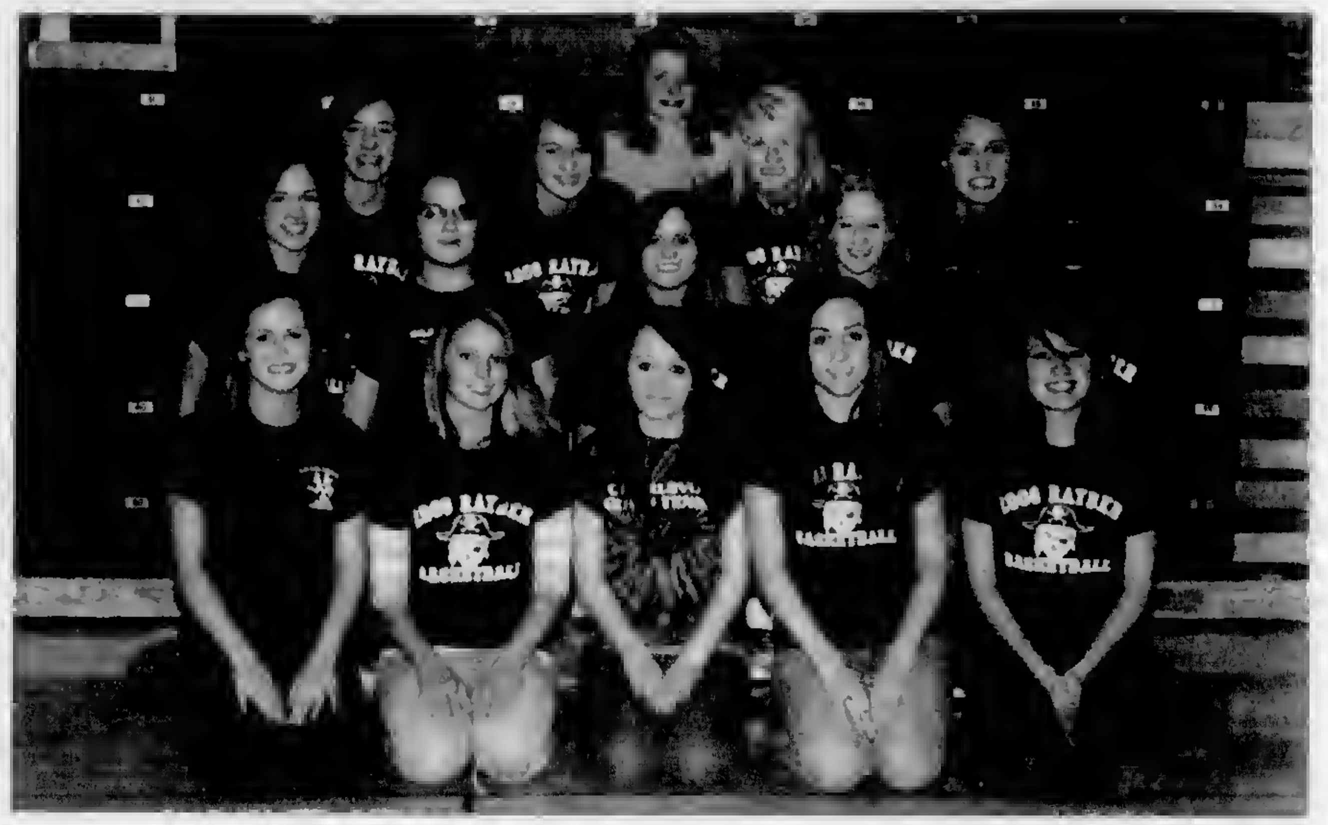
Cheerleading & Wrestling TEAMS

Cheerleading



The Charlevoix Rayder cheerleaders hope to make history again.

According to cheer coach Erin Nickel, her 16 girls aim to win the conference championship for the second year in a row.

"We're really big this year, but we have a lot of work to to because of the different experience levels," Nickel said. "They're doing a great job and it means so much to them."

Nickel's squad is made up of 15 girls and one alternate.

"We're scheduled for 12 meets," she said. "We'll be traveling to tournaments in the U.P. And as far south as Harrison."

The Rayder cheerleaders will be hosting the Lake Michigan Conference in February.

The cheerleaders met in Boyne City last week for their first contest of the year.

"We anticipate a lot of competition out of our league," Nickel said. "Bellaire is a team my girls admire so we like to play with Bellaire and those strong teams."

She added, "We try to beat each other, but in a really friendly way."

Wrestling

Change is the name of the game this year in politics and sports.

Changing the way his team wrestles is necessary to the Rayder wrestling team's survival, according to coach Craig Golovich.

"Take-downs is the game now," he said. "If you can take a guy down and escape from the bottom, that's all it takes to win today."

Despite having only two seniors this year, Golovich's team is stacked with younger athletes who have been wrestling for years.

The addition of the a wrestling clinic given by Olympic wrestler Roy Hall has, Golovich said, is helping his athletes understand why they do many of the things they do.

"He's (taken) Davison to nine titles in 13 years, and they're Division 1," he said. "The wrestling's changing so much and I'm trying to catch up with it. If you go downstate and see how high school kids wrestle, it's a lot different. The competition is so tough and a take-down will win a state meet."

Assistant coaches J.D. Pop and Rip Hankins will be helping Golovich ready his team for what he expects to be stiff competition from wrestlers from Kalkaska and Traverse City St. Francis.

Team captains Mat Golovich and Zeke Daman are expected to do well this year, coach Golovich said, so long as the two remain healthy.

"They gotta stay healthy. I've had too many of them at the end of the eyar get hurt and that's all it takes to take you out of a competition," he said. "I expect them both to be at the state tournament this eyar."

Boys' basketball

Though still in practices and deciding final cuts last week, varsity boys' basketball coach Keith Haske has a good feeling about this year's team.

The Rayder boys come back to work following a strong 22-3 season with a tough loss in the first game of regionals to McBain.

"We have eight seniors coming back, so we have a very solid core group of kids," Haske said. "These kids have played together all these years and they just do a great job of knowing what each other's going to do, and I know basketball is very important to them and it means a lot."

Returning seniors include Thomas Parrish, Justin Friske, Weston Bryan, Brock Yenglin, John Putman, Colin McDonough and Scott Silberhorn.

"I think we'll go where those guys take us," Haske said. "Our kids work hard in practice and that does pay off."

According to Haske, escaping the hype some other teams enjoy can actually work to his advantage.

"Traverse City St. Francis has been ranked number one in the state in the preseason polls," he said. "It's great for once not having everyone putting pressure on you, but they also have great kids or they wouldn't be ranked number one."

Haske added, "I'm tremendously excited. I really like our seniors and our younger kids. They give us additional depth and help us continue on with what we've been doing in Charlevoix for several years."

Have a Great Season!

Girls' varsity basketball

With eight seniors and four juniors, Brett Erskine's Rayder girls' varsity basketball team is down a couple players from last year.

And, Erskine said, his players will have to give their all to make it to regionals again.

"We're just going to be working on a lot of pressure defense this year and trying to turn the ball over to get those easy baskets," he said. "We'll try our best and see what happens the same as we do every year."

With an influx of new coaches in the league, Erskine is certain his girls will face some high-energy teams.

"Our league is always tough and we should see some pretty good competitive teams," he said.

Some top players on Erskine's roster include Tammy Potter, Shauna Spencley, Meredith Rich and KC McCary.

"These kids are going to have a great year," Erskine said. "They're just doing really well so far and the other girls are falling into line. We'll just keep getting better and the plan is to peak at the end of the year when we get into the tournament."

Skiing

With nearly half the Charlevoix-East Jordan co-ed downhill ski team returning, coach Sue Miller is optimistic her team will do well.

"I've got a lot of experience and some new kids," she said. "Granted, we haven't been on the snow yet, but I have great attitudes and the kids all get along and we have a great team."

Miller added, "We're looking forward to a good year."

This year's team is a fairly even mix of boys and girls—the girls having gone to state-level competition last year.

"Our mission is just to have the athletes become better skiers, better teammates and just to enjoy the sport," Miller said. "Obviously our goal is to go to state finals, but there's always big things, little things, tactics, techniques that we have to work on until then, and every athlete is different."

Miller looks forward to strong competition by Boyne City and Petoskey, but added that the entire league has great teams.

"I'm excited; especially with the early snow," she said.

The first race is Jan. 6 in Boyne Highlands for the Petoskey Invitational.

Republican Convention

The next Charlevoix County Republican Convention shall take place at 5 p.m on Wednesday, Dec. 3rd at the Charlevoix County Courthouse Commissioners Room, 301 State St.

There shall be a meeting of the duly elected precinct delegates and the at-large delegates. The purpose of this convention is to elect the county Republican officers.

The regular monthly meeting of the Charlevoix County Republican Party follows the Charlevoix County Convention.

For further information contact chairman John E. Haggard at 547-6634.

Thinking about starting your own business?

A great place to begin is at the "How To Start a Business Class, being held from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., Dec. 8 at the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance office in Boyne City. The session, presented by Wendy Wieland, NLEA/SBTDC Business Consultant, will acquaint participants with the process and the tools needed to begin developing a new business. Sessions are held monthly.

While the class is free, registration is required. Please contact Sara at NLEA (231) 582-6482 or e-mail sara@northernlakes.net.

FLURRY

after 3 p.m. there will be music and hot chocolate in a 30 by 60 foot heated tent.

"We've got a couple things going on outside the tents, too," Carey said. "The Seaports Great Lakes group will be roasting chestnuts throughout the event and Santa's reindeer will be downtown from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m."

There will also be a snowboarding demonstration set to begin at approximately 3 p.m. in East Park.

"It will feature the Go Film Local crew and the Training Grounds crew from Mt. McSauba," Carey said. "A half dozen or so experienced riders will be doing a little showing off."

He added, "The anchor event that helped develop Flurry Fest is the open house. Merchants will have finger foods and some will have their own entertainment in stores and great sales and fantastic gift ideas. The idea is to bring folks downtown for a community celebration and also patronize downtown businesses."

Safe gifts are at the top of everyone's list

The holidays are quickly approaching and the holiday shopping season is already in full swing.

But, everyone must remember to make sure that all the toys and gifts they buy for the children on their lists are safe and age appropriate.

With so much attention focused lately on dangerous toys with high lead content, those that pose choking hazards, and toys that are poorly constructed, it is more important than ever to take precautions.

Last year, more than 170,000 children under the age of 15 were treated at the emergency room for toy-related injuries, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission. More than 80,000 of those were to children ages 5 and younger.

The majority of those injuries were to the head and face. Lacerations and contusions made up most of these injuries.

Prevent Blindness America, the nation's oldest eye health and safety organization, has declared December as Safe Toys and Gifts Month.

The group encourages everyone, whether they are buying gifts for a charitable giving tree or for their own family or friends, to make conscientious decisions based on what is best for the child.

"It can be very tempting to buy the hottest toy or game, but it may not be the best choice for your child," said Hugh R. Parry, president and CEO of Prevent Blindness America. "It is much more important to make sure that the gifts we give are safe."

Prevent Blindness America suggests the following tips to help keep this holiday season safe and bright for children:

- Inspect all toys before purchasing. Monitor toys that your child has received as gifts to make sure they are appropriate for your child's age and developmental level.
- For older children, give gift certificates to movie theaters, the child's favorite restaurant, or retail stores that allow the parents to choose an appropriate item.
- Make recommendations to family members and friends about gifts that you feel are appropriate for your child.
- Remain aware of recalled products. Unfortunately, some toys that have been recalled or banned may still be available online.
- Gifts of sports equipment should always be accompanied by protective gear (such as a basketball along with eye goggles). The American Academy of Ophthalmology estimates that there are 40,000 sports-related eye injuries each year.
- Any toy that is labeled "supervision required" must always be used in the presence of an adult. Keep toys meant for older children away from younger ones.
- Always save the warranties and directions for every toy. Repair or throw away damaged toys.
- Avoid toys that shoot or include parts that fly off. BB guns and air guns should not even be considered toys.
- Inspect toys for sturdiness. Your child's toys should be durable, with no sharp edges or points. The toys should also withstand impact. Dispose of plastic wrapping material immediately on toys as they may have sharp edges.
- Don't give toys with small parts to young children. Young kids tend to put things in their mouths, increasing the risk of choking. If the part of a toy can fit in a toilet paper roll, the toy is not appropriate for children under the age of 3.

For more information on safe toys and gifts, visit Prevent Blindness America at www.preventblindness.org or call (800) 331-2020.

JAN. 24

Bill Schwab, juror of the 2009 photography exhibition at the Crooked Tree Arts Center had a fascination with photography at an early age. The center's 28th Annual Juried Photography Exhibition is hosted from Jan. 24 through April 4, 2009. Schwab, born in Detroit in 1959, started with a Kodak Brownie and a home darkroom kit he received as a gift from his father and taught himself to process film and contact print at age 12. Schwab earned a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in photography and graphic design from Central Michigan University in 1983. Schwab also spent a time in New York working with and assisting under commercial/fine art photographer Alen MacWeeney. Having become familiar with the photographer's work through the pages of Aperture and American Photography, he saw in it a similar style to his own.

Having been shown in many group and solo exhibitions in the US and abroad since the early 1980's, Schwab's work continues to become more widely known and sought after. It is in turn becoming represented in a growing number of private, corporate and museum collections around the world. Artwork for the 2009 Juried Photography exhibition will be accepted at the Crooked Tree Arts Center from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., on Jan. 16 and 17, 2009. All work must be dependent primarily on the photographic process. The 28th Annual Juried Photography Exhibition is open to all Michigan photographers 18 years or older and to members of the Crooked Tree Arts Center. Each photographer may submit up to two entries. Works must not be previously exhibited at Crooked Tree Arts Center. Work must be delivered and picked up by the photographer who created the work unless a signed release from the artist accompanies the person delivering the work allowing the work to be displayed at CTAC. All photographers are responsible for delivery and pick-up of their work. The opening reception will take place from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., Jan. 24. For more information please contact Crooked Tree Arts Center at 461 East Mitchell St., Petoskey. Call (231) 347-4337, or go on-line at www.crookedtree.org.

Anonymous 4, Choral quartet

Crooked Tree Arts Center's Virginia McCune Performing Arts Series welcomes Anonymous 4, a choral quartet renowned for their unearthly vocal blend and virtuosic ensemble singing, on Sunday, December 14 at 3 p.m.

Ruth Cunningham of Manhattan, Marsha Genensky of California, Jacqueline Horner-Kwiatek from Ireland, and Susan Hellauer from the Bronx combine musical, literary and historical scholarship with contemporary performance intuition as they interweave music with poetry and narrative.

Anonymous 4 will present The Cherry Tree – named for the miracle ballad of Joseph and Mary, the earliest text of which survives from a Coventry Play, circa 1400 – which persisted in many forms, making its way into medieval British carols of the mid-15th century and into British and American traditional ballads.

Performing Mervele noght iosep and As I lay up on a nyght, along with other much-loved medieval carols, like Nowell synge we, Make we joye, Synge we to this mery cumpane, and Hail Mary, the group will also perform the monophonic 15th-century ballad carols Newell: Tydings trewM, and Lullay my child: This ender nithgt, along with the well-known lullaby carol of the Nuns of Chester, Qui creavit celum. Traditional American Christmas songs with British roots – A Virgin Unspotted, The Shepherd's Star, Star in the East and William Billings' joyous 4-part fuging tune Bethlehem – will also be performed.

This December performance premieres Anonymous 4's newest program for the 2008 holiday season, and it will be recorded for harmonia mundi usa in February 2009 for Fall 2009 release.

In addition to their unmatched medieval repertoire, Anonymous 4 has often reached out into the realm of contemporary music and has premiered works by Peter Maxwell Davies, John Tavener, Steve Reich, and Richard Einhorn. The group most recently expanded their repertoire to include traditional music of the British Isles and America. Anonymous 4 has performed in major venues and festivals throughout North America, Europe and the Far East. The ensemble has appeared on numerous radio and television programs, including Garrison Keillor's "A Prairie Home Companion," "CBS Sunday Morning," A&E's "Breakfast With the Arts," and NPR's "Weekend Edition." Anonymous 4's award-winning recordings have attained unprecedented popularity, rising to the top of Billboard's classical chart, and selling almost 1.5 million copies worldwide. Purchase tickets now for a special holiday gift for friends and family. Patron tickets: $50; CTAC members: $20/adults; $8/students; and non-members: $25/adults; $10/students. Tickets are available at Crooked Tree Arts Center, www.crookedtree.org, 231) 347-4337, or visit the Arts Center at 461 E. Mitchell Street, Petoskey.

Transformers II actor Kevin Dunn ran a benefit for Beaver Island's Joddy Croswhite.

"Joddy's a great guy. He and his family are very sweet people. I saw that they needed help, and I wanted to do something," Dunn said.

Joddy is a musician. He is 56 years old, and has just been placed on the University of Michigan's liver transplant list.

Joddy's wife, Beth, is a counselor at Beaver Island City Schools. She said her husband is very sick, and lately

Schools, city partner on fiber optic network

State of the art communications just around the corner

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Following years of planning by Charlevoix Public Schools officials and the city, preliminary work began last week to connect the Schools and the city's various departments.

According to city manager Rob Straebel, not only will the new technology offer video conferences, high-speed Internet and connectivity among city departments, but it will save them money by eliminating their current antiquated phone system.

"Partnering with the school district is an efficient use of taxpayer funds," Straebel said.

Per the tentative agreement between the district and the city, Charlevoix Public Schools will retain 48 of the 72 strands of fiber—which are actually ultra pure glass strands as thin as a human hair—with the remaining 24 strands allocated to the city.

Light carrying data from phones and computers travels the glass strands by bouncing off mirrored walls called clads.

The school district will pay $120,414 for the installation of the backbone of the fiber optic system and the city has agreed to give use of its conduits and right-of-ways in exchange for the 24 strands as well as pay for any lines which extend from the mainline to the various locations in the city.

The city, while not helping to pay for the connections among the schools, will be responsible for paying for its connections to the fiber optic system.

"The individual segments of fiber optics for the city include five buildings: City hall,

Unemployment rises

RYAN BENTLEY
NEWS-REVIEW WRITER

Whether comparing it with the previous month or the same period a year ago, October's unemployment rate turned out to be higher for Northwest Michigan.

The Michigan Department of Labor and Economic Growth released monthly statewide and regional statistics on joblessness Tuesday, with the 10-county Northwest Lower Michigan region showing a 9.2 percent unemployment rate for October. The area's unemployment had stood at 6.2 percent a year earlier, and at 8.4 percent in September.

For October, unemployment rates proved to be higher in Emmet and Charlevoix counties than for the region as a whole, which also includes Antrim, Benzie, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Manistee, Missaukee and Wexford counties. The jobless rate stood at 9.4 percent in Emmet and 11.6 percent in Charlevoix.

"Both of those numbers now are higher than the (statewide rate)," said Matt McCauley, assistant director for regional planning at the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments. "For the past couple of years we've enjoyed being a little below the state."

McCauley said the economic challenges making state and national headlines this fall have been factors in the rising employment in northwestern counties as well.

A slowdown in manufacturing — especially at automotive-related companies — is one contributor. Declines in residential construction are another, McCauley noted, and in turn seem to be leading to job losses in professional service fields such as banking.

Statewide, the unemployment rate stood at 8.6 percent for October, up from 8.3 percent in September. The jobless rate had stood at 6.7 percent in October 2007.

Separate agencies

Northwest Michigan Works!, which provides workforce development services around the region, reminds residents that it is a separate entity from the state's unemployment agency.

When people have trouble reaching an unemployment office by phone, Northwest Michigan Works! spokeswoman Janie McNabb noted that they often contact her agency to find out about a claim's status. But Northwest Michigan Works! staff do not have access to such information.

Since people who receive unemployment benefits are required to seek new jobs through Michigan Works! — and since unemployment offices have typically shared locations with the workforce development agency in years past — McNabb said the confusion is understandable.

The state's unemployment agency no longer has offices in Northwest Michigan. Area residents instead can access the agency by phone at (866) 500-0017 or online at www.michigan.gov/uia. Michigan Works! service centers have phones and computers available for this purpose.

Bethany Gohs, a eighth-grader at Northwest Academy in Charlevoix, is seen here holding the debut issue of Navigator Times, the school's first newspaper. Gohs plays photographer, newshound, editor, advertising salesman and publisher, but hopes she will have contributing writers soon.

LINDSEY MANTHEI
NEWS-REVIEW WRITER

Bethany Gohs is not your average eighth-grader.

When this Northwest Academy student realized that her school needed a newspaper, she decided to start one herself.

Gohs says she's not completely sure what she wants to do when she grows up, but is probably not interested in going into journalism.

"I started the newspaper just for fun," Gohs said.

The daughter of "Charlevoix Courier" editor Benjamin Gohs, Bethany Gohs distributed the first copy of the "Navigator Times" in late November.

The newspaper focused on holiday themes, including a holiday gift guide featuring new technology, a sports column and interviews with teachers.

"Bethany is one of our outstanding students here," Northwest Academy school administrator John Bailey said. "She was very well-qualified to start this newspaper and it was very well done."

Gohs distributed the paper by placing approximately 100 copies at the front desk of Northwest Academy.

"The paper has been a real hit here at the school," Bailey said. "Kids were standing all around, reading it and talking about it."

Gohs said she was pleased with the school's response to the newspaper and is looking forward to working on the next issue.

As editor of the "Navigator Times," Gohs wrote all copy, headlines and photo captions herself and took all the photos with the school's camera. Gohs recruited her brother to write a sports column.

The only aspect of the paper Gohs did not do herself was the layout, which her father helped her with.

"After a while, I think Bethany will find that she's tired of doing it all herself. There are kids in her grade who would be really good choices to help out," Bailey said.

For the January issue, several classmates have offered to help out, including one student interested in drawing comics.

To raise money for the ink and paper for the first issue of the newspaper, Gohs visited downtown businesses to sell ads. The ads cost $25 for a business card-sized ad in every issue of the scheduled monthly "Navigator Times."

Northwest Academy plans to open a club account for the money raised by ads and Bailey said that the school will let students decide what the club will be called.

Northwest Academy is a public charter school in Charlevoix that was established in 1996.

The small school is known for individual attention and a strong music program.

Help for struggling homeowners

Key to surviving hard economic times is taking action

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Go just about anywhere in northern Michigan and you will see myriad homes for sale; some by seller, but more and more of them are bank repossessions.

According to experts in the housing industry, even if you have lost your job and could be facing tough times, you may still be able to save your home.

"Communicating with your banker is very important," said Charlevoix State Bank President Mike Hinkle. "A lot of people are embarrassed and they don't communicate and it makes the problem bigger."

He added, "Banks do not want to foreclose. If Charlevoix State Bank is foreclosing, all other options have been exhausted or the borrower has refused to communicate with us."

Help for those having trouble with debt is just a phone call away.

Hinkle recommends calling either the Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency at (231) 347-9070 or (231) 947-3780; or GreenPath Debt Solutions at (888) 776-6735.

Charlevoix State Bank Vice-president Luann Keinath said the federal H4H program is also out there for distressed homeowners.

"There are a lot of things going on, but many of them are not finalized," Keinath said of the recent $700-plus-billion rescue plan. "The sooner they communicate with their lender the better. There are programs but once they're gone so far they don't qualify for certain things."

The HOPE for Homeowners program also known as H4H allows at-risk homeowners who qualify to refinance their mortgage.

The program has been greenlighted to last from now until Sept. 30, 2011.

"As many as 400,000 homeowners could avoid foreclosure through this program over the next three years," the Federal Housing Commission states on their Web site. "If you are having trouble making your mortgage payments, HOPE for Homeowners may be able to help you by refinancing your loan into a new 30-year or 40-year fixed-rate loan with lower payments."

Some of the various qualifying criteria, according to the commission, include mortgages which were originated on or before Jan. 1 and, as of March 1, the payment exceeded 31 percent of the borrower's gross monthly income; homeowner did not intentionally default and has no ownership interest in other residential real estate; has not been convicted of fraud in the last 10 years; and homeowner did not lie about their income in order to obtain the mortgage in question.

Luann said there is another program available if your mortgage is through Freddie Mac.

"They may be able to do a short-term forbearance program or, if they had their mortgage awhile, they might be able to modify it," she said. "Fortunately, for us, we have not had many residential foreclosures . but with the economy people are having difficulty and we are trying to find solutions for them so they don't have to get to that stage (of foreclosure)."

According to HUD, distressed homeowners should take the following steps as soon as they believe they are unable to pay their mortgage:

- Contact your lender
- Talk to a housing counseling agent
- Prioritize your debt
- Explore loan workout solutions
- Members of the military should check with their particular service branch for possible options
- Beware predatory lending schemes

Hinkle said it can often be difficult just contacting lenders based out of the area, but he said even if you can only leave a message on an answering machine, it is better than ignoring the problem.

When contacting your lender, be sure to have all pertinent loan information ready and a description of the problem you are facing.

HUD advises to beware of scams including:

- Equity skimming — where a buyer offers to repay the mortgage or sell the property if you sign over the deed and move out
- Phony counseling agencies — these hucksters often offer counseling for a fee when it is often given at no charge.
- Always know what you are signing

If you suspect predatory lending, call (800) 348-3931 to see what can be done.

For those considering buying a home for the first time, Keinath said you may want to seriously consider using a local mortgage lender.

"Our bank is locally owned," she said. "And, when you do your borrowing in your own community you have a face with a name and you know who you are dealing with."

She added, "Our costs are pretty reasonable and we're interested in serving the community, so we're not going to sell you something we wouldn't do ourselves."

Winter blues and jazz are not the same

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

I am bundled up in my favorite cozy chair sipping a mug of hot chocolate, reading my latest good book under a lamp lit by a warm incandescent bulb.

My thoughts wander for a moment as I picture myself sitting on our deck drinking in the morning sun that only spring and early summer can offer.

I've been awakened to a reality check as I turn up the heat a bit and listen to the current weather report on the local news.

Call me a dreamer if you will but I am trying to beat the winter blues.

I faithfully take our dog, Austin, for a walk and if I dress in enough layers and wrap my beautifully handmade scarf across my face and around my neck I can venture forward and say to Austin, "See it's beautiful outside and those flakes are mother natures wonderful creation for us to enjoy."

Another reality check: I'm getting colder and I want to shorten this walk, but I do have layered dressing down to a fine art.

Ask any woman politely who is over 50 and she'll explain how to do this.

When our kids were younger and we began to look at each other as if we were strangers from another planet we would book a room at a hotel for the weekend and take in the use of a pool and pretend for awhile that we were whisked away to someplace warm and inviting- this is how we'd beat the winter blues.

As time has passed we've turned to other avenues to remind us and give us hope that yes Virginia the days are getting longer.

We work out at the gym, rent movies, have candlelit dinners with music, and on occasion cook a meal on the outdoor grill to spice things up a bit.

I think we're in agreement that winters are long and winter sports can be fun but sometimes being warm and having the sun out is such a blessing.

Remember the san?

It's that round orb that sits in the sky occasionally and can truly make your day turn around even if you're not having a good one.

Nothing beats it, nothing compares, but since we don't live in Colorado or Florida we make the best of it.

Things that help are: taking in your vitamin D and St. John's Wort. Dr. Weil, my favorite health specialist, claims that certain herbs are effective for seasonal affective disorder (SAD), a form of depression made worse by the lack of sunlight. Also, there is a theory that not enough fatty acids (Omega 3) in your, diet can trigger depression.

Let me break this down: your mom was right; eat your broccoli and take cod liver'oil.

Now if you thought it was only humans who were hit with this winter blues thing, it may surprise you that our pets are afflicted too.

Veterinarians report that our pets need fresh water daily and exercise to go with it to improve their lives as well.

Besides a good diet and exercise, it's also important to socialize.

Sometimes we get so comfortable at home we just don't want to venture out.

Well force yourself, because once you're out visiting friends or family, you'll forget the lack of sun and enjoy life and be glad that you are spending time with others.

Music in your life is always a good thing too.

Playing your favorite music while at work or cleaning the house, making dinner, or repairing that project you put off can lift your spirits.

They always say, "Music soothes the savage beast". You're not a savage but these long winter days may bring about a personality in yourself that you'd rather not discuss.

As I peruse what I've written so far, I would gander that from all the ideas listed, time with friends would be at the top of my list. If I asked you to list three people who won the Academy Awards for the last three years you might be hard pressed, but if I asked you to list three friends you enjoy spending time with, the names would roll off your lips. People can make a difference in our lives, particularly when the sun is rarely seen in this neck of the woods.

Why not take a few minutes to invite them out for a walk, dinner, or a just to visit and chat awhile. I assure you it will lift your spirits and who knows; the sun may come out tomorrow.

From rabbit starvation comes bailout fever

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

An explorer of old witnessed some American Indians who ate nothing but rabbit were dying of malnutrition. Their bellies could be full of the lean meat and yet they would starve to death because they had no fat or carbohydrate.

The moral of the story: Steak is great, unless it's all you've got.

Enter the Big Three steak eaters GM, Ford and Chrysler who, like too many American companies, have long enjoyed mega profit by sending production overseas.

Now with a few decades of capitalistic cannibalization under our ever tightening belt, the people who are supposed to be buying the high-end products cannot do so because there are not enough decent jobs.

So trotted down the well dressed panhandlers to Washington, D.C., with bellies full, to tell the United States Congress they are starving.

They've asked for $34 billion in loans and credit and it looks like Congress is willing to go with $15 billion for now.

What makes this (filthy expletives deleted by the legal department) circus of the billionaire hobos even more disturbing is that those (more expletives removed) at GM plan to cut as many as 31,000 jobs even if it gets help from the government.

GM, while it sold more cars than its top five competitors last year, seems the biggest dog with $66 billion in debt.

Some in Congress are calling for GM chief Rick Wagoner to resign, but that seems to make little sense. After all, if you are going to spit in the face of capitalism and help a failing company instead of letting it die of natural causes, you are condoning its actions.

Besides, Wagoner's misfortune came from a mix of high gas prices and big industry's long record of shipping production out of the country.

Let us not forget that he's been strong-armed into near bankruptcy by the unions. I'd say Wagoner is only partially responsible for one of those things.

Some say this crisis will be solved by giving the auto makers the loans they need to start building more fuel efficient cars. The idea being this new green sector of industry will bring America out of its slump while simultaneously fixing global warming.

Like a phoenix made of 85 percent recycled material, we shall rise again.

I can almost hear Al Gore singing old time-y gospels from Willie Nelson's hemp-mobile.

Do we really believe the Big Three are flailing simply because they're not making more cars that run on good feelings and the dreams of children?

The problems with the banks and car makers and other manufacturing all seem to have the same general cause and yet no one in the government is doing anything about NAFTA or the inequity of export tariffs on American goods or how we have managed to outsource ourselves into near oblivion.

Hey, I get it: the government has a long history of tax funded handouts for big business. And, instead of riding out this current economic downturn and letting the strong survive, the feds have decided to intervene.

So go ahead, Congress, give them their billions. But, unless your loans come with stipulations that not one more job be slashed; not one more bit of labor be outsourced to foreign countries, that not one more high-ranking suit get a sweetheart severance package, you sirs and madams have not served your country and have not served your constituents.

While it is time we rip out those golden chutes and re-pack them with flatware and an anvil, the American citizenry also play a part in the recovery.

As long as we buy products from Taiwan, Pakistan, China, Indonesia and Mexico, we are securing the jobs of foreign workers.

We're picnicking on lead chip sandwiches in the power line forest if we think we're going to buy these new cars without decent jobs.

Even the slow kid in the back of the class stopped chewing on his shoe long enough to nod in understanding that we cannot have both ultra cheap goods and gainful employment.

We can either dine with responsible capitalism and choose to pick up the check or continue ordering hossenfeffer—it's worked out swell so far.

CROP WALK A SUCCESS

Editor:

On behalf of the Charlevoix County CROP Walk, I would like to extend a thank you to the many individuals and organizations without whom the 2008 walk would not have been so successful. First, thank you to the 87 walkers who turned out in Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan on the morning of Sept. 27 to support the global hunger fighting program CROP Walk, which stands for Communities Responding to Overcome Poverty. Together, they raised $15,5930.50, 25 percent of which comes back to local Charlevoix county food pantries. Thank you also to the Charlevoix Sheriff Department for providing road support, At Your Service for donating a portable restroom, and the Light House and Missionary Churches of East Jordan for providing relief at the half-way point, as well as the Castle, Elm Point and Whiting Park. Many thanks to the East Jordan Rotarians who provided a wonderful lunch in Ironton at the conclusion of the six mile walk. Finally, a thank you to all the volunteers and those who donated time and funds to CROP Walk.

Boyne City - 27 walkers $3,118; Charlevoix - 27 walkers $8,282.50; East Jordan - 33 walkers $4,193.

TURKEY DUNK THANK-YOU

Editor:

My son and I are the founders of a silly but fun event that we have dubbed the "Turkey Day Dunk": A brief swim in Lake Michigan on Thanksgiving Day.

Now in its seventh year and fourth year as a charity fundraiser, it has become a joyous yet humbling experience.

Humbling because last Thursday (Nov. 27) morning when I looked up the hill going down to Lake Michigan Beach, the road was packed with cars as hundreds came to support our swimmers; humbling because even as the economy is in a slump, we had a record year and raised well over $3,000 for the area food pantries; humbling because once again, this community helped us help our own.

The event may be silly, but the cause is great and the people are generous and the feeling is joyous.

Charlevoix is an amazing community with many amazing and special individuals and I hope you will allow me to mention just a few from this year and years past who have helped prove how great the community is: Mark Knapp and Lynn Robinson, our greatest overall supporters; Rick Lobenberz, the first large contributor four years ago; Mark Greyerbiehl, what can I say but I think he likes it—he out-swam and out-talked me this year; Boogie Carlson, finally a politician who goes in the full measure; the entire Mailloux clan and friends. Too many other businesses and individuals to list here, but my heart has a place for you all.

Last but not least, my son Douglas, named after a brother I lost in Vietnam, he has the heart of a lion and soul of saint and is my swimming partner and best friend.

Thank you all and, remember, if you are not doing anything next Thanksgiving at 11 a.m., come on down to Lake Michigan Beach and watch or even take the plunge.

It is always for a good cause.

Charlevoix High performing arts program presents 'Charlevoix's Got Talent'

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

While the roster remains a secret, planners of the 'Charlevoix's Got Talent' talent competition expect the event to be a hit.

A slew of acts ranging from live music to comedy will perform in five minute blocks for cash prizes.

"We've got a couple of people that are in local bands, dancing, comedy, really all various (entertainers)," said performing arts student Mac Ernst who also helped with the talent selection process. "The performing arts students decided it would be a good idea, and with the help of our teacher Danielle Wager, we planned it."

This program takes place of the performing arts class's fall show.

The $3 per ticket will be divided between the cash prizes and the performing arts program's coffers.

The show starts at 7 p.m., Dec. 13 at the high school's auditorium.

There is no limit on the age of those participating in the acts, so, Ernst said, there should be a wide variety of Charlevoix represented.

"We just wanted to get the whole community involved in the acting and everything and make it so it's a large community wide event so everyone can have fun," he added.

The audience will decide who gets the as of yet undetermined cash prizes for first, second and third places by choosing their favorite three acts.

oh BOIX!

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments of Charlevoix area people.

Navy Seaman Recruit Kayler L. Wells, daughter of Patricia L. and Donald E. Wells of Charlevoix, Mich., recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week program, Wells completed a variety of training which included classroom study and practical instruction on naval customs, first aid, firefighting, water safety and survival, and shipboard and aircraft safety. An emphasis was also placed on physical fitness.

The capstone event of boot camp is "Battle Stations."

This exercise gives recruits the skills and confidence they need to succeed in the fleet. "Battle Stations" is designed to galvanize the basic warrior attributes of sacrifice, dedication, teamwork and endurance in each recruit through the practical application of basic Navy skills and the core values of Honor, Courage and Commitment. Its distinctly 'Navy flavor was designed to take into account what it means to be a Sailor.

Wells is a 2008 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
CHARLEVOIX CITY COUNCIL

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Monday, January 5, 2008, 7:00 p.m.
Council Chambers, City Hall, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, MI

The Charlevoix City Council will hold a public hearing on Monday, January 5, 2008 at 7:00 p.m. in Council Chambers of City Hall to receive public input on a proposed ordinance to amend the City Code. The proposed amendments, if adopted, will amend Chapter 51 of Title V of the zoning ordinance, Article VII: Sign Regulations in its entirety.

Summary of the Proposed Ordinance Amending
Title V, Chapter 51, Article VII: Sign Regulations

The provisions of this proposed ordinance, which amends the city code, can be summarized as follows: The ordinance repeals the sign related definitions currently in Chapter 51, Article I, Section 5 11, the ordinance amends Chapter 51 Article VII Sign Regulations to include the following sections the purpose of the regulations, sign related definitions (revised and new), prohibited signs (including billboards and off premises signs), signs allowed without a sign permit, temporary signs allowed without a sign permit, sign standards applicable to all signs (including sign area height, setback lighting and construction material requirements), sign standards applicable to portable signs, sign standards applicable to specific signs, regulations of nonconforming signs, sign permit requirements, unsafe sign regulations, and provisions eliminating dangerous signs; the ordinance provides a section that permits potentially invalid provisions to be severed from the valid provisions; and the ordinance provides an effective date thirty days after enactment

A complete copy of the proposed ordinance can be obtained from the City Clerk during normal business hours. A copy of the proposed ordinance can also be viewed on the Planning Department link of the City's website at cityofcharlevoix.org

Interested citizens can make comments at the public hearing or written comments may be sent to the City Clerk's Office, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Carol A. Ochs, City Clerk
12/04/08

The City of Charlevoix will provide necessary reasonable auxiliary aids and services, such as signers for the hearing impaired and audio tapes of printed materials being considered at the meeting to individuals with disabilities at the meeting upon one week's notice to the City of Charlevoix. Individuals with disabilities requiring auxiliary aids or services should contact the City of Charlevoix Clerk's Office in writing or by calling the following: City Clerk, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720 (231) 547-3250

Fiscal literacy course set to be included in math requirement

Bill passes both houses, awaiting governor's signature

NOAH FOWLE
NEWS-REVIEW WRITER

A new bill that has passed both houses would allow high school students to take a financial literacy course to fulfill one of four math credits required to graduate. The new bill also provides for the algebra II component to be taken over two years instead of one, if necessary.

Sen. Mickey Switalski, D-Roseville, sponsored the bill, which now awaits a signature by Gov. Jennifer Granholm.

Switalski said the bill was a result of his desire to improve students interest in math as well as try and help correct some of the problems young people face when making personal finance decisions.

"There are consequences for people who are not knowledgeable about debt," said Switalski. "Kids can put themselves behind the eight ball by getting a lot of credit cards and not understanding interest rates."

The head of Petoskey High School's math department, Jamie Buchanan said he supported the idea of offering a financial literacy class to students.

"It's a great idea to teach kids how to plan for retirement or how much a mortgage really costs, so they don't get the shaft," he said.

Sen. Jason Allen, R-Traverse City, voted for the bill and said that a balance is needed to not only encourage students to stick with math, but to also allow different paths to complete the required curriculum. Allen said the math crisis is showing itself not only in the low number of students pursuing degrees in mathematics, but also in the high rate of young people who find themselves in credit card debt.

"This is a good compromise, it keeps the pressure on but also allows for more flexibility," he said.

Buchanan added that the current math requirements, which call for four years, three of which must include algebra, algebra II and geometry, are too stringent.

"I'd like to know how many legislators could pass algebra II," he said.

TIPS TO HELP GET YOUR FREE EVENT COVERAGE

Ensure your press release gets to the top of the pile by adhering to the following formatting:

- Submit all photos and press releases to the Courier office or via e-mail by no later than noon, the Friday before publication
- Keep information brief and to the point
- Avoid submitting information in all capitals
- Time, date and place of event must be in that order: Event name at 7 p.m., Feb. 12, at the place event was or will be held
- The earlier you submit releases, photos or story ideas, the better the chance those items will appear in a timely manner

Anonymous 4

Sunday, December 14
3:00 p.m.

The four women of Anonymous 4 combine music, literature and history with contemporary performance intuition. An unearthly vocal blend and virtuosic ensemble, they create ingeniously designed programs, interweaving music with poetry and narrative.

The group will premiere their newest program of medieval English carols, interwoven with English-influenced American sacred songs, inspired by the miracle ballad, The Cherry Tree, which flourishes both in the British Isles and in America.

OBITUARIES

Anamae Corfield: Aug. 8, 1918 - Dec. 3, 2008

Anamae Corfield, 90, of Charlevoix, formerly of Royal Oak, died Wednesday, Dec. 3, 2008, at Heavenly Helpers in Charlevoix.

Funeral will be 11 a.m., Wednesday, Dec. 17, at St. Luke's Episcopal Church in Ferndale.

Visitation will be from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., and 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 16, at Hopcroft Funeral Home in Madison Heights.

Burial will follow in White Chapel Cemetery in Troy.

Anamae was born Aug. 8, 1918, in Ransom, Ill., the daughter of Ralph and Sadie (Held) Smith.

She completed nurse's training at Silver Cross Hospital in Joliet, Ill. and became a Registered Nurse.

On Aug. 3, 1941, she married William Corfield in Ransom, Ill.

They made their home in Royal Oak.

Anamae was a member of St. Luke's Episcopal Church in Ferndale, where she taught Sunday School, and was active in the Martha-Mary Group.

Bill preceded her in death on May 2, 2000, and she moved to her daughter's home in Charlevoix in 2001.

Anamae is survived by her daughters, Joanne (Joseph) Hawkins of Charlevoix, Joyce Wiley of Minden; grandchildren, Ingrid (Mark) Baranski of Casco, Kristin (Pat) Clancy of Fair Haven, Richard Wiley of Minden; great-granddaughters, Alyssa and Mackenzie Baranski; sister, Emma Marie Burkhart of Morton, Ill.

Anamae's brother George and sister Iva Dell also preceded her in death.

Memorial contributions to Charlevoix Area Hospital, or to Hospice of Northwest Michigan.

Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is handling the arrangements.

Donate an organ, save a life

If you're searching for the perfect gift this holiday season you may not realize that you have the ability to give something for free that will touch the lives of countless others.

The National Kidney Foundation of Michigan says 50 people can be helped when just one person signs up to become a potential organ or tissue donor. There will come a time when you'll have organs and tissues to spare, and now's the time to commit that you're willing to save someone else's life by donating them. It is also possible to donate a kidney or partial liver or lung while still alive, according to the foundation.

As part of its Holiday Gift of Life Campaign, the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan is reminding Americans that for Christmas, Chanukah or Kwanzaa perhaps the greatest present anyone can give is the promise to save or enhance the life of another person.

Right now, more than 3,000 Michigan men, women and children are on the waiting list for an organ or tissue transplant while 100,000 wait nationally. And while they wait, 18 people die each day.

The mission of the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan is to prevent kidney disease and improve the quality of life for those living with it.

For more information on organ donation or to become an organ donor, please contact the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan at

A day in the life of a snowmobile trail groomer

Contrary to popular U.P. myth, there are no "snow fairies" waving wands over the Upper Peninsula landscape to create the smooth, groomed snowmobile trails all snowmobilers enjoy.

In truth, these trails are the result of weeks and even months of hard work by area snowmobile clubs and other interested organizations. The "labor of love" by these hard-working folks only gets the trails ready for the grooming season; it's then up to Mother Nature to deliver her side of the snowmobile trail partnership - an abundance of snow.

Dec. 1 marked the unofficial start of Michigan's snowmobile season. The 16-day deer hunting "holiday" has just ended, and it's time for the snowmobile trail groomers to get to work.

4:30 a.m. a groomer's day starts early. An important part of the job is to perform all the necessary maintenance on the equipment before actually going out to groom (smooth) the trail. When you are operating a piece of equipment that costs in excess of $150,000, preventive maintenance is not an option; it is critical to the longevity of the equipment and, by extension, the trails entrusted to the groomer's care.

Another reason for the early start to the groomer's day is to get the trails groomed and allow them as much time as possible to set up before the snowmobilers arrive. A groomed trail that has a good setup will hold up a lot longer than a trail that doesn't set up properly.

At 6 a.m. grooming the trail is underway. On this particular day, it's cold enough so the snow doesn't ball up in front of the drag, but not so cold that it has little or no moisture. There is a delicate balance to trail grooming. This trail was graded before the season, so minimal amounts of snow can provide a smooth, enjoyable trail. But if the season starts with moguls (holes and humps) in the ground base, these moguls will develop in the snow base right away. It also takes a lot more snow to smooth out a rough base.

At 6:30 a.m. the groomer stops at an intersection to replace a stop sign that has been stolen. Because such road signs frequently are taken, most groomers carry a supply of caution signs on their groomer. To help protect both snowmobilers and the public, the groomer will make a note to replace this stop sign and make sure the other operators keep an eye on this area in case the vandalism continues.

At 7:15 a.m. This morning's run is looking outstanding as the groomer frequently checks the trail behind his machine. The temperature is still around 25 degrees and, with just a little humidity, the snow is packing very well. If these conditions hold, the trail could set up in two to three hours if it doesn't get pounded right away. That's why the grooming schedule on the DNR Web site is always posted one day behind.

If a snowmobiler rides the trails that were groomed yesterday, today's grooming will get that critical setup time.

At 8:30 a.m. on a good day, groomers can do about eight miles of trail per hour. Today, the groomer had to make a few unplanned stops to remove trees that had been blown over in a storm. For such emergencies, most groomers carry a chain saw, gas, oil and even some pruning poles. Blow downs typically are a problem only when someone rides faster than they should on the trails and comes upon a downed tree with little or no time to stop. Excessive speed is one of three contributing factors present in nearly all fatal snowmobile accidents.

At 10:30 a.m. the temperature is holding steady at 26 degrees, so the groomer should be able to get back to the groomer barn with the trails holding up fairly well. The new drag is doing an outstanding job. While it's the drag that's actually doing all the work, a drag is about one-tenth the cost of a grooming tractor. Most groomers agree: If you don't have a good tractor to pull that drag around, day after day, in all conditions, your trails aren't going to amount to much.

At 12:30 p.m. arrived back at the groomer barn. The driver for the next shift is getting ready to take the groomer back out on the other trail segment. The two groomers discuss trail conditions and what was found during the morning run, especially to make the afternoon driver aware that more blow down might be found on his run. Finally, the groomer calls the nearest DNR field office to report the trail segment that has been groomed, the location of the downed trees and the road signs that need to be replaced. That's more or less a typical day in the life of a groomer.

So, the next time you're out having some winter fun on Michigan's snowmobile trails, remember the work performed by the more than 67 trail sponsors who, in cooperation with the DNR, keep 6,500 miles of snowmobile trails groomed for you to ride.

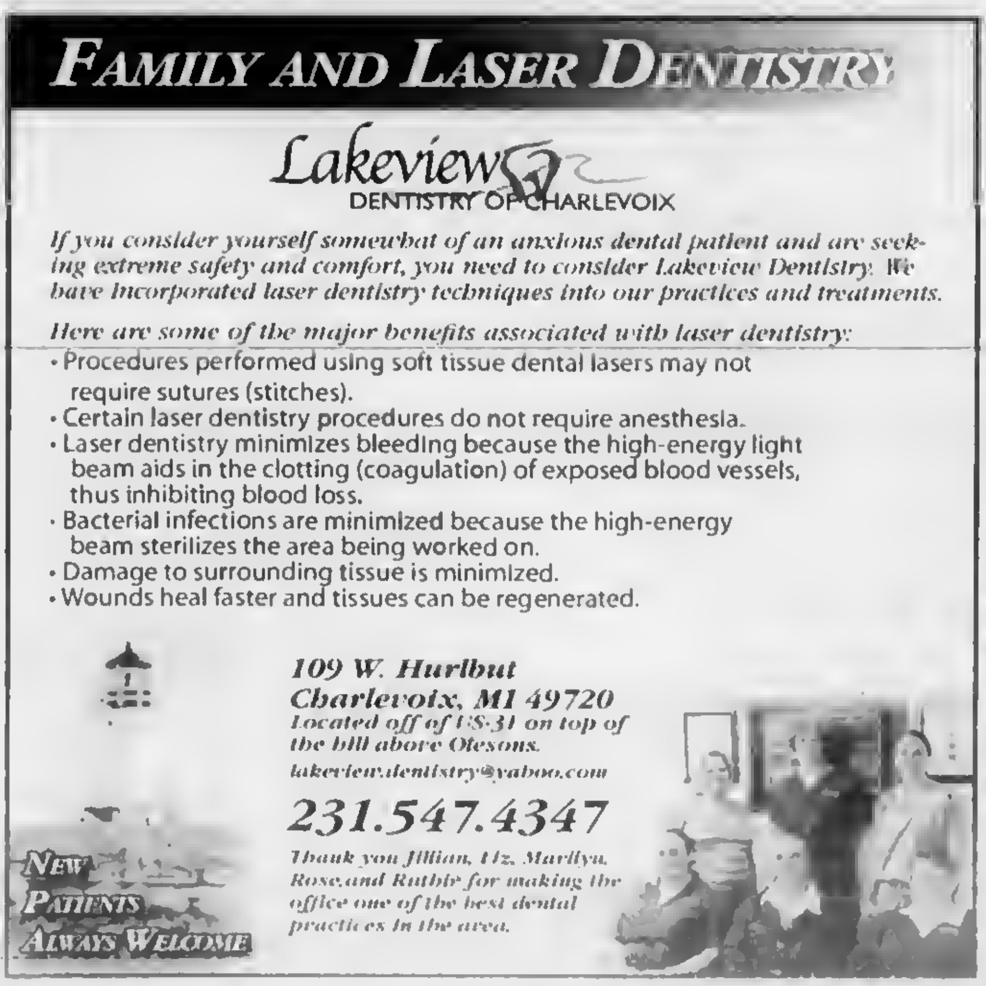
Michigan is a leader in the use of farm tractors for trail-grooming machines. This Ford New Holland tractor with blade in front and drag behind is best for grooming in areas of low to moderate snowfall. When the trail develops "ice-hard" moguls, the front blade cuts the mogul and the drag then cuts more it and fills in the low space between the cuts.



FAMILY AND LASER DENTISTRY

Lakeview
DENTISTRY OF CHARLEVOIX

If you consider yourself somewhat of an anxious dental patient and are seeking extreme safety and comfort, you need to consider Lakeview Dentistry. We have incorporated laser dentistry techniques into our practices and treatments.

Here are some of the major benefits associated with laser dentistry:

- Procedures performed using soft tissue dental lasers may not require sutures (stitches).
- Certain laser dentistry procedures do not require anesthesia.
- Laser dentistry minimizes bleeding because the high-energy light beam aids in the clotting (coagulation) of exposed blood vessels, thus inhibiting blood loss.
- Bacterial infections are minimized because the high-energy beam sterilizes the area being worked on.
- Damage to surrounding tissue is minimized.
- Wounds heal faster and tissues can be regenerated.

Weatherization tips

How to help keep your home cozy this winter

Besides the obvious discomfort that comes from an energy-inefficient home, wasteful energy systems bring outrageous utility bills for northwest-Michigan home owners. Homes 20 years and older are highly susceptible to increased energy costs.

Members of the Michigan Propane Gas Association (MPGA) are educating home owners on effective and efficient home weatherization tactics. The goal is to ensure that homeowners save money and energy through simple, graduated steps.

Weatherproofing homes and even using more energy efficient appliances are the main ways residents can be more efficient and lower energy costs. The Farmer's Almanac is predicting record cold for December and therefore the time is now to maximize on your heating dollars.

"Sealing a home is the most energy efficient and low-cost way for a homeowner to ensure a warm house and low energy bills," says Brian Lincoln, MPGA president.

Propane gas continues to be one of the safest, most efficient and inexpensive heating methods, and is particularly practical in rural areas. "Propane is a commodity, like fruits and vegetables, and the price is going to fluctuate with supply and demand," says Kevin Kobbins, MPGA district director, "MPGA wants to help users lower their cost during a high demand season."

Propane is clean, reliable, and emits half the amount of carbon dioxide as coal and reduces harmful environmental emissions that are caused by the production of electricity.

To learn more about immediate savings on your energy bills while keeping you and your family safe, go to: www.UseMichiganPropane.com

MPGA's Low Cost Weatherization Tips:

- Fill your propane tank before it is empty—this saves on out-of-gas pressure test costs.
- Seal up the largest air leaks in your home the ones that whistle or feel drafty on windy days. The worst culprits are usually not windows and doors, but utility cut-throughs for pipes ("plumbing penetrations"), gaps around chimneys, recessed lights in insulated ceilings, and unfinished spaces behind cupboards and closets. All of the little, invisible cracks and holes may add up to as much as an open window or door.
- Use a programmable set-back thermostat to automatically control indoor comfort levels and save energy when you don't need it.
- Buy a furnace thermostat timer to lower your home's temperature at night or when you're not home. This can save up to 10 percent on heating costs per year.
- Change your furnace filters monthly. Cleaner filters are more energy efficient.
- Install flow-restricting showerheads. This can reduce hot water pressure by up to 50 percent without affecting shower pressure.
- Insulate hot water pipes and ducts wherever they run through unheated areas.
- Replace your water heater with a propane tankless water heater, which only operates when there is demand for hot water. Rebates are available to all Michigan residents.
- Have your propane heating system inspected annually to maintain efficiency.

Dangerous Weatherization Methods:

- Surrounding the foundation of a home with hay bales—this is a major fire hazard.
- Using thicker versions of visqueen to cover windows—this prevents windows from being used as an emergency exit (thinner plastic window kits are available).
- Wadding and stuffing paper into the sliding tracks of windows and doors—this is another major fire hazard.
- Using kerosene heaters indoors and near flammable objects—this could start a fire, cause burns, or cause asphyxiation. Using kerosene heaters indoors may be illegal in your county—contact your local fire chief for more information.
- Taking smaller propane cylinders into the home to heat the home.
- Making self repairs to your propane system, overriding all built-in safety features.

Energy assistance is available to low income households.

You can also save on your energy bills by setting up an energy budgeting plan.

Contact your propane supplier for a variety of options to keep your energy prices low this winter.

DNR Wildlife Disease Lab increases testing for chronic wasting disease

For more than a decade, Department of Natural Resources wildlife personnel have been checking deer and elk heads at the agency's Wildlife Disease Lab, looking for evidence of bovine tuberculosis (TB) in the animals' lymph nodes.

The DNR began analyzing the heads in 1995, the year after TB was confirmed in a free-ranging whitetail in the northeastern Lower Peninsula. Since the program started, the DNR has examined more than 115,000 deer heads, mostly collected from hunters who took the animals from within the TB zone, as well as elsewhere, as the agency investigated the extent of the disease.

In 1998, the DNR also started looking for evidence of chronic wasting disease (CWD), an always fatal neurological disorder that had begun showing up in cervids, mostly in western states and Canadian provinces.

"At that time we weren't overly concerned that the disease was here in the state, but we started looking," said Dr. Steve Schmitt, DNR veterinarian. "In 2002, we became more concerned when Wisconsin announced they had it. Michigan is not that much different than Wisconsin: high deer densities, lots of captive cervid facilities and plenty of feeding and baiting."

Today, everything has changed. After a case of CWD was confirmed in a privately owned deer enclosure in Kent County last August, looking for the disease has become Job No. 1 at the Diagnostic Center for Population and Animal Health at Michigan State University, where the Wildlife Division's Animal Health Team is located. The team moved into the facility in 2003 from their Rose Lake headquarters, where they had been located since 1957. The $58 million, 152,500-square-foot facility at MSU is a state-of-the-art animal laboratory.

In recent years, the DNR has checked about 1,500 heads annually for CWD. So far this year, the agency has already surpassed that number and plans to check a minimum of 8,000 heads, hoping they will not find what they are looking for.

Heads from deer, killed by hunters, taken under disease-control permits, or even collected from fresh roadkills, have been arriving at the DNR Wildlife Disease Lab almost daily, coming in by truck from collection points at DNR field offices across the state. Crews of Wildlife Disease Lab staff, with assistance from other wildlife-health professionals, spend time almost every day in the bio-secure laboratory, looking for evidence of the disease.

It's a different process than the TB testing. When looking for TB, the staff looks for abscesses in the lymph nodes.

"With CWD, you can't see anything," Schmitt said. "We're using the same lymph nodes, but you can't tell a positive from a negative just by looking."

Instead, technicians remove 200 milligrams from the cortex of the medial retropharyngeal lymph node, put it in a container, and then send it elsewhere in the lab where a scientist runs an automated test. The material changes color if the prions, the mutated proteins that cause CWD, are present.

When the three-hour test turns up a suspect, as it did in August with the infected deer from the private facility in Kent County, the test is repeated. If a second test comes back positive, the sample is sent to the USDA's National Animal Disease Center in Ames, Iowa, where the diagnosis can be confirmed.

"At peak times, we get about 15 people on the floor working on heads -- our staff and some people from the USDA," Schmitt said. "They bring in wildlife disease biologists from around the country and have them here for a two-week period. They've got 44 of them in 44 states; they use this as a training exercise."

It works out well for both the USDA and the DNR. Scientists from the USDA have an opportunity to spend some time working in a state-of-the-art facility, while getting a taste of what might happen if they are ever called upon to react to an outbreak of a dangerous animal disease. The DNR gets manpower from the USDA for its CWD-testing program at no cost to the agency.

The sampling takes place in what Schmitt refers to as the BL3 (Biological Level 3) necropsy room.

"It's an air-tight room with negative air pressure," he said. "Even if all the doors were opened, the infectious agent could not get out. It would be sucked out of the room through the filtration system.

It protects the individual working in the lab and makes sure the 'bug' won't get out of the room and into the environment.

"Technicians wear Tyvek® suits, gloves, eye protection and respirators. They shower out. Nothing that is on the floor comes back out, other than the staff. Anthrax could be worked on in this lab. Everything that comes into this building for necropsy or testing is incinerated at 1800 degrees. That will kill anything."

Schmitt said the DNR is working in the largest animal necropsy facility in North America and possibly the world.

"When this place was built we were working on TB, but looking to the future," Schmitt said. "There are probably other diseases we'll be seeing that we're not even aware of yet. We were looking at what we needed 10 years or more down the road."

And although taking tissue samples from deer heads has been a big part of the Schmitt's job since August, the crew is really just getting started.

"During the firearms deer season we'll be working seven days a week -- for 15 or 16 days straight."

Change in gift card legislation

Time you have to use them has increased

Just in time for the holidays, new laws in Michigan protect consumers by amending the Michigan Consumer Protection Act and the Uniform Unclaimed Property Act. They prohibit retailers from refusing to accept a gift certificate during a sale, closeout or liquidation, or refusing to accept one as a portion of the payment where the purchase is greater than the balance remaining on the certificate.

As of Nov. 1 Michigan merchants must honor the gift cards and gift certificates they sell for at least five years from the date of purchase.

The legislation also blocks retailers from imposing inactivity, transaction, or other service fees that would decrease the face value of the cards. Retailers are further required to disclose all gift-card terms and conditions to prospective buyers, and companies cannot change the rules after the card has been issued.

Gift cards, sometimes referred to as "smart cards," represent a stored value of money.

The card has information stored in a magnetic strip or a microprocessor chip.

It is similar to a debit card, except gift cards are not tied to a consumer's bank account.

A consumer who purchases a merchant-issued gift card indicates how much they want to spend, and in return, the merchant should disclose any applicable fees, charges, expiration dates, and other restrictions.

The two broad categories of gift cards are merchant-issued gift cards or bank-issued gift cards.

Not covered under the new provisions are gift cards purchased before Nov. 1, or those issued by banks and other financial institutions, such as American Express, Visa or MasterCard. These cards, which are the most likely to come with expiration dates and fees, are exempt from the new rules.

The bottom line: Before you purchase a card, ask if it is issued by a financial institution, so you know what type of card you will be dealing with. Merchants compete for your business, especially during the holiday shopping season.

Use this competition to your advantage - always be a smart shopper, and do your homework before you buy.

As with any purchase, be sure to read the fine print before buying gift cards. Ask about purchase or use restrictions, expiration date, fees, and replacement policy for lost or stolen cards. Give the gift recipient the original receipt in case an error occurs and a merchant indicates that there is less value on the card than you purchased.

Buy from sources you know and trust. Avoid buying gift cards from online auction sites, because the cards may be counterfeit or may have been obtained fraudulently.

Encourage recipients to use the gift within three months of receipt, if possible. After a few months, it is increasingly likely the certificate or card will be lost or forgotten.

For more information on this topic and other issues on parenting, money management, food, nutrition or health issues, contact the Emmet County Extension Office at (231) 348-1770, or e-mail us at msue.emmet@county.msu.edu.

DTE Energy, community leaders help families cope with rising energy costs

With heating costs rising and Michigan's economy struggling, DTE Energy and a number of community organizations are working to help families keep their heat and lights on this winter.

"Michigan is going through some very tough economic times, and we recognize that energy bills are going to be difficult for many people to pay," said Jerry Norcia, president and COO of DTE Energy's MichCon natural gas utility. "We want our customers to know that there are options available that can help them manage their utility bills and get through the winter safe and warm."

DTE Energy was joined today by representatives from local community service agencies and others who share concerns about the economic realities of the upcoming heating season. Organizations joining the company included THAW (The Heat and Warmth Fund), the Salvation Army, United Way - 211, the Michigan Department of Human Services and a number of Detroit-area churches.

"To heat or to eat is a tough choice – and a decision that no one should have to face this winter," Norcia said. "DTE Energy has a number of programs that help customers manage their utility bills and we are casting a wide safety net for our customers with support from many of the organizations represented here today."

Heating costs across the country are expected to be about 10 to 30 percent higher this winter than last season, according to David Parker, president of the American Gas Association which represents more than 200 energy companies nationwide. While Michigan will see costs at the lower end of the anticipated increase – about 10 percent – local households will experience a tougher challenge than other regions because of the state's difficult economy.

"Collaborative efforts between utilities, community and governmental organizations are exactly what we need to lessen the blow on those struggling to stay warm this winter," Parker said. "I can assure you that the common goal of all those present today is to avoid having to shut off service to those who are unable to pay, and to find options for all customers to maintain service this winter."

With a growing number of families trying to meet basic financial obligations, cooperative efforts between DTE Energy and the community will play a critical role in helping households maintain utility service, according to Dr. Bertram Marks of the Council of Baptist Ministers of Detroit and Vicinity.

"Whenever we are challenged in this region, we come together as a community to work things out," he said. "This is an excellent example of how we can help family, friends and neighbors manage their energy bills and safely maintain utility service by working together."

While DTE Energy understands that many households will have to make tough choices about what bills to pay this winter, the company warned that stealing electric or gas service is not only illegal, but extremely dangerous.

"Some customers are going to extreme measures to heat their homes and keep their lights on by reconnecting their gas or electric service in some of the most dangerous methods imaginable," Norcia said. "Let me be clear – energy theft is dangerous . . . not only for those choosing to do so, but for others who may live nearby. If you steal electricity or gas, you are risking your life and the lives of others who are nearest and dearest to you."

While the heating season will present a particular challenge to those suffering economic hardships this winter, Steve Kurmas, president and COO-elect of DTE Energy's Detroit Edison electric utility, said that virtually everyone is looking for ways to manage their energy bills and reduce their energy use.

All households can benefit from energy conservation and efficiency.

"For instance, by lowering their thermostat just a few degrees consumers can save about 10 percent on their monthly heating bills," Kurmas said. "A number of simple, cost-effective energy saving tips are available on DTE Energy's Web site, and through an interactive online tool called MyEnergy Analyzer."

Kurmas said DTE Energy has conducted 50 free Energy Efficiency Forums around the state this year to teach customers how to seal air leaks, insulate their homes and obtain the most energy efficient appliances. The company also has launched a pilot program offering rebates to customers who purchase a high-efficiency furnace or have a professional energy audit performed on their home.

While DTE Energy offers a wide array of energy assistance programs, it is going to take a community effort to solve the significant challenges facing the state this winter, according to Kurmas.

"DTE Energy, the organizations represented here today and others working toward solutions need to be joined by individuals around the state to ensure that those people who need help this winter get it," Kurmas said. "No company, no individual, no church or social service agency will be able to tackle this alone. It must be a community effort."

Additional information about resources available to DTE Energy customers is available at www.my.dteenergy.com or by calling DTE Energy customer service at (800) 477-4747.

Rayders beat Frankfort in season opener

CHARLEVOIX — Not bad for starters.

With a tough week ahead of them — three games in five days — all the Charlevoix Rayders wanted to do was open the season on a positive note Tuesday.

Mission accomplished.

Senior center Tammy Potter scored 14 points and hauled down 13 rebounds as the Rayders topped Frankfort, 70-54, in the season-opening girls' basketball game at the Charlevoix High School gym.

Charlevoix will have little time to enjoy the win. The Rayders face Cheboygan on Thursday, Dec. 4, and then go to Kingsley on Saturday, Dec. 6.

"If we can get through this week, we'll be OK," second-year Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine said. "There was a lot of nerves out there tonight from the players and the coach. We didn't know what to expect coming in, but they got after it."

Frankfort took a 17-16 first quarter lead before the Rayders made it 34-29 at halftime. The Rayders then outscored the Panthers, 19-12, in the third to lead 53-41 heading into the fourth.

"We just hit some key shots and got some big runs at key times," Erskine said. "We had a good third quarter, but it was back-and-forth the whole way, a game of runs and we made a big run at the end."

Also for the Rayders, KC McCary added 12 points and 12 rebounds, while Olivia Catt had nine points. And Meridith Rich added six rebounds and six assists.

For Frankfort, Sara Loney had a game-high 19 points. The Panthers made 19-of-34 from the free throw line, while Charlevoix was just 8-of-20.

"They (Frankfort) were really aggressive and we played sloppy defense the first half," Erskine said. "It was a typical first game, but lucky for me, I have eight seniors and they didn't have a senior.

"Frankfort played well though."

Charlevoix also won the JV game, 64-38, as Jenna Way scored 20 points.

Flurry Fest draws local snowboarders

G. RANDALL GOSS/NEWS-REVIEW

Charlevoix snowboarder John Curtis rides down a pile of snow atop East park in downtown Charlevoix. A local group of snowboarders built a terrain park and demonstratad tha sport for the public during Saturday's Open House and Flurry Fest.

Girls' basketball: Second-half surge lifts Charlevoix

A strong second half effort and a second straight win for Charlevoix.

The Rayders held Cheboygan to just seven points in the second half as they topped the Chiefs, 69-27, to improve to 2-0.

"In the first half, our defensive effort was bad," Charlevoix coach Bret Erskine said. "We were getting into foul trouble, putting them on the line and I kind of challenged them at halftime."

Leading 35-20 at halftime, the Rayders took a commanding 55-23 lead after three quarters.

"It was a really good defensive effort down the stretch," Erskine said. "The girls were supporting each other and I was really impressed with how we're coming together. We're still a work in progress though."

Meridith Rich and Sarah Potter scored 14 points each to lead the Rayders, while Tammy Potter added 11 points and Alyssa Smith had nine.

Rich also grabbed 10 rebounds, while Sarah Potter added eight rebounds and Tammy Potter, six. Madison Way and Smith each finished with five steals.

Courtney Hancock scored 19 points to lead Cheboygan, 1-1.

Charlevoix goes to Kingsley for another non-league contest on Saturday. Kingsley defeated the Reyders in a Class C regional final last year.

"It'll be a big test for us Saturday," Erskine said. "If we can come out of this week with three wins, that'll be huge."

Charlevoix won the JV game, 73-39. Dani Barron had 18 points and Lyndzie Gotshall added 15 for the Rayders.

Lady Rayders come up short to Kingsley

A poor second quarter cost Charlevoix dearly on Saturday.

Kingsley outscored the Rayders, 15-3, in the quarter and Charlevoix never recovered as the Stags posted a 52-44 non-league victory.

"[illegible] a rematch of last year's Class C regional championship game. [illegible] they're really well coached," said Charlevoix coach Brett Erskine, whose team is 2-1. "The second quarter gave us fits. They just did a good job pressuring the ball and we just didn't handle it well. And we couldn't buy a bucket. And we couldn't get an offensive rebound. They just outplayed [illegible]

Ashley Slade scored 14 points on 14-of-17 free throw shooting to lead the Stags, who finished 19 for 24 from the line. Hannah Bach added 12 points for Kingsley.

For Charlevoix, Meridith Rich scored 12 points and grabbed eight rebounds, while KC McCaty had nine points and 10 rebounds.

"We're still finding our way a little bit," Erskine said. "It's a long season. You never learn anything by winning every game. (A loss) knocks you back down to reality. I think this'll really help put some fire back into them and get them back into it."

Charlevoix won the JV game, [illegible].

401K in the toilet? Market got you down?

One local financial advisor says now is the best time to buy

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Instead of stocking shotguns and bottled water for what some fear is the death of capitalism, Edward Jones financial advisor Ben Muladore said you should be stocking up on stock

And, the investment expert will be giving a talk on personal investing—for pros as well as novices—at 1 p.m., Dec. 11 at the Charlevoix Public Library

"Panic is not an investment strategy," Muladore said. "If you have a financial plan in place you'll have an idea of how much income you need to retire, where your investments are."

Investors should not base decisions, for example whether to increase or decrease funding your 401K, on the market's highs or lows.

"You should not deviate from your plan for what's normal. It's normal for the market to go up and down. Obviously the best way to make money is to buy when the stocks are low and sell when the stocks are high," Muladore said. "Right now the market is down roughly 40 percent over last year and stocks are low. If you buy now, then when the economy goes back up you will be positioned to ... have more assets. They will have appreciated."

Factors investors should consider include how many years they are from retiring and their comfort level with various higher and lower risk investments.

Beware, Muladore said, the talking heads on cable TV who bark the day's hot and cold stocks.

"Ultimately they're trying to make money ... by selling advertisements," he said. "They do that by getting people to watch. If Jim Cramer (host of CNBC's "Mad Money") is running around and yelling, their veiwership increases and they sell more advertisements. (Investors) should listen to good quality investments and good portfolio diversification—the rest is just noise from people running around and yelling."

If opening your 401K statement gives you heartburn, Muladore said, don't open it.

"Ignore it. Take a walk. Turn off the TV," he said, adding that, "If you are losing sleep at night, then it may not be smart to be investing in the market. Someone's health is more important."

If you have not spoken with an investment specialist, Muladore suggested you do yourself a favor and make an appointment.

"The first thing you want to ask is how (they) get paid," he said. "If they're not upfront on how they're compensated, that would be a red flag that would go up for me."

Telling your advisor your future plans will help them help you make the wisest investments possible.

Following Muladore's talk on Dec. 11, there will be an open discussion and question and answer time for those in attendance.

Public is welcome to this free event.

No layoffs at St. Marys Cement

CHRISTINA ROHN
NEWS-REVIEW WRITER

CHARLEVOIX — St. Marys Cement Plant in Charlevoix made the holidays a little brighter for its employees recently when it reversed a decision to temporarily lay off 80 percent of its workforce from Dec. 1-29.

Dirk Cox, operations manager for St. Marys Cement, said news of the reversal came from their corporate office, St. Marys Cement Group in Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

"The decision was made by (corporate) six days before the lay-off was to take place," Cox said. "It's a little bit of good news in the bleak economic conditions we're in."

Cox said corporate informed their plant that "market conditions had changed."

"So there will be no lay-offs in the Charlevoix plant in 2008 — hopefully we'll be able to say this at the end of 2009," he said.

According to Cox, the Charlevoix plant is the only St Marys Cement Group plant that has not yet suffered lay-offs.

Both the company's plants in St. Marys and Bowmanville, Ontario, have experienced lay-offs, and their Dixon, Ill., plant is ceasing operations.

"Without exception, every other St. Marys (plant) is shut down or has lay-offs — we're the only one running," Cox said. "At this point, our market for our distribution warrants us running."

Cox said, for now, he is enjoying the recent turn of events.

"It makes me feel fantastic. These are great people here and they work hard," he said. "I look at this as a reward for their good performance."

HELP

spends a lot of his time sleeping.

"He is quite ill. But, he has his good days and his bad days," she added.

Joddy was diagnosed in 1996 with Hepatitis C. He was just recently put on the transplant list this fall.

"It has been a struggle. He just tries to take it one day at a time. We try not to let the disease control our lives," Beth said in regards to her husband.

Joddy is a man of many talents, and has spent most of his life doing work that helped others.

He spent many hours teaching teens and adults how to write songs, and play the guitar.

In his time on the island, Joddy has played with Shifting Souls, Claudia Schmidt, and Prisoners of Paradise.

Joddy is also a builder and finish carpenter. He built The Mamba Room recording studio on Beaver Island, and Joe's recording studio for Victor DeLorenzo of The Violent Femmes.

Dunn, who plays Ron Witwicky in Transformers, owns a home on Beaver Island, and is a long time friend of Joddy and Beth's.

They met in a pub on the island in 1997.

Dunn auctioned off a one of a kind autographed hat on eBay to help Joddy.

"When he was filming Transformers, Joddy was in and out of the hospital. It got real expensive to keep flying to and from the island. Kevin (Dunn) wanted to do something to help, and he came up with this idea all on his own. We just learned about it ourselves as well," Beth said. "I cannot say how big of a thank you we owe Kevin. His gift is so sweet, and so amazing. It is a very generous thing he is doing for our family."

Joddy and Beth have two sons, Stryder who is 24 and Saygan who is 19.

They are all touched by what Dunn is doing.

The hat that was auctioned said Transformers across the side, and was signed by many of the actors in the movie. Costars Shia LeBeouf, Megan Fox, Josh Duhamel, Tyrese Gibson, Mathew Marsden, Kevin Dunn, and Julie White all signed the hat.

Everyone thought it was cool. They were all happy to sign the hat and help," Dunn said in regards to the Transformers cast. "I hope it can raise a lot of money. I hope the hat goes to some real big Transformers fan. It's really a good cause; the disease he (Joddy) is fighting is tough. My hope in doing this was to help them out," Dunn added.

The Croswhites plan on putting the money from the auction into a separate bank account for the time when Joddy goes for his transplant.

"We know we will have to be going to the hospitals often, and we may even have to live in Ann Arbor for a while. It is going to be costly. The money from Kevin's auction will help," Beth said.

Anyone who wishes to donate to the Croswhites can do so by sending a check to: The Croswhite Family at P.O. Box 143, Beaver Island, MI 49782.

wastewater treatment plant, water treatment plant, the electrical and water building and the streets building," he said. "We're hoping to be connected sometime in 2009, but those connections will be contingent on whether we have money in the budget."

While the speed of fiber optic cable cannot be compared to dial-up or DSL, Charlevoix Public Schools technology coordinator Scott Mays said it will be several times faster than the fastest commercially available Internet in the area.

"Theoretically, the only limitation to fiber is the electronic component itself," he said. "A hundred gigabyte is perfectly reasonable and they believe it could go faster than that, but currently the equipment that is available is 10 GB."

While the exact finish date remains in question, Mays said the system could be up and running by February—and it cannot come fast enough.

"The connectivity between buildings is very limited right now and this will ... enable us to eliminate some (phone) leases so that cost will be reduced. It'll speed up our Internet bandwidth between buildings, centralize some technology resources so we do not have to duplicate from building to building," he said.

Approximately 90 percent of the cable, Mays said, will be strung above ground, while the remainder will be laid underground in places such as under the Pine River Channel.

The life on the cable can be many decades, which makes the investment all the more beneficial, Mays said.

"They have cable that has been around for 50 years," he said. "I think we're probably looking at a 20 to 30 year life."

In addition to saving the city an undetermined amount of money by building its own phone system off the fiber optic lines, Straebel said the future could hold meter reading without sending individuals into the field and the transfer and monitoring of large amounts of data throughout the various municipal locations.

Decorating for the family

Sisters Sandy Kilmartin (left) and Judy Baker worked decorating the community room at Pine River Place, where they live, in anticipation of a Christmas family get-together they have been planning for nearly a year. Baker and Kilmartin decorated 16 Christmas trees—one for each member of the family—dozens of treats from homemade bread and candy to handmade quilts and crafts. The yuletide duo treated their family to lunch, an auction for unmarked Christmas presents—which the participants paid for in play money provided by the sisters—and the family even made popcorn balls from scratch.

Still no contract for teachers

Concerned Charlevoix Public Schools Administration were considering outsourcing, a packed house of support staff attended the board of education meeting on Dec. 8.

And, while the schools have instated a plan to use a third-party employment service for future bus driver's hired, Charlevoix Schools' Superintendent Chet Janik said there has been no discussion and there are no intentions to outsource support staff positions.

"We are trying to be as proactive as we can," Janik said. "We certainly value the work the support staff has done and will continue to do."

But, he added, "Our number one priority has to be maintaining our high academic standards."

The concern apparently arose from the decision not to give a part time kitchen employee full, free medical benefits.

"By employing through PMP (a company which supplies workers for various positions) we saved close to $9,000," Janik said. "And, in an era of deficit spending, our goal is to keep the cuts away from the classroom and maintain high academic standards."

The board held a closed session discussion on the contract negotiations currently in limbo with the teachers and various support staff later than evening.

Charlevoix's Got Talent

COURTESY PHOTO

First place winner of the Charlevoix High School performing arts class's community-wide talent show Charlevoix's Got Talent was Colton Leese, stage name Colt Taylor, who sang an original score entitled "At All." Leese/Taylor won the $100 cash prize. Second place went to Michael Patrick's band, "Don't Touch the Trim" playing the pop song "Boston." Third place was garnered by Raymond Shenoskey II with a traditional Native American Hoop dance. Pictured are Shenoskey in the American Indian costume, Patrick in the white shirt and Leese/Taylor accepting his prize money. Leese/Taylor practices daily at home on a baby grand piano.

Lesson in gratitude

This season brings its own Christmas miracle for Kenneth and June Kunkle after they go through injury, layoffs and more.

The Kunkles have had a rough time these past couple months. First they had a fire in their home, then June fell and broke both her feet, and Kenneth got laid off.

"We are still recovering from it all," June said.

Last April, an electrical fire broke out in the basement of the Kunkle's home. It destroyed everything in the room, and the smoke damage ruined almost everything else on the floor above it.

"Beds, cloths, children's toys, TV's, computers, you name it, we lost it," June said.

To make matters worse, when the house was being repaired, June fell down the stairs in the basement. She broke both of her feet, and had to have six pins put in.

"I'm still using a wheelchair, walker and my cane," she said.

June has been confined to her basement since her fall.

"I'm stuck down here for a little longer. But I'm sure everything will work out for the better. I have faith in that," she said.

After the fire and June's fall, Kenneth was laid off.

Kenneth worked at Harbor Industries.

He has since gone back to work, but is expecting to be laid off again

Approved updated natural hazard plan

Addresses mitigation of floods, tornadoes, wildfires

Working to comply with federal disaster planning provisions instated in 2000, Charlevoix County officials recently re-released their comprehensive hazard mitigation plan.

What began with brainstorming sessions in 2004 culminated with a tomb outlining potential threats from thunderstorms, tornadoes, wildfires, blizzards and more which was approved several years ago, but was required to be changed by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) when they suggested planners make some minor formatting changes and readopt the updated document.

"Where were you when Kennedy was shot?" she asked.

Charlevoix High School economics/government teacher Annemarie Conway said taking her 38 students to witness the inauguration of America's first black president will rank with the highest points in her life.

"Future generations will ask, 'Where were you when President (Barack) Obama was sworn in?'" she said. "This is one of those historical things where time will stand still for a moment or two and then we'll move on."

In addition to attending the presidential inauguration, the students will attend the Michigan Inaugural Ball.

"This is just an amazing occasion," Conway said. "They are planning on 1.5 million people being there in (Washington) D.C. and they're trying to figure out how they're going to do this."

The inaugural events will occur Jan. 20, but the students will have the opportunity on Jan. 19, to attend a commemoration for Dr. Martin Luther King at the Lincoln Memorial.

"We're really thankful for the ability to do this," Conway said. "I hope they (students) can see this for the rest of their life as 'I was there for this amazing historical event.'"

The trip is the culmination of months of work the students performed helping with their chosen presidential campaigns answering phones and passing out literature.

"We have been very involved with the elections," Conway said. "We followed the primaries and the general election and the students worked to get out the vote and remind people where to vote and what the issues were."

Away for the Holidays?

Follow these tips to protect your home

Everyone looks forward to this time of year: including burglars.

With many people away, visiting friends, or just out of the house shopping, there are many good prospects for break-ins.

Experts agree that it is a very vulnerable time for homeowners.

Follow these precautions to avoid being burgalarized.

- Examine the exterior of your house
- Make sure all locked doors and windows have a tight fit when closed
- Check to see it there is any "wiggle room" that could give a thief enough space to jimmy open
- Walk around your whole property to ensure there is nothing that can be used to climb to upper floors
- Look in your windows to make sure blinds are positioned to screen the interior view, but not closed completely
- You may want to move any computers and TV's away from prying eyes
- Never leave an "emergency key" hidden outside your house
- Always leave your home in a secure state, regardless of the amount of time you expect to be away
- A burglar watching your house is capable of taking what he wants in a few carefully planned moments
- When you are away from the house, particularly for an extended period, be sure to make it look lived in
- Put timers on a few lights at varied times, put a timer on a radio set to a talk radio station
- Install a dusk/dawn outside light or motion detector

In many instances installing a home alarm system will give you protection, a sense of calm and even a discount on your homeowner's insurance.

Inventory your major possessions. An easy way is to place valuables on tables and videotape your house, room-to-room of all furniture, paintings and other possessions.

Place the list, any photos/videos you took, and perhaps the valuables themselves in a safe separate location.

Tell a trusted neighbor on your block that you will be away.

Activity or noise that might otherwise seem normal to them would be alarming if they knew you are away from home.

Be sure your homeowner's insurance coverage reflects any improvements or purchases that have increased the value of your home or its contents since you get your homeowner's policy

The only thing worse than losing your possessions is not being sufficiently covered to recoup your losses.

10 things you never knew about ... Steve West

Now the Executive Director of the Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce, Steve West grew up in Muskegon, Kalamazoo and Dallas, Texas, before enlisting in the United States Marine Corp and in 1968. West served during the Vietnam war until 1970. In 1973, West graduated from Nazareth College in Kalamazoo with a BA in history and political science. West met his wife Elaine while in college and the two have two sons 30-year-old Gavin, a U.S. Naval Academy graduate who served as an officer in the Marine Corp. and 23-year-old Grant, a Beaver Island High School graduate who enlisted in the Marine Corp as well. Grant leaves for basic training this March.

Q 1. If you could have dinner with anyone, live or dead, who would it be?

A: Winston Churchill. I would like to know how he managed to be such a fine leader in the early days of World War II when the news was so bad. I would like to join him in a cigar.

Q 2. What really makes you mad?

A: Men who abuse women, children and animals. They are a perfect example of unmanly cowards. Fake combat vets (peeve) me off a bit also.

Q 3. If you could change one thing about yourself or your world, what would it be?

A: The world would be a much safer and prosperous place if all humans had the benefits of basic democracy and capitalism

Q 4. What is something few people know about you?

A: Within a period of weeks, while serving in Vietnam, I almost died twice: Once by a sniper's bullet that missed me by inches and then I got dysentery and almost died of that. After those experiences, life's little trials and tribulations don't seem very stressful.

Q 5. Describe the perfect day.

A: A sunny summer day on a Beaver Island beach.

Q 6. How did you get into your line of work and what do you like best about it?

A: Jonied Kalamazoo based medical products giant—it was small then—right out of college as a marketing trainee. Being the chief sales person is a great job that is enjoyable 99 percent of the time.

Q 7. What is your biggest fear?

A: Islamic radicals: It's not luck that we have not been attacked at home again since 9/11.

Q 8. Name something you yet want to accomplish.

A: Hey I quit smoking ... now if I can just lose the extra 40 pounds I gained.

Q 9. What are your hobbies/how do you spend your free time?

A: I enjoy learning. So much of it is wasted on kids. I study military and diplomatic history 1940 to present. Also, clean energy development. Also enjoy fishing and hunting.

Q 10. What makes you unique? How are you unlike anyone else

A: I'm not unique. I'm blessed with a wonderful wife and two fine sons and live in a very special place where folks look out for, and care for, one another very unlike the worldwide norm.

Senate passes Allen legislation

The Senate recently unanimously approved legislation that will ease the participation of charitable foundations in community and economic development projects, said Sen. Jason Allen, who sponsored the measure.

The northern Michigan lawmaker said many development projects involve a mix of public and private participants. The goal is not to earn a profit for the participants, but to create conditions where the whole community may benefit from more affordable housing or improvement in the local economic infrastructure. In these situations, a common management vehicle is a Limited Liability Company, or LLC.

Allen's Senate Bill 1445 creates a new charitable-purpose LLC called a Low-Profit Limited Liability Company, or L3C.

"Current IRS regulations make it difficult for private nonprofit entities, like charitable foundations, to participate in such ventures when they are structured as LLCs," said Allen, (R-Traverse City). "Our reform plan simplifies the system and is good news for organizations that are working to improve the quality of life for Michigan residents."

The Senate also approved SB 1446, a companion bill that includes technical changes and establishes conditions for dissolving an LLC.

"With Michigan continuing to face economic challenges, these measures will be a big plus for organizations and communities that are striving to make a difference," Allen said.

The legislation now goes to the Michigan House for further consideration.

Celebrating the Winter Solstice

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

As part of an annual attempt to connect us to rest of the living and the physical world surrounding us, herewith my once a year effort to encourage the celebration of the winter solstice.

Even if we only see the sun once a week this time of year, we continue to be dependent on it in many ways.

We are about to observe one of the world's great holidays. No, not Christmas, not Hanukkah, not Ramadan, not Kwanzaa, not the New Year, not Flurry Fest—although the clustering of so many ethnic, religious and commercial celebrations at about the same time of the year is no accident.

What we will observe is a world holiday, an astronomical one, not an ethnic, religious or geographic one.

We are approaching the winter solstice; an occasion that has been celebrated in some way for almost as long as there have been human beings living some distance from the equator.

For most of us in the modern world, the solstice is just a date on the calendar which in the northern hemisphere of our earth is sometimes called the beginning of winter.

The word, "solstice," literally means a stopping of the sun.

Surrounded as we are with artificial light at all seasons of the year, it may be difficult to understand the significance that early temperate zone humans attached to the one day when the sun, which had been inexorably moving lower and lower in the sky, stopped its descent.

Back when we believed in fickle gods who might do anything to us or for us, people built great fires and performed all sorts of rituals and entreaties in hopes of luring the sun back from its distant journey; just as we now deck our houses and businesses with lights.

The day the sun stopped moving away and began to return was probably the greatest day each year.

Long before we had calendars or months or weeks, people knew intimately the pattern of movement of the sun, source of warmth and life That the hours of light began to lengthen and the conviction that the sun was surely returning, must have helped make the cold of winter more tolerable for those people who had winter. And it should make it more tolerable for us.

Even if we humans do not much note the beginning of longer days, we are surrounded by creatures who do.

There is not likely any native plant or animal here in northern Michigan that is not at some level aware that the solstice is passed and that the days are getting longer.

The built-in clock which almost all creatures share , is accurate to within ten minutes, even in the most unconscious plant. So surely by the first week in January on our calendar, everything but us humans will know the solstice has passed and days are lengthening.

Those little hormonal signals that guide the behavior and activities of every living thing have begun to tell them that spring is on the way and they should be getting ready. Buds on plants are months from swelling and doing anything we can see, but deep down inside, they are beginning to make ready.

Little microscopic hints of cell division and growth are already under way.

Our exalted humanness doesn't totally keep us from awareness that days are short. Some number of us suffer notably from what is called Seasonal Affective Disorder, appropriately abbreviated SAD.

Depression of varying degrees of seriousness is part of winter for many of us. The cure for such depression is, not surprisingly, exposure to bright light for some additional hours each day.

The Solstice might appropriately remind us that we are tied to the world and all its living things by bonds much stronger and longer lasting than any of the more recently inaugurated human holidays on our calendar. Celebrate the Solstice.

WEEKLY POLL

This week's poll question:
Should Congress reconsider and offer the Big Three bridge loans?

Healing a broken heart; take a closer walk with He

FAITHFUL SERVANT

Stephen Guthrie

I have a friend, let's call him Abner, who is going through a heart-breaking divorce.

His wife's sudden decision to walk away from the marriage in which he had invested one third of his life imposed on him overnight new agenda not of his own choosing.

It has been a bewildering and disappointing outcome to the life he had planned, and each day he cycles through a full gamut of emotions: disbelief, denial, the anger of betrayal, confusion, fear, regret.

Sometimes he cries, sometimes he yells, and sometimes he just sits there numbed by it all.

Abner called the other night, looking for another human heart to walk alongside him for a while as he tries to make sense of it all.

He asked this simple question: what can I do to be happy again?

Abner's question resonates with anyone who has experienced any sort of loss, as everyone,has and will again.

Loss of a marriage ranks right up there with loss of a loved one, loss of a livelihood, loss of health, and loss of a pet as an example of a significant emotional event that can send a person reeling in pain.

There are really two questions buried in Abner's plea, and in the counseling office I routinely find myself helping people who are experiencing major loss understand and respond to them separately.

First, when Abner asks what he can do to be happy again the real question is how can he rewind his life back to the place it was before this calamity struck? The answer to Abner's first question is that he will never in his life be at that place again. He will never be that person, nor will his wife, and there is no reset button that will bring to life that which has died.

It is gone but not forgotten, and Abner is now faced with the process of grieving the loss.

As hard as it is to receive that answer as reality, it is essential that the grieving person understand there has been a line drawn in their life they will never step back across. Understanding there is no real option to go back, they are then able to begin the process of going forward.

The point I made with Abner, and the hope I would offer anyone who has lost the seemingly irreplaceable, is that while you will never again have what has been lost, on the other side of grief is a new reality that is just now still out of sight.

It will have new people in it, new pleasures and treasures and traditions.

It will not be the same as the old life, it may not even be similar, but there is a huge likelihood it will be just as good and a great chance it will be better.

Life doesn't end with the loss, it changes and redefines itself and puts on new clothing.

The transition will not occur overnight, and it will not come without a lot of work. But just as life goes on there is a new day coming and it brings with it a new reality.

It is well understood that you cannot bypass grief. If you stuff grief it rots you from within. You can't go around, over, or under. You must go through it.

Some people take ten minutes, others 10 months, and while the grief process can go awry there really isn't any one "right" way to do it.

But what my friend Abner knows is that he need not travel that hard road alone. He walks hand in hand with Jesus, that very personal savior, Himself so familiar with the pain of betrayal.

Abner trusts Jesus will lead him safely down a road where he can't see more than a couple steps ahead.

While they walk Abner tells how much it hurts, and Jesus offers him the care and comfort for which He is renowned.

And when it seems Abner can't take another step, he is carried a while in much the same loving way a loving dad carries an exhausted child off to bed.

Together they go forward into a new reality, a different life from that which was lost, but with tremendous potential to be better.

I mentioned that there is a second dimension to the answer to Abner's question of whether and how he will ever be happy again.

The second answer to that question lies in the distinction between happiness and joy. The two terms are used almost interchangeably, but actually refer to two largely unrelated concepts we will explore in the next installment.

FLURRY FEST FANTASTIC

Editor:

The Charlevoix Merchants Open House and Second Annual Flurry Fest are in the books and we're once again reminded of how fortunate we are to live in our close-knit northern Michigan communities.

Faced with plenty of flurries and gusting winds for the second consecutive year, area residents once again flocked to Downtown Charlevoix in search of great deals, engaging entertainment, and most important of all, community cheer.

This event couldn't have enjoyed its success without the numerous businesses willing to invest in Downtown Charlevoix.

Our corporate sponsors deserve a great deal of credit for financially supporting Flurry Fest when budget times are particularly difficult.

At least eight corporate sponsors were integral partners in supporting Saturday's festivities.

Seamless logistical support made certain the event began at the appointed hour and ended when necessary allowing Bridge Street/US 31 to be reopened almost an hour ahead of schedule. This assistance was made possible through the combined efforts of the City of Charlevoix's electric, fire, police and street departments who once again demonstrated unmatched professionalism and commitment to our citizens.

The Charlevoix Volunteer Firefighter's Association again delivered Santa to the throngs of children anxious to bend his ear about their Christmas wishes.

And, coordinating municipal event support fell to Ms. Linda Weller in the office of the city manager, who made certain everything happened as it should.

Events don't plan themselves, and the energy and resources put into the Merchants Open House and Flurry Fest on behalf of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, its staff and several of its individual members cannot be understated.

Sincere thanks are extended to various local downtown stores for allowing their respective business owners to spend the past two months planning this event.

Mr. Gary Stutzman once again helped put together a top notch slate of entertainment featuring Jeff & Maggie, Tuba Christmas, the North Country String Band and the Petoskey Steel Drum Band.

And finally, extra special thanks to the many families who chose to spend all or part of their Saturday in Downtown Charlevoix or in other area retail stores.

We know you work hard to earn your paycheck and our area retailers work hard to earn your holiday business.

Thank you for your patronage and your support of our local economy.

If the Merchants Open House and Flurry Fest help entice you to town on a blustery December day, you've got our word we'll continue to make it happen.

Merry Christmas and Happy Holidays,

Keith Carey

State seeks grant proposals to expand ag' products

Michigan Department of Agriculture (MDA) Director Don Koivisto today announced USDA's Federal-State Marketing Improvement Program (FSMIP) will distribute $1.3 million in federal matching funds nationwide to the food and agriculture industry.

The program is administered by MDA and other state departments of agriculture.

"We encourage Michigan food and agriculture organizations to take advantage of this opportunity to expand their programs," said Koivisto. "The program leverages federal and private resources to develop and enhance Michigan's dynamic $63.7 billion agriculture industry."

FSMIP funds a wide-range of applied research projects that address barriers, challenges, and opportunities in marketing, transportation, and distribution of U.S. food and agricultural products domestically and internationally.

Eligible agricultural categories include livestock, livestock products, food and feed crops, fish, horticulture, viticulture, apiary, and forest products and processed or manufactured products derived from such commodities. Reflecting the growing diversity of U.S. agriculture in recent years, FSMIP has funded projects dealing with nutraceuticals, bioenergy, compost, and products made from agricultural residues.

Proposals may deal with barriers, challenges, or opportunities manifesting at any stage of the marketing chain including direct, wholesale, and retail. Proposals may involve small, medium, or large-scale agricultural entities but should potentially benefit multiple producers or agribusinesses. Proprietary proposals that benefit one business or individual will not be considered.

Proposals should include an additional five percent in the salary/fringe line for MDA FSMIP grant oversight. Proposals reflecting a collaborative approach between states, academia, and the farm sector are of particular interest.

The application and guidelines are available at www.ams.usda.gov/FSMIP. Proposals must be received by 5:00 p.m. on Monday, January 12, 2009.

MDA will review and forward approved submissions to USDA.

Applications should be submitted electronically to Mike DiBernardo, MDA Agriculture Development Division, at dibernardom@michigan.gov or (517) 373-9144.

Charlevoix County Community Foundation

Grants awarded

From the purchase of a snow groomer to a digital imaging art exhibit, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation's Youth Advisory Committee supports a variety of local programs to benefit young people. Members of the committee, who represent six high schools throughout the County, awarded nine grants totaling $23,939.

Organizations chosen to receive youth committee grants and the amount of the awards include

- Challenge Mountain of Walloon Hills, Inc. $2,500 to purchase helmets for use in adaptive winter programs
- City of Charlevoix - $3,000to purchase a snow groomer for Mt. McSauba
- Crooked Tree Arts Center - $1,600 to support after school art activities for K-8 students
- Friends of the Jordan River Watershed - $600 to support a summer youth environmental education program
- Harbor Hall - $4,865 to support teenage substance abuse prevention projects
- Jordan River Arts Council - $2,250 for the digital imaging youth art project and exhibit
- Little Traverse Choral Society - $1,000 to present five international children's concerts
- Planned Parenthood of W&N Michigan - $2,724 to provide sexuality education for teenage males
- Raven Hill Discovery Center - $5,400 to support the building connections hands-on learning program

With these recent awards, the youth committee's grantmaking total is over $642,000 since it began distributing grants in 1994.

Money for grantmaking comes from the Youth Fund held by the Community Foundation.

This fund was spearheaded with financial support from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation and now has assets of more than $1 million.

Members of the youth committee are Maeve Green, Jenna Butler, and Brontae Lemmink from Beaver Island; Parker Ameel, Wes Roberge, and Hailey Cooper from Boyne City; Katie Fraser, Hunter Brisson, and Kristen Matelski from Boyne Falls; Jonathon Way, Thomas Parrish, Rachel Boss, and Wade Werth from Charlevoix; James Brown, Molli Andor, and Emily Crick from East Jordan.

A charitable organization dedicated to improving and enriching life in the area, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation accepts gifts from individuals, families, businesses, and civic groups and manages them as permanent endowments.

Every year, a portion of the endowments investment income is used to support programs in education, the environment, the arts, human services, health and wellness, youth activities, community development, and various civic projects. The principal of the endowment continues to grow, providing perpetual charitable capital to benefit Charlevoix County's residents and nonprofit organizations.

Since it was founded in 1992, the foundation has distributed grants totaling over $9.7 million for the common good.

The foundation welcomes inquiries and grant requests.

The next deadline for submitting a grant request is March 1, 2009. For more information about grantmaking opportunities, or the Community Foundation, call (231) 536-2440, or visit the foundation's Web site at www.c3f.org.

Arnold-MacFarlan Wedding

Karen Arnold, daughter of David and Linny Arnold of Charlevoix, and John MacFarlan, son of John (deceased) and Mary Ellen MacFarlan of Redford Township, were married at 11 a.m., July 5 at the Franklin Community Methodist Church in Franklin.

The bride wore an a-line ivory satin gown with a halter neckline decorated with multicolor embroidery and beading. Both bride and maid-of-honor carried white rose bouquets with purple-dipped tips. The best man was the groom's brother-in-law Steve Sersen; maid of honor was Amanda Hartley, fiancee of the brother-of-the-bride. Karen Arnold was escorted down the aisle by both parents to "Nessun Dorma" by Puccini. There were 150 guests in attendance. A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at Idyl Wyld Golf Course in Livonia.

Ushers were Gary Arnold, brother-of-the-bride and Curt Boyea, brother-in-law of the groom.

A duet of "You're the one" was sung by Kimberly Ringer and Jeremy Blaska.

The couple honeymooned on a month-long driving tour through New England.

They are making their home in southeast Michigan where Karen is a teacher librarian at a public school; John works for DTE Energy

Earl Young DVD soon available

COURTESY PHOTO

The Charlevoix Historical Society is producing a DVD on "The Life and Works of Earl Young, Charlevoix's Master Builder in Stone" that will be availabla by the end of the year. This fully narratad, nearly two-hour disc with just over 400 images is basad upon the two programs that Society museum co-diractor David L. Miles presented in 2007 and 2008 at the Society'a Depot and the Charlavoix Public Library. It incorporatea vintage views of Charlevoix in the early 20th century, many taken by Young himself not long aftar he arrived in town aa a 10-year-old in 1900, and a chronological record of the construction of hia thirty unique structures over 55 years, plus video specially shot for this presentation. A major emphasis is on the near loas of the Weathervane Inn in the early 1970a due to channel erosion, and how it was savad. Tha disc retails, with tax, for $21.20. Shipping and handling charge is $3.50 per disc, less for bulk ordera. Gift certificates are available if the disc is not yet ready by Chriatmas. Great Lakes and mighty Mississippi:

breaking up not so hard to do

Leading Great Lakes advocates are calling today for federal leadership and funding for "ecological separation" of the Great Lakes from the Mississippi River basin to protect both great watersheds from the perils of invasive species.

The announcement comes with the release of a new report, "Preliminary Feasibility of Ecological Separation of the Mississippi River and the Great Lakes," which outlines six options for separating the watersheds and halting the transfer of species between them.

"The Great Lakes and the Mississippi River are at risk because of a connection that's nothing natural," said Great Lakes Alliance Vice President for Policy Joel Brammeier, lead author of the report. "Fifteen miles of water and an experimental electric barrier are all that's standing between the Great Lakes and Asian carp. We've got to get serious about a real solution."

Chicago Mayor Richard M. Daley noted that Asian carp in the Mississippi River were a known threat to the Great Lakes back in 2003, when the city hosted a pre-emptive strike: the Chicago Aquatic Invasive Species Summit. "We have been asking for years to complete these electrical barriers," Daley said. "It's time for our federal, state and local partners to follow through on keeping these two great natural resources safe."

A 2003 analysis suggested that separation of the systems could reasonably be achieved within 10 years. With five years now passed and many millions spent, progress on even interim steps such as a permanent electrical barrier has been difficult.

Although Asian carp, known to eat up to 20 percent of their body weight in plankton daily, are the most pressing threat to the Great Lakes, the connection poses threats to both watersheds. The round goby and zebra mussel have both invaded the Mississippi River basin in the past decade via the Chicago Waterway System.

This complex waterway system, engineered in 1900 to reverse the flow of the Chicago River, carries Chicago's wastewater away from Lake Michigan and supports thousands of recreational boaters and the flow of approximately 25 million tons of bulk commodities annually. The study advises that smart investment in new infrastructure can benefit users while eliminating the risk of invasion.

"Invaders like Asian carp are unpredictable, but their effects are catastrophic and irreversible," said Brammeier. "Every day we allow them closer to the Great Lakes, the threat grows larger and the solutions more expensive."

The report identifies several sites upstream from the electrical barrier as likely contenders for ecological separation. Although some changes to navigation would be unavoidable, these locations would allow continued use of the system for wastewater disposal and minimize the impacts on the flow of goods and recreational boaters. The study suggests these traffic flows could even be enhanced if ecological separation was addressed as part of a revitalization of the Chicago-area navigational infrastructure.

Don't get burned when buying firewood

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources warns those who use wood heat to beware of "ric" or "face" cords of wood.

Measurements of a standard cord:

- Firewood, in non-packaged form, is sold by a measurement called a "cord" or "fraction of a cord." A "cord" is defined as 128 cubic feet when the wood is neatly stacked in a line or row.
- A standard or full "cord" would be eight feet long, four feet wide and four feet high.
- You may also hear or see the terms "ric" or "face" cord or some other local measurement: These terms have no standard measurements, so be careful when purchasing wood from a buyer that uses these terms.
- Make sure that you know the dimensions of the pile of wood that is being sold.
- A "ric" or "face" cord is often a stack of wood that is eight feet long, four feet high and 16 inches to 24 inches wide.

Serving his country

Air force Chief Master Sgt. Gerald K. Thompson is currently deployed to Afghanistan.

The airman serves with the 455th Air Expeditionary Wing at Bagram Air Field to help ensure terrorist insurgents do not regain a foothold in the region.

The air field is the largest military installation in the Islamic Republic of Afghanistan.

The primary mission of the air expeditionary wing is to support the Global War on Terrorism by providing aerial support for the U.S. and coalition forces on the ground during Operation Enduring Freedom.

Service members combat terrorism and help the Afghan people build for a better future.

Thompson serves as the ammunition program manager for the Afghanistan National Security Forces.

The Chief Master Sergeant manages munitions requirements for the Afghanistan Ministry of Defense, including the Afghanistan National Police and Afghanistan National Army.

He also mentors senior Afghanistan military officers.

Thompson has served in the military for 25 years.

He is the son of Curtis W. and Louise K. Thompson of Charlevoix; and his wife Erin is the daughter of Gabe M. and Karen I. Campbell of Charlevoix.

Thompson graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1981.

Even though it seemed as if they couldn't fall any further, the Kunkles never lost sight of what was important.

"We are so glad no one was killed. We all made it out of that fire OK, and that's what matters. We are still all together," June said.

"I know there are families out there who need help more than us. We are still recovering, but there are so many people who aren't as lucky as us," she said. "I hope no one has to go through what we did. It's so terrible."

Although the Kunkles hit a few rough times, they are doing pretty good according to June.

They are back in their home, and have presents under the tree.

June said everyone is going to be just fine.

Happy Holidays

In times of economic uncertainty, there is some relief in closing a year and looking forward to the next with hope. But we also humbly recognize all that we have to be grateful for in these times. We had another very busy year, and have been blessed in numerous ways.

We are especially thankful for you: our clients, our friends, our families, and our community. We couldn't do it without you, and wouldn't want to. Your support is critical to our survival as a business, but your friendship is what makes it worthwhile.

At Christmas and always, we wish to express our deep thankfulness and warmest wishes.
Have a merry, merry Christmas and a fruitful New Year.

What is the cost of saving?

CONTRACT

As it stands, the board is offering teachers and support staff the same raise and change in benefits as it gave administration and bus drivers who were employed with the schools previous to July 1: a two percent raise in pay and a change from the Michigan Education Association's more costly MESSA health plan to the less expensive Blue Cross/Blue Shield health coverage insurance.

"Do we spend that money we saved on a part-time employee or do we spend it on text books and classrooms?" Janik said. "We had 33 people apply for that part-time opening in the kitchen, so there was obviously interest in that position."

The schools have saved nearly $40,000 by omitting benefits when hiring the five new employees.

The board also approved a revision to the budget which has the schools in a deficit of more than $300,000. The deficit was previously expetected to be much higher, but the schools retained more students than they had planned and the board was able to make various cuts in expenditures in addition to selling the former administration building on Clinton Street for nearly $100,000.

Other cost-cutting measures include a resignation incentive plan.

"Teachers who are on step 20 of the pay scale, which basically means they've been here 20 years, if they announce their retirement for next year by Jan. 31, 2009 they will get a one-time payment of $15,000 into their 403(b) (retirement) plan," Janik said. "As we face declining enrollment, a teacher at that pay scale costs us over $100,000 with Social Security, retirement, FICA."

There are currently 16 teachers eligible for the resignation incentive plan.

"This is strictly a voluntary plan. No one is being forced into it," Janik said. "One of our goals is to avoid laying off teachers, so when a teacher retires and we do not replace them, it's a financial savings."

One more savings initiative includes retrofitting and upgrading utilities; a move which could save the district as much as $76,000 each year.

Support staff chief negotiator Cindy Whitley did not return calls by press time.

Teachers and support staff continue to receive their previous contract wages and benefits until a new contract

Natural hazard plan

PLAN

"We have been asked to submit this plan in its current form," said Charlevoix County Emergency Management Coordinator Jack Messer. "That will allow us then to be eligible for mitigation grants should the dollars come available or should we suffer an actual natural hazard."

He added that, while this is merely a formality, it is an important one.

"Hazard mitigation is any action taken before, during or after a disaster to permanently eliminate or reduce the long-term risk to human life and property from natural and technological hazards," stated authors of the plan produced by the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments."

Goals of the plan include increasing local participation in planing for natural hazards like fire and extreme weather, a move to integrate planning for natural hazards into general county planning, utilize existing and seek additional resources to aid in natural hazards planning.

The top natural hazards which occur or could potentially occur in Charlevoix County include heavy, deep snow; extreme cold, disabled water and electrical systems, high winds, hail, flooding and fire: Especially in areas where there are no water sources accessible to firefighters.

Top areas of concern include potential flooding of the Boyne River/East Jordan area, a 90,000 gallon propane storage tank on M-75 South and the spent fuel rods at the site of the former Big Rock Nuclear plant in Charlevoix Township.

Plans to deal with potential natural hazards include rethinking tree planting/forestry management near utility lines, working with utility companies to possibly relocate utility lines underground; improve if existing or build public shelters, equip emergency response vehicles with water source location maps, consider recommending that all festival planners provide natural hazard mitigation plans in the event an emergency befell their respective event and educate the citizenry on the importance and details of constructing a 72-hour self-reliance plan.

According to the hazards mitigation plan, Michigan governors have declared 46 major disasters—from severe storms, floods, winter storms and tornadoes to fires and technical disasters—between the years 1977 to 2001.

Manage the "Four C's" of Winter Fire Risks:
Chimneys, Candles, Christmas Trees & Children

Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year's Eve – These holidays mean celebrations, many of them in decorated homes filled with merry-making family members and friends.

The National Fire Protection Association reports that, over the course of a calendar year, the 10 worst days for fires in homes fall between December 24 and January 6.

Fortunately, these risks can be reduced with safe practices that address the "four Cs" of winter fires: chimneys, candles, Christmas trees and children.

Chimneys
Buildup or blockage within a chimney can catch fire. Chimney fires are unpredictable: they can be noisy and fierce, or can smolder undetected.
Common-sense tips:
- If you haven't checked or cleaned the chimney in the past two years, don't use it.
- Have a pro inspect the chimney for creosote (which is what builds up in a chimney and fuels a chimney fire).
- Use dry wood. This minimizes creosote buildup.
- Don't burn wrapping paper, boxes, trash or Christmas trees.
- Don't use liquid to start a fire. Use kindling.

Remember fireplace basics, too: use a screen to contain sparks, and let ashes cool before disposing of them in a metal container.

Candles
Home candle fires happen on Christmas Day more often than any other day, according to the National Fire Protection Association. Next worst: New Year's Day and Christmas Eve. How do they start? Half of home candle fires begin because an item is left near a lit candle. Four out of 10 home candle fires start in bedrooms, with bedding, furniture and curtains igniting.
Common-sense tips:
- Make sure all candles are out before you leave a room or go to bed.
- Keep clothing, curtains, furniture and other flammable items away from candles and flame.
- Use candleholders that don't tip over.

Christmas Trees
The National Fire Protection Association notes that 300 home fires start each year with Christmas trees. It's not just live trees, artificial trees also burn. Three major reasons Christmas tree fires start: electric malfunctions, heat too close to the tree, and children playing with matches, candles, or fireplaces.
Common-sense tips:
- Buy a cut tree that has green, fresh needles.
- Buy a fake tree that is fire resistant.
- Use a secure stand.
- Locate trees a minimum of three feet from heat sources such as fireplaces and radiators.
- Water live-cut trees every day.
- Use lights listed by an industrial laboratory. Link together, at most, only three strands of bulbs.
- Throw out lights that have frayed or broken cords.
- Pull the plug on lights before going to bed or leaving home.
- When a tree starts dropping needles, it's time to dispose of it (outside, not in the house, garage or basement).

Children
Perhaps the most unpredictable risks for winter fires are those young people who are, naturally, exploring and experiencing the wonders of the winter world for the first time. Remember that light and flames are fascinating to children.
Common-sense tips:
- Watch the wires. Keep kids away from light strands and power cords.
- Matches, candles, stoves and ovens often get extra use during the holidays, at a time when adults are occupied with cooking, cleaning and entertaining. Stop and ask "What might draw a child's curiosity in this house?" Then shield children from those items, physically and through discipline and direction.
- Put matches/lighters out of children's reach. Use lighters that have a child-resistant safety feature.
- Train children to tell and adult if they see matches or lighters.

Use these common-sense practices to prevent home fires.

Charlevoix's Mat Golovich (right) attempts to get out of the grasp of Boyne City's John Calo during their 140-pound match Thursday. Golovich won the match with a pin in 3 minutes, 8 seconds. It was Golovich's second pin of the night in the Lake Michigan Conference double dual.

Prep wrestling:

Happy feat for Boyne mat men

A first for the resurrected Boyne City High School wrestling program.

Adam Brown recorded two pins as the Ramblers defeated Charlevoix, 36-30, and Elk Rapids, 53-0, Thursday in a Lake Michigan Conference double-dual.

"These were our first conference team wins since we reinstated wrestling (three years ago), and we picked up two tonight," Boyne coach Don Nobel said. "Adam Brown did a nice job pinning both his opponents, leading our seniors who have put a lot of time and effort into the program over the years. It was nice to see their hard work finally pay off."

Charlevoix, wrestling without several athletes due to ineligibility, defeated Elk Rapids, 36-6, in Thursday's other match.

Brown, wrestling at 130 pounds, pinned Charlevoix's Ryan Penfold in 58 seconds, and pinned Elk Rapids' Dave Baldorf in 1 minute, 35 seconds.

Drew Nobel and Marc Calo also had pins in Boyne's victory over Charlevoix. Nobel, 171, pinned Christopher Kere in 26 seconds, and Calo, 189, pinned Clay Heise in 1:15.

Charlevoix's Mat Golovich pinned Jon Calo in 3:08 at 140 pounds, and the Rayders' Jacob Roach pinned Jack Diener in 3:50 in the heavyweight match. Charlevoix's Alex Waha defeated Chris Bersona by disqualification at 135.

Boyne's Cody Wilmot, 152, Josh McGeorge, 160, and Steve Robinson, 215, won by void. Charlevoix's Curtis Russell, 103, and Zeke Daman, 125, won by void.

In Boyne City's win over Elk Rapids, Jon Calo, 145, scored an 18-1 technical fall over Zach Perrault, and Chris Kirkby, 171, pinned Josh Holden in 3:18.

Charlevoix won two of the three of the matches held against Elk Rapids. Golovich pinned Perrault in 1:18 at 145, and Penfold pinned Dave Batdorf in 5:01 at 130.

Chess club up and running

Thanks to generosity of the Charlevoix Knights of Columbus, these Charlevoix Middle School sixth-graders are able to play chess in their newly formed chess club. The Knights donated the chess sets to the school following a plea for donations which appeared in Charlevoix Courier.

Classes on ancient martial art begin soon

Swords, staffs and nunchakus integral to Kuk Sool Hapkido

Soon to begin his 19th year studying Kuk Sool Hapkido, Master Kwan Jang Nim Rich Wojan is ready to share his expertise.

Now a fifth degree master in the ancient martial art of pressure points and weaponry, Wojan is taking students.

"Anybody that would like to work on their health and strength," will enjoy the discipline, said Wojan. "We work on building the mind and body."

Kuk Sool Hapkido, like many martial arts, is of Korean origin and differs in from Tae Kwon Do in that there are hundreds more techniques in addition to employing weapons and everyday objects like ropes and canes.

"It's pretty tough training," Wojan said. "I was quite overweight at the time I began, and it was good for my health."

He added, "It's good for the physical and the mental."

Cost to attend the classes is $20 per month for adults and $15 per month for children.

No special uniforms are required for beginners; basic workout gear is adequate.

Classes will meet from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Wednesdays in the beginning and will expand to Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursdays at the same time once the new year is underway.

Classes will be held at the Charlevoix Baptist Church across from the post office on M66. Call 547-5776 or 547-4776 or e-mail richwojan@charter.net for more information.

Wojan's assistant is long-time training partner and fourth degree master Dan Soullier.

FEB. 5

Your help is needed for Project Connect

Human service agencies in Emmet and Charlevoix Counties are once again joining forces for the second annual Project Connect. The event will be held from 10 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. on Feb. 5 at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Petoskey.

Project Connect aims to connect people in need with a range of health and human services needed to improve their lives.

"Project Connect cuts through the red tape that so often makes it difficult for people in need to access the services they need," said Jamie Winters, Chair of the Homeless Continuum of Care work group of the Charlevoix-Emmet Human Services Coordinating Body (HSCB) and Safe Home Coordinator for the Women's Resource Center. "By bringing together all of the services in one place, in one day, we can make an immediate difference in the lives of many."

The planning group anticipates an event both bigger and better than last year.

Over 40 non-profit agencies, businesses, and service providers will participate, providing services, goods, benefits sign-up, direct referrals, etc. on-site at Project Connect.

Over 600 people are expected to attend. All will be provided with a hot meal and bags of food, personal care items, and household goods to take home.

A clothing area will allow guests to select clothing for themselves and their families.

"Obviously a project of this size brings together a huge number of partners," said Lorraine Manary, coordinator of the HSCB. "We are in need of volunteer assistance – both in advance and at the event; more agencies and businesses to participate; donations of goods; and funds to support the event. Individuals and groups wishing to be involved can contact the HSCB at 347-6701 or United Way at 487-1006."

"United Way is excited about being a part of Project Connect," said Martha Lancaster, Executive Director of Char-Em United Way. "The event links United Way's traditional safety net of basic services with our new focus on improving the financial stability of families."

The local Project Connect is modeled on similar events that have been conducted in more than 130 communities around the country.

It has five key principles:

- Not business as usual
- No waiting in line
- Hospitality from the whole community - The project engages government and business leaders with non-profit agencies and faith communities
- Immediate access to direct services; Not simply referrals
- Quality of life resources including haircuts, massage and foot care, phone calls, eyeglasses, dental and medical care, meals, entertainment, and more.

Project Connect is in need of a wide range of donated goods and funds to purchase them. All donations are tax-deductible, and donors will receive a tax acknowledgment.

Items needed include toiletries, non-perishable foods, hats, gloves, sewing kits, basic medicine cabinet accouterments such as aspirin, cough drops and tooth paste.

To help, call 347-8852, 547-3280 or 487-1006.

East Park trout stream soon underway

City officials expect groundbreaking as early as next month

ENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

City officials recently gave the go-ahead on the long-awaited final piece of Charlevoix's East Park.

The living feature, which will boast a stream, live trout and appropriate natural habitat, will be constructed by local landscape design experts Site Planning Development.

"The two lowest bidders were a mere $700 different," said Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel. "It allows the city to hire the most qualified, not necessarily the lowest, bidder."

With a tentative deadline for construction of May 15, 2009, the project is expected to cost $200,209.50.

"We did interviews with both Drost and Site Planning. We looked at some of the examples of both companies' work and toured some of the sites they have created in the past," Straebel said. "We checked references on both companies and we were confident that Site Planning could do the work and do it well while saving the city some (money) on the project."

Straebel added that Drost was also a competent firm, but that only one could be chosen.

"We do think that both companies were qualified to do the project," he said. "Drost has some amazing work in

Amber Smith is pictured here with her son Marshall, who recently under went a heart transplant.

One year old Marshall Smith received a heart transplant in October.

"The doctors said he got a bad viral infection that attacked his heart when he was four months old. His heart was twice the size it should have been, and was only working at eight percent," Amber Smith, Marshalls mother said.

Marshall was put on the heart transplant list on June 23 after going to the emergency room in Charlevoix.

When Smith took her son into the ER, he was immediately airlifted to Detroit.

Veteran politico passes local GOP torch

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Ronald Reagan, John Engler, John McCain and Barry Goldwater: but a few of the names on a long list of politicians John Haggard has worked to try to get elected to office over the years.

And, after nearly two decades as the chairman of the Charlevoix County Republican Party, Haggard has put the party in the proverbial hands of Tim Boyko.

"Tim, I believe, is an organized young man that is more computer moxie than me," Haggard said. "I really believe Tim's leadership is going to guide the Charlevoix County party in a direction that will be very helpful for the county and the state."

While Haggard has opted to no longer serve as chairman, he said he has served too long to quit politics altogether.

"My parents were politically active, my dad in particular before he died in '53," he said. "After I got in college down in Ferris in '59, I was active with a group of fraternity brothers and since then I've been active all along."

Haggard handed out brochures in the 1964 presidential race while in Phoenix, Ariz. for Barry Goldwater.

"I was living with two good friends who were Democrats and I had this banner and his slogan was 'In your heart, you know he's right,'" Haggard said. "I came home one night and they had changed it to say 'In your gut, you know he's nuts.'"

Haggard said he has enjoyed the many people he's met over the years and that he misses some of the elders of Charlevoix County politics who've since died.

"You miss some of the past activists like Oscar Stroud (and others)," Haggard said. "The memories and the ability to meet the people that run our government over the years is an experience I'll never forget."

And, he added, "Hopefully if I'm successful to get re-elected at the state committee in February I'll still be able to remain active at the state and national level."

One of the things he was most proud of is keeping then candidate John Engler to his promise of coming to Charlevoix for their Lincoln Day Dinner after he won the election—which he did.

Haggard has also attended five of national conventions over the past 20 years.

"It's a great experience for anybody who wants to help their communities out, to have the connections of the people that make decisions at the local, state or national level," he said.

And, while at his first state convention, Stroud helped Haggard come close to being elected to the national convention.

"I came up one vote short at my first state convention," he said.

Haggard and his wife have also coordinated the Lincoln Day Dinners over the years and Haggard has been pleased to meet former president George Bush senior, Fred Thompson, Bob Dole and even John McCain, whom Haggard supported over George W. Bush in 2000.

"I'm 68, which is still young, but I made it known at our picnic in July that I wanted to get some younger blood in here to get more energized and more organized and pass on to new leadership," said Haggard, who has every confidence Boyko will fill the position in kind.

Boyko is a former Norwood Township Supervisor who previously served as Hayes Township Supervisor for 10 years with four years on their planning commission and two years as a Charlevoix County Road Commissioner.

Boyko, who has a wife and two children, will assume his two-year term as of Jan. 1, 2009.

"(This) has been an interest of mine since running for the 105th (district seat)," he said. "At that time I really started to appreciate the support of what the county and state parties would do for candidates. As a lifelong politician I had given little effort to supporting the party, and when this opportunity came, I jumped."

Boyko added, "I respected the amount of support I got as a candidate and I wanted to repay that effort."

Boyko will be aided by two co-vice-chairs Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema and Barbara Sheets.

According to Boyko, his mission as chairman will include working with some of the younger up and coming Republicans in the party.

"I'd like to see if we can reach out to the college age and high school age (Republicans) who would like to get involved with politics, both at the state and local level."

Boyko said one of the most important jobs for him will be to listen to people's concerns and to avoid making assumptions about the direction of the country.

"I think we need to spend some time thinking about what it means to be conservative and Republican over the next two years," he said. "Especially in getting ready for state races."

Boyko added, "I also think we have to search out for efficiencies in running our government and eliminate wasteful spending."

NOTICE:

Snowmobiles prohibited on non-motorized paths

Snowmobilers are reminded that snowmobiles are prohibited on paths designated for non-motorized traffic only.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office has received complaints of snowmobilers utilizing the designated bike path along U.S. 31.

Utilizing motorized motor vehicles on the bike path is a citable offense and deputy sheriffs have been advised to issue citations to violators.

In the winter months these paths are frequently used by skiers.

According to the Michigan Penal code (excerpt): 750.419 Operating or riding motorcycle; moped, or other motor vehicle on bicycle path or sidewalk, misdemeanor; exception.

Sec. 419. A person who operates or rides a motorcycle, moped, or other motor vehicle, excepting motorized wheelchairs upon a bicycle path or a sidewalk regularly laid out and constructed for the use of pedestrians, not including a crosswalk or driveway, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Oh Christmas tree, oh Christmas tree

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

'Twas two weeks before Christmas and all through the house, not a creature was stirring, well maybe a mouse.

This story begins many years ago when two families blended into one and celebrated their first Christmas together.

The banter surrounding the purchase of a live Christmas tree brought upon movement heard from the rooftops.

After agreeing on the size and type of tree, the family wrestled with placing it into its stand.

The joy continued with numerous discussions regarding the type of lighting that should encase this fauna and where the holiday décor should find its resting place.

The following year, an artificial tree entered this home and remained there for the next 25 years.

It brought with it fewer discussions and the absence of pine needles that usually found their way into someone's bare foot months after the holiday had passed.

The years moved quickly and the pretend tree began to bend as if it needed its own walker to remain steady.

Time had erased the memory of that first Christmas- similar to how we forget about the pain of childbirth.

Out with the old and in with the new.

The adventure of bringing home the aroma of real pine versus that which comes from an aerosol can, would soon be taking place.

There she stood, a stately beautiful site, boughs beckoning to come home with us.

Carefully bound with twine she looked sleek and performed well as a spoiler while trussed to the roof of the car.

She found her new home in the living room where we would soon begin the delicate dance of placing it into the 20 year plus tree stand.

The weight of the tree began to bend the metal.

Maybe it was the age of the stand but I think it had more to do with the size of the tree going into it.

Houston, we have a problem.

Still forging ahead with the optimism of school kids we delicately balanced the tree between line furnishings and collected art work.

Next came the cutting of the twine. The scene was reminiscent of an "I Love Lucy" re- run.

Branches flew grasping their new found freedom. Vases plummeted from their place of safety, lamps overturned, and somewhere in the confusion I heard Lyle yell, "my eye, my eye."

Yes the tree that looked so tall and slender actually rounded out to an additional five feet with the wing span of a condor.

The living room took on the appearance of something that would be granted disaster funds.

I ventured that soon afterwards a small gray creature resembling a mouse joined the mayhem from his entrance hidden deep in balsam fir.

Things grew tense as I eagerly chimed in, "Martha Stewart trims the bottom of her tree with a sharp knife so it can get a fresh drink daily."

I turned in time to see my husband happily grasp a knife.

Fast forward a couple of hours and our beautiful tree is significantly trimmed.

The extra boughs created a smaller tree which carefully graces the entry way.

As for the original tree—it's bungee corded to the front porch.

She's all decked out in LED lights and a few bows.

When asked why our tree is not in the house we respond "allergies."

From our home to yours: Merry Christmas to all and to all a happy tree trimming night.

This week's poll question:

Has northern Michigan and the rest of the country seen the worst of the economic downturn?

The search for happiness: Part two

FAITHFUL SERVANT

Stephen Guthrie

In an earlier column I wrote of a call from a friend—I dubbed him Abner—dealing with a painful and protracted divorce.

He had just one question on his mind: What do I have to do to be happy again?

In my earlier column I said his question really requires a two-part answer.

The first point I made with Abner, and the hope I would offer anyone who has lost the seemingly irreplaceable, is that while you will never again have what has been lost, on the other side of grief is a new reality that is just now still out of sight.

As unimaginable as it seems right now for Abner, the new life that's coming will eventually be satisfying, meaningful and pleasurable; only different from the life just left behind.

That vision is particularly difficult for persons grieving a lost marriage to see.

Unlike the person grieving a physical death, the divorced person has to process grief in a reality where the former spouse is still very much alive and probably involved, especially if there are children.

The marriage died, but the marriage partner did not, and neither did the friction and pain that usually accompanies divorce.

Grief is prolonged for the divorced person because too often the marriage is the death that just keeps on dying.

It is hard to bury it and hard to bid it farewell because, when people marry, they give a big piece of themselves as an equity stake in a new union, where the whole is expected to become greater than the sum of the parts.

When that new union dies, that investment is lost, and the person enters grief having to relearn on the fly how to be whole in their own person once more.

The second question buried in Abner's plea is when will his circumstances improve so he can be happy again?

I told him he should not settle for just being happy. Instead he should look to be joyful. While happiness is a superficial and transient state of mind, joy is a state of being.

While happiness looks only at the circumstances at the moment, joy considers a number of factors that make life meaningful.

Happiness is a fickle, fleeting feeling. It is an outward barometer of the amount of pleasure in the moment, and that readout changes quickly up or down.

Happiness is an emotion, and since many of us believe incorrectly that our emotions are outside our control we wrongly conclude happiness is imposed on us by our circumstances.

Joy, which has nothing at all to do with our circumstances at the moment, looks at the deeper question of contentment. The person who has learned to be content in their spirit regardless of their situation walks above their circumstances.

They do not require something or someone to make life worthwhile.

Joyful people are those who have made a decision to be satisfied.

Joy has nothing to do with how well we are being entertained, or who won the World Series.

Joy conveys an attitude of gratitude and has the ability to separate what we need from what we want. It is not lusting over the unattainable, but instead reflects the developed ability to admire without the need to acquire.

Joy takes a long-term view of life's triumphs and tragedies, always looking for perspective and how things fit together.

Happiness takes place in the mind, while joy takes place in the human spirit.

Indeed, joy can't happen at all apart from a belief that there is someone larger in charge of the universe.

And that's why joy is possible for Abner. He has grown in the knowledge that Jesus Christ as the one who is able to bring joy to an unhappy situation.

You see, Jesus rarely changes our circumstances. Rather, He walks with us above those circumstances.

His strength and contagious peace are sufficient to bring about something scripture refers to as "the peace that passes all understanding." That's a peace that defies logic, that makes no sense whatsoever to anyone on the outside looking in.

It's the sort of spiritual calm that leads people to wonder if Abner is clueless in Charlevoix or if he really understands how his world is coming off its hinges.

And it is the sort of peace that is yours for the taking, a benefit of living with Christ.

Are you ready for that sort of peace?

Then don't settle for the elusive and fickle feeling of happiness, and go for the joy.

Go for Jesus.

LETTERS to the editor

CALL FOR MEANINGFUL PEACE THIS CHRISTMAS

Editor:

As we celebrate the birth of the baby Jesus, we are called to remember that there is agony and suffering in the places Jesus lived and walked.

While the history of the war in Israel and Palestine is long and complex, the horrible injustice and desperate conditions inflicted on the people of Palestine, in Gaza, and the West Bank is cruel and inhumane.

The great separation wall touted as a security barrier by the Israeli government and costing billions of dollars, encroaches deep into recognized Palestinian land, surrounding towns and cutting deep into Bethlehem and Jerusalem.

The wall separates the people of Palestine from their loved ones, their water and fields, from hospitals and access to food.

The Palestinian people are being pushed into densely populated centers, separated from each other by checkpoints and walls.

For two years, Gaza, the most populated region in the world, and its people have been under siege, blockaded by water, by land and air, cut off from food and water supplies, hospitals and work.

In occupied Palestine, homes are bulldozed, rockets explode and armed Israeli troops threaten families.

Electricity and fuel are shut off, and sewage overflows.

The children are hungry and afraid.

The Palestinian people are being collectively punished for the actions of Hamas and Fahta, actions over which they have no control. The children of Palestine know fear and hate and sink deeper into despair and hopelessness.

Jesus wept over Jerusalem.

He called the little children to come unto him.

As the Prince of Peace, He calls us to feed the hungry and heal the sick.

All terrorism and violence must be condemned.

But it is a great wrong for the world to turn away from the desperate suffering in Palestine.

The United States has long supported Israel.

It is time for the USA to call for and facilitate a meaningful peace for all people who now live in the ancient lands of Palestine and Israel.

The violence must stop.

It is time to end funding the terrifying and inhumane human rights violations against the Palestinian people in Gaza, East Jerusalem, in the West Bank and in Israel.

Only when there is justice will Israel and Palestine be safe from the ravages of terror and war.

ZONTA DATE NIGHT RAFFLE

Editor:

Rene Demanaeus, Wendy Smith, Corrine Russell and Robert Straebel, all of Charlevoix, are winners of a night's stay and dinner for two at a Charlevoix hotel and restaurant.

Zonta thanks all participants and businesses that made this event a success. The proceeds from this fundraiser go to procuring top facilitators for Sights on Success (SOS) a Zonta sponsored workshop for sixth- to ninth-grade girls. For the past few years we have had Laurie Stewart provide this service and she has made great connections with those attending. Zonta has a goal to help women make the best of their lives. What better way to start than with our youth giving them information on choices that they will face, how to work as a team, how to avoid negative peer pressure, how to give back to their communities? Zonta hosted it's fourth SOS session this past November and had a great day. This event is the second Saturday in November and held at Charlevoix Public Library. The workshop is interactive and open free to all girls in driving distance to Charlevoix. If you are interested in working on these types of activities please check out Zonta on line charlevoixzonta.org; zontadistrict15.org; zonta.org or call Linda at 547-4109.

PLEASE HELP SENIOR PARTY

Editor:

The All Night Senior Party committee is in the process of planning the annual after-graduation party for the class of 2009 to celebrate their accomplishments.

This tradition was started many years ago to give the kids a drug, alcohol and now cell phone free senior class party.

For the past few years with our fundraising and the community's help, we have been able to do this at a cost of only $25 per student. This enables all students to participate and enjoy. We are hoping that we can once again meet that goal.

We know things are tough right now but are hoping that a donation of $25 is still affordable. Your donation will be noted on one of the gift bags that each graduating senior will receive. So, if you know a senior that has worked for you or you have enjoyed in a play or athletics, feel free to note their name on your check and we will designate that gift bag on your behalf. If you are unable to donate we know you join us in congratulating the kids for a job well done.

Donations can be made payable to "Charlevoix High School – Senior Party 2009" and mailed to Charlevoix High School, 05200 Marion Center Road, Charlevoix, MI 49720. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact me, Patti Spencley, at 547-5240.

They say it takes a community to raise a child and Charlevoix has certainly come through with these graduates.

Thank-you in advance for all your support and generosity. We guarantee the Class of 2009 will make us all very proud.

Snowmobile crash on Beaver Island under investigation

The Charlevoix county Sheriff's Office and Station 57 EMS responded to the Beaver Island Rural Health Center to a report of a one-vehicle snowmobile personal injury crash. The driver was a 27-year-old man from Beaver Island.

The accident occurred early Dec. 11 on private property off of Donegal Bay road.

The man was snowmobiling down a private road when he struck a chain that was across the road.

The chain was properly marked with orange ribbon.

The man was airlifted by the United States Coast Guard to Charlevoix Area Hospital for treatment.

Poor lighting conditions was thought to be the reason for the crash.

It is unknown if alcohol was a factor.

The incident remains under investigation.

NCCMH recognizes employees

North Country Community Mental Health recently held its annual "Employee Recognition" at Boyne Mountain. Angela Balyo and Terri Cleis were presented the highest form of recognition – the "Achievement Award."

The "Achievement Award" recognizes exemplary service or extraordinary performance. Their peers nominate staff and a committee reviews the nominations and makes a selection based on established criteria. Angie Balyo is the Charlevoix Office Manager and Terri Cleis is a Rehabilitation Specialist at the New Horizons Clubhouse in Rapid City.

The Team Award went to the Community Support Services Team that provides services to individuals with developmental disabilities at the Bay Springs Adult Foster Care home. They were recognized for great team work, excellent services and meeting goals. The members of this team are from the Gaylord office and are: Janelle Kassien, Deb Erber, Bob Latka, Pat DeGrow, and Laura Lenkey.

Two staff were recognized for 30 years of service: From the Petoskey office, Joe Hebel, Program Director for Community Support Services for Persons with Mental Illness and from the Bellaire office, Jan Smith, Assistant Director of Administrative Services.

Other employees recognized 25 years of service Margaret Bachman-Moran and Alison Reed from the Gaylord Developmental Disabilities Services Office; 20 years of service - Cathleen Behan Harvey, Petoskey Office, Matt Manker, Charlevoix Office, Jack Londick and Julie Moran from the Bellaire office; 10 years of service – Kathryn Bamberg, Charlevoix Office; Amy Carey, Petoskey Office; Pam Krasinski-Wespiser, North Country Residential; Kathleen Lantzer and Carole Merritt-Doherty, Kalkaska Office; Jennifer Bunker and Amy Trudeau, Bellaire Office; and Diana Batterbee and Debbie Hiltz, Rapid City Office.

Those staff receiving Certificates of Merit Awards were: Christopher Cornell, North Country Enrichment Center – Boyne City; Katy Hughey, Patricia Crist, Sue Petee, Alison Reed and Marybeth Walkulat from the Gaylord Offices; Maryann Hinzmann and Dale Murton from the Bellaire office, and Dan Taylor, Susan Thurston and Sue Tramontini from the Petoskey Office.

North Country Community Mental Health provides services to residents of Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, Kalkaska and Otsego Counties experiencing a severe emotional problem, serious mental illness or developmental disability. Persons wishing to know more about the agency are encouraged to visit www.norcocmh.org, or call (800) 834-3393 to access services.

OBITUARIES

Barbara MacArthur: Passed on December 14, 2008

MacArthur

MacArthur, Barbara, age 85, writer and peace activist, died at home on Dec. 14 of leukemia.

She is survived by her husband of 58 years, Bruce and daughters Laurie MacArthur, Karen Schuiling, Marjorie Veiga, Nancy Smith and five grandchildren.

She served on the board of Little Traverse League for Peace and Freedom, where she was editor of the Peace Digest, and was a charter member of the Grand Blanc Beautification League, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful and the Flint Environmental Action Team (F.E.A.T.).

She was also an active member of Flint Community Planned Parenthood, the Charlevoix Shade Tree Commission, Charlevoix Area Garden Club, Hilton Head for Peace, Women in Black and worked vigorously to establish a national Department of Peace.

In 2007, she was awarded the Michigan Garden Clubs' State Life Membership for her efforts "to educate club members and the public on conservation issues, such as global climate change, energy conservation and wind power" and in 2008, the Little Traverse League for Peace and Freedom honored her for her "tireless work keeping issues of peace and justice before the public."

Her career included working for the Allied Military Permit Office in Stockholm, Sweden and as a reporter for the Port Chester Daily Item, Cincinnati Enquirer and the Grand Blanc News until her retirement in 1979.

A memorial service is scheduled at 4 p.m. for July 3, 2009 at First Congregational Church, Charlevoix, Michigan.

Memorial gifts can be made to the Barbara G. MacArthur Peace Fund at the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

Fredrick V. Wabanimkee: June 6, 1949 - Dec. 15, 2008

Fredrick V. Wabanimkee, 59, of Charlevoix, died Monday, Dec. 15, 2008, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

He was born June 6, 1949, the son of Augustine and Clara Mae (John) Wabanimkee.

Fred was raised by his mother and stepfather, Enos Wasageshick.

He played basketball for Charlevoix High School, and graduated in 1968

He then attended the University of Michigan before enlisting in the US Army.

Fred served his country in Vietnam in the armored division.

Fred returned to the states, became a journeyman ironworker and was a bridgeworker in Louisiana.

When he returned to Charlevoix, he worked as a house painter.

Fred was a member of the VFW Post #1153, and the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians.

Fred was active in his Native American culture, and participated as a drummer at Pow-Wow Trails.

He loved to go for long car rides and spend time with his grandchildren.

Fred is survived by his wife Lori McSawby; children Trisha, Fred, Carla, Marsh, Travis, Elizabeth and Gitchie; ten grandchildren; sisters Sharon, and Karen Wasageshick; brother Ivan Wasageshick.

Visitation was from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., Wednesday, December 17, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Funeral was 2 p.m., Thursday, Dec. 18, at Greensky Hill United Methodist Church in Charlevoix, the Reverend Sam McClellan officiating.

Contributions may be made to the family of Fred Wabanimkee.

Sue Ann Lochner: Dec. 28, 1935 - Dec. 20, 2008

Sue Ann Lochner, 72, of Charlevoix, died Saturday, Dec. 20, 2008, at Northern Michigan Regional Hospital in Petoskey.

Rite of Christian Burial will be 10 a.m., Tuesday, Dec. 30, at Saint Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix.

The Reverend Jerry Hunko will officiate and burial will be in Saint Mary's Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Sue was born Dec. 28, 1935, in Chicago, Ill., the daughter of Lyle and Edith (Cooper) Beaudoin.

She graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1954 and continued to further her education at Michigan State University.

On June 1, 1957, she married George H. Lochner in Charlevoix, and he preceded her in death on May 31, 2003.

Sue was a member of Saint Mary's Church, the Saint Mary's Rosary Altar Society, and she served as a church usher.

She was active in the American Legion Leslie T Shapton Post #226 Auxiliary, was a Junior Golf Mentor, and bowled on the bowling league.

She enjoyed playing cards, spending time with her family and friends, and doing volunteer work in the community.

Sue is survived by her daughters Lisa (Barry) Potter of Charlevoix, Laura (Lewis) Archer of Boyne City; grandchildren Tabatha (Tracey) Simpson, Nicholaus, Teresa and Tamara Potter; Maria Whitley, Christina, Sarah and Shala Archer; great-grandchildren Cassie, Kara and Tristen Simpson; Alexandra Archer and Abigail Potter; brothers Joe Beaudoin of Charlevoix, David Beaudoin of Grand Haven; nieces/nephews Bruce (Katie) Beaudoin, Amy Beaudoin, Mark (Laura) Beaudoin and Marcie (Brian) Sladics.

She was preceded in death by sister-in-law Sandy Beaudoin.

Memorial contributions may be made to Saint Mary's Church.

The Rosary will be recited at 6 p.m., Monday Dec. 29, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix where visitation will continue after the Rosary until 8 p.m.

Away for the Holidays?

Follow these tips to protect your home

Everyone looks forward to this time of year: including burglars.

With many people away, visiting friends, or just out of the house shopping, there are many good prospects for break-ins.

Experts agree that it is a very vulnerable time for homeowners.

Follow these precautions to avoid being burgalarized.

- Examine the exterior of your house
- Make sure all locked doors and windows have a tight fit when closed
- Check to see if there is any "wiggle room" that could give a thief enough space to jimmy it open
- Walk around your whole property to ensure there is nothing that can be used to climb to upper floors
- Look in your windows to make sure blinds are positioned to screen the interior view but not closed completely
- You may want to move [illegible] computer and TV [illegible]
- Never leave an emergency key hidden outside your home
- Always leave your home in a secure state, regardless of the amount of time you expect to be away
- A burglar watching your house is capable of taking what he wants in a few carefully planned moments
- When you are away from the house, particularly for an extended period, be sure to make it look lived in
- Put timers on a few lights at varied times, put a timer on a radio set to a talk radio station
- Install a dusk/dawn outside light or motion detector

In many instances installing a home-alarm system will give you protection, a sense of calm and even a discount on your homeowner's insurance.

Inventory your major possessions. An easy way is to place valuables on tables and videotape your house, room-to-room of all furniture, paintings and other possessions.

Place the list, any photos/videos you took, and perhaps the valuables themselves in a safe separate location.

Tell a trusted neighbor on your block that you will be away

Activity or noise that might otherwise seem normal to them would be alarming if they knew you are away from home

Be sure your homeowner's insurance coverage [illegible] any improvements or purchases that have increased the value of your home or its contents since you got your homeowner's policy

The only thing worse than losing your possessions is not being sufficiently covered to recoup your losses

New grant aimed at job creation

Transition to the knowledge economy event upcoming

The Michigan State University Center for Community and Economic Development (CCED) has been awarded a $150,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Commerce to develop innovative economic development strategies for three northern Michigan regions including northwest lower Michigan. The goal is to create strategies that enable each region to compete successfully in the global knowledge economy. Additional match funds from several MSU units will bring the total project investment to approximately $525,000.

The grant notification in early October launched an immediate planning schedule that includes 18 months of training, technical assistance and capacity building modules with the CCED and three regional partners including Northwest Michigan Council of Governments (NWMCOG). Each partner will participate in assessing their conditions and designing new approaches that address their development needs most effectively.

"The Northwest Michigan Council of Governments is excited to collaborate with Michigan State University, the Economic Development Administration, and our local partners on this project," said Matt McCauley, associate director of regional planning for the council. "Our commitment to the project is not for the purposes of exclusivity, but rather to assist in the creation of yet another tool that can be used to further develop and refine the region's long term economic development strategies."

A key component of the project is evaluating the impact and being able to judge the extent of project success. Data for performance factors will be collected and analyzed based on the State New Economy Index. These data include the number and types of knowledge economy jobs, digital practices and applications, innovation capacity, and entrepreneurial capacity and performance.

"The index has the potential to show existing and future niche market opportunities that local businesses can use to increase customer base and market share," McCauley said.

"We are enthusiastic about this opportunity," said Rex LaMore of the MSU Center for Community and Economic Development. "We view our role in this process as collaborative and participatory with our regional partners including the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments. We want to extend our available knowledge and resources to support and encourage entrepreneurs and investors in northern Michigan and across the state succeed in the 21st century global economy."

Each of the 10 counties serviced by NWMCOG—Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Manistee, Missaukee, and Wexford—will be addressed in the initiative.

A workshop, "Northwest Michigan's Transition to the Knowledge Economy," is scheduled for Tuesday, January 27, 1 p.m. to 5:15 p.m. at the Hagerty Conference Center on the Maritime Campus of Northwestern Michigan College, 715 E. Front St., in Traverse City.

This workshop will provide a Knowledge Economy orientation and introduce a new indicators project. Participants will hear from leaders in three industries – agriculture, energy, and manufacturing – about the opportunities and challenges each industry faces in the Knowledge Economy. Participants and speakers will dialogue about strategies that our region can implement to compete effectively.

"At the end of the day, this is all about positioning these regions and the rest of the state to create good new jobs in the Knowledge Economy," LaMore said.

For more information, contact Jaclyn Miel-Uken, Regional Planner; Northwest Michigan Council of Governments at (231) 929-5000 or via e-mail at jaclynmiel-uken@nwm.cog.mi.us . Registration information for the workshop is available at: http://www.nwm.org/business.asp.

Fresh fruit for the food pantry

The Troop 1812 Boy Scouts pictured show off their work after assembling 40 fresh fruit baskets Saturday, Dec. 20 at Glen's Market in Charlevoix. Pictured (from left) are Glen's employees Justin Lovay, Lee Bennett and scouts Trevor Currier, Chris Young, Jordan Jelinek, Connor Courier, store manager Mark Zink and assistant scout leader Kim Currier. The scouts, of their own volition, raised enough money and came up with the idea to make fruit baskets and donate them to the Charlevoix Food Pantry and the Ellsworth Food Pantry. When the scouts came to Zink and told him their plan, he garnered support from the Glen's corporate headquarters in Grand Rapids to match their funds, which allowed the boys to give twice as many baskets.

Christmas recycling tips from the pros

MARCI SINGER
NEWS-REVIEW WRITER

As gifts are opened this year, the volunteers of the Charlevoix County Recycling Committee want to remind everyone that not every box is recyclable.

"You won't all be able to recycle every box that is opened," said Nancy Ferguson of the Charlevoix County Recycling Committee.

While volunteers have scheduled extra pick ups of the full bins, Ferguson said they cannot possibly get all of the cardboard and papers in the bins on the same day. She also reminds recyclers that if you arrive and cannot get your items in the bins, do not leave them on the ground.

"That is littering and there is a law against it. If the bins are full, please come another day," she said. "Remember, our haulers, who are doing a great job, need a day to enjoy Christmas with their families, too. They will soon be back to work, making extra hauls to get caught up with the season."

Ferguson said with help from the community, the recycling program continues to grow, but she stressed that Styrofoam blocks and packing peanuts cannot be recycled. If you have any of these items, Ferguson said they must be disposed of properly in the trash.

"If a load is contaminated, we have to pay for hauling plus a landfilling fee. That negates everyone's recycling efforts."

Manage the "Four C's" of Winter Fire Risks:
Chimneys, Candles, Christmas Trees & Children

Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year's Eve – These holidays mean celebrations, many of them in decorated homes filled with merry-making family members and friends.

The National Fire Protection Association reports that, over the course of a calendar year, the 10 worst days for fires in homes fall between December 24 and January 6.

Fortunately, these risks can be reduced with safe practices that address the "four Cs" of winter fires: chimneys, candles, Christmas trees and children.

Chimneys
Buildup or blockage within a chimney can catch fire. Chimney fires are unpredictable: they can be noisy and fierce, or can smolder undetected.
Common-sense tips:
- If you haven't checked or cleaned the chimney in the past two years, don't use it.
- Have a pro inspect the chimney for creosote (which is what builds up in a chimney and fuels a chimney fire).
- Use dry wood. This minimizes creosote buildup.
- Don't burn wrapping paper, boxes, trash or Christmas trees.
- Don't use liquid to start a fire. Use kindling.

Remember fireplace basics, too: use a screen to contain sparks, and let ashes cool before disposing of them in a metal container.

Candles
Home-candle fires happen on Christmas Day more often than any other day, according to the National Fire Protection Association. Next worst: New Year's Day and Christmas Eve. How do they start? Half of home-candle fires begin because an item is left near a lit candle. Four out of 10 home-candle fires start in bedrooms, with bedding, furniture and curtains igniting.
Common-sense tips:
- Make sure all candles are out before you leave a room or go to bed.
- Keep clothing, curtains, furniture, and other flammable items away from candles and flame.
- Use candleholders that don't tip over.

Christmas Trees
The National Fire Protection Association notes that 300 home fires start each year with Christmas trees. It's not just live trees, artificial trees also burn. Three major reasons Christmas tree fires start: electric malfunctions, heat too close to the tree, and children playing with matches, candles, or fireplaces.
Common-sense tips:
- Buy a cut tree that has green, fresh needles.
- Buy a fake tree that is fire resistant.
- Use a secure stand.
- Locate trees a minimum of three feet from heat sources such as fireplaces and radiators.
- Water live-cut trees every day.
- Use lights listed by an industrial laboratory. Link together, at most, only three strands of bulbs.
- Throw out lights that have frayed or broken cords.
- Pull the plug on lights before going to bed or leaving home.
- When a tree starts dropping needles, it's time to dispose of it (outside, not in the house, garage or basement).

Children
Perhaps the most unpredictable risks for winter fires are those young people who are, naturally, exploring and experiencing the wonders of the winter world for the first time. Remember that light and flames are fascinating to children.
Common sense tips:
- Watch the wires. Keep kids away from light strands and power cords.
- Matches, candles, stoves and ovens often get extra use during the holidays, at a time when adults are occupied with cooking, cleaning and entertaining. Stop and ask "What might draw a child's curiosity in this house?" Then shield children from those items, physically and through discipline and direction.
- Put matches lighters out of children's reach. Use lighters that have a child-resistant safety feature.
- Train children to tell and adult if they see matches or lighters.

Use these common sense practices to prevent home fires.

NORWOOD: potential conflicts addressed

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

During then third meeting in just over two weeks, the Norwood Township Board held a special meeting Saturday, Dec. 20 to address several issues relating to the Norwood Limestone Mine.

While known mine opposition and current Norwood Township Board members David Ridenour and Dong Warner were not curtailed, newly appointed township clerk Dana Pajtas—a longtime opponent to the mine project—was directed upon advice by interim township attorney Brian Graham, to recuse herself from all discussions and votes pertaining to the proposed mine project.

"I find this all very troubling," said former Norwood Township Supervisor and Norwood Limestone Mine operator Wayne Wynkoop following the meeting. "If one has to follow their conscience (in serving on the board) then why did it take a township attorney to advise her to recuse herself?"

However, Pajtas says she will do her duty without bias.

"My personal opinions regarding the proposed mine on the Wynkoop property can't influence (my) obligation to do my duties as township clerk fairly and unbiased," Pajtas stated in an e-mailed response to questions. "Based on the advice of the township attorney ... I have recused myself from voting on issues that directly relate to any potential mining activity."

Pajtas indicated that she resigned from the Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety (NTCHS), "because when I was elected the NTCHS was in active litigation against the township. Thus, based on attorney advice, I resigned my membership to avoid conflict of interest--being on the opposite side of the pending lawsuit."

Graham said that, because Pajtas is an adjacent property owner to the Wynkoop parcel, she has a financial stake in Wynkoop's project as it pertains to the potential increase or decrease of property values.

In addition to his ill feelings over Pajtas' apparent statement at the Nov. 20 meeting where she asked if there was a way to prevent Wynkoop from applying for future special use permits, Wynkoop has doubts about Ridenour and Warner, both of whom who have previously signed at least one petition against the mine project and who since taking office claim to have resigned from the mine opposition group Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety

"If you paint over a skunk's stripes does that get rid of the stink?" Wynkoop said. "The judge (Thomas Power, Traverse City) voided my last permit because he said there was still taint even though I had resigned a year ago and there have been changes to the board and the planning commission."

Neither Ridenour or Warner returned calls by press time.

Graham indicated that, if Ridenour and Warner believed they were no longer members of the citizens' group, there did not exist a conflict of interest

The board went into closed session twice Dec. 20. Once to discuss tabling Wynkoop's most recent special use permit application which he filed just over a month ago; and again to discuss a potential mediation agreement between the citizens' group and the township board over the timely delivery of information under the Freedom of Information Act.

"Now I see what their plan is: If they give me back my application and just don't process it until the court of appeals decision is resolved, then the next step is going to be changing the ordinance and make it to where I can never mine in the township," Wynkoop said. "I don't see anywhere in our ordinance where it says they can do that. My application's got to be looked at as a new application because the judge voided the other one."

One appeal before Michigan's highest court references Power's decision that Wynkoop abandoned his right to mine based on his land contract; the second appeal is based on Power voiding Wynkoop's special use permit based on the possibility of the appearance of impropriety.

Barring Pajtas abstention, the board voted overwhelmingly to put a hold on Wynkoop's newest application until decisions have been reached on whether the Michigan Supreme court will hear either of two appeals before them.

Also on the board's agenda for the new year is a change for the planning commission including the elimination of two seats—a move which newly elected Norwood Township Supervisor Frank Hamilton said is merely an arbitrary one.

Norwood Township Board members are saen here reconvening between closad sessions during a apecial meeting held Saturday, Dec. 20 in Norwood to discuss several items related to Wayna Wynkoop's proposed Norwood Limestone Mine. In addition to tabling his latest special usa permit application, newly electad township clerk Dana Pajtas was advised by Inerim board counsel Brian Graham to recusa herself from all discussions and votes related to Wynkoop's project due to her ownership of property adjacent to his mining operation.

"It's part of the Michigan (Zoning Enabling) act. It requires by law you have to create a planning commission by ordinance," he said. "It's simply complying with that. We've got nearly two years to do it ... and I'm assuming we're going to act on it in January."

He added that the law says a new planning commission must have five, seven or nine members and they simply chose the number five.

Applications for planning commission seats are available on the township's Web site http://charlevoixcounty.org/norwood.asp.

While Hamilton said the move is merely a housekeeping measure intended to get the township caught up and ready for new business, some Norwood citizens fear more sinister motivation.

"I believe this process is being undertaken now as a means to circumvent the planning commission which has three times awarded Wayne Wynkoop his special use permit," said former township board member and Norwood resident Denny Way.

However, Way feels a five-member planning commission is appropriate considering the size of the township.

"From a cost standpoint ... the job can honestly be done by five members," he added.

Way's biggest concern with the new board is the three members who, if not currently, were at one time openly against Wynkoop's project.

"You have members of the board who are obligated to this group (Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety) and they're going to make appointments to the planning commission," he said. "I don't know how residents of Norwood can get a fair board to hear this application."

Pajtas, based on interim township attorney's advice, does not feel there will be any conflict in voting on planning commission members.

"They are appointed by the township supervisor with board approval. As a result I have no input on the individuals selected," she stated "I am only one vote to approve or disapprove the supervisor's appointments." She added, "Also these planning comm(ission) members have numerous duties, only one of which may be the (special use permit) filed by the Wynkoops. I would hope the future members of the planning commission would judge matters before them in a fair and unbiased manner, including any (applications) filed by the Wynkoops. Thus, the attorney has advised me that I do not have a conflict of interest when doing my duties as a board member to vote on planning commission appointees."

Way said he has already heard talk of recall and hopes the citizens of Norwood take notice of the recent events including the appointment of Sadie Bartosik as deputy clerk, who resigned as FOIA coordinator and was then later dismissed as secretary of the township planning commission for dereliction of duty after she destroyed public documents while working for the township back in February, 2006

"Be informed. Attend meetings and come and see what's really going on in Norwood," he said. "I encourage people to take the time and be informed."

Former Norwood counsel angry over allegations of wrongdoing

Township supervisor says attorney not on the hook

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

While Norwood Township Supervisor Frank Hamilton said the township's former attorney's services were no longer needed as of the Dec. 5 special board meeting for no specific reason, public comment by several in attendance apparently belied that notion.

And, after reviewing the minutes of the Dec. 5 meeting, former township attorney Jack Turner was aghast.

Hamilton

"In those minutes, I'm accused of being unethical, dishonest and incompetent. I've been a lawyer for over 20 years, now. During that time I've been a partner in one of the largest firms in Michigan; I've been general counsel to one of the largest real estate development companies in Michigan; and for the last six-and-a-half years I've been a sole practitioner here in Petoskey," Turner stated in a recent letter addressed to Hamilton. "During that time I've worked for some of the largest companies in the United States and I've worked for individuals who just want to close on the purchase of a house. The reason that I'm telling you this is that I want you and the rest of the folks on the township board and in Norwood Township to know that in all of the years that I've practiced law and through all of the diverse matters that I've worked on and all of the diverse clients I've worked for, I've never, ever had a single person make these kinds of claims and I've never had a single dispute about fees or about my work."

He added, "When I read these minutes, I just felt sick to my stomach."

Turner's letter focused on claims made at the Dec. 5 meeting by Norwood resident Chuck Cleland who accused Turner of overcharging the township by nearly $2,300 over an 18-month span, allegedly charged the township at a higher rate than previously agreed, a lack of specificity in the billing process which Cleland referred to as "hundling," lacking in communication with the Norwood Township Planning Commission, allegedly filing a motion late in circuit court over a non-conforming use issue on the Wynkoop property and refusing to discuss a board matter with a township resident.

Hamilton did not say there were any plans by the board to seek action against Turner over the allegations

"It's a new board, new counsel: It's as simple as that," Hamilton said.

Upon reading the minutes from the special meeting, Turner called Cleland.

"(I) let him know not just how angry I am about these claims, which are wrong, but also how frustrating it is to me that these claims get made in a public meeting, about which I never received any notice from the township," Turner stated before addressing each charge:

• Allegation - overcharging the township:

"When I first started working for the township in early 2004, my hourly rate was $175 and I agreed then that I would charge this rate to the township, except that for the first five hours each month. I would charge $100. A couple of years later, I raised my hourly rate to $185," Turner stated. "This was intended to apply only to new clients, but I made a mistake and included this increase in the township's billings, though I continued to bill the first five hours at $100 each hour. When the mistake was brought to my attention by Tim Boyko, I reviewed my invoices and credited the township with the amount that was mistakenly overpaid."

• Allegation – lack of specificity in billing. Response.

"The format that I used for the invoices that I provided to Norwood Township is the same format that I've used consistently for over 20 years, and it's just wrong to say that my billings are not ethical. In less than a handful of instances," Turner stated. "I've had clients ask me to provide invoices where each entry has a date next to it and in those cases that's what I've done. There's no difference, though, in the description of services, which is a complete description of all of the services that I've billed for. And, in response to questions raised at the last board meeting, if I were billing for services different than the services described in the invoice, then the invoice would say what those other services were."

• Allegation - lack of communication with the planning commission in not advising that Judge Thomas Power had discussed the fact of further consideration by the same planning commission members on any new special use permit application by Wynkoop would still be considered tainted and the claim by Cleland that this failure to relay information to the commission cost the Township further unnecessary legal expense:

"First, the planning commission that considered that last special use permit was not the same for two reasons: One reason is that there was a new member appointed and another reasons is that the township board had acted to re-appoint two members after Wayne Wynkoop resigned. I recognize that Judge Power determined that despite these changes, there was still a "taint," but I can categorically state that Judge Power never said before Nov. 13 that there would or wouldn't still be a "taint" despite these changes," Turner stated. "I can also say that when Judge Power met with the attorneys in his office, my understanding of what he said was that his focus was on the impropriety of Wayne Wynkoop appearing before the planning commission while he was the township supervisor and had the power to appoint or remove members of the planning commission."

He further added, "I don't believe that he ever said that even if Wayne Wynkoop resigned, there would or wouldn't still be a "taint"; and if he had said that, I would have absolutely communicated that information to Norwood Township. In fact, my recollection is that he was being very careful not to say in an off-the-record discussion how he would decide future SUP applications by Wayne Wynkoop."

• Allegation - Apparently Turner proceeded in additional litigation without board approval as there is no documentation in the minutes as to authorization.

"I've previously responded to this claim in an earlier e-mail to you (Hamilton). Again, though, during all of the time that I've worked for Norwood Township, I've never had one person ever tell me that any work that I did was not authorized and I've never had the township board tell me that any of the work that I was doing or had billed for was not authorized," Turner stated.

• Allegation - on May 2, 2007, Turner filed opposition to Judge Power's decision on special use permit number two without authorization as sworn to in depositions:

"Norwood Township has never filed a single pleading or brief or other document in the Michigan Court of Appeals in opposition to Judge Power's decision on (special use permit number two). I filed an appearance with the court of appeals, solely for the purpose of being included in any mailings regarding any appeals taken by Wayne Wynkoop," Turner stated. "Again, there has never been any filing in the Court of Appeals other than that appearance and Norwood Township has never appealed any of the decisions made by Judge Power."

• Allegation - Turner filed late in circuit court for the township and his filing was rejected indicating lack of competence:

"This is also wrong. When Bill Gnodtke made this same misstatement in a letter to the editor of the Charlevoix Courier, I spoke with him at a planning commission meeting and explained that the late filing was made by a different attorney representing Wayne Wynkoop and not by me," Turner stated. "Bill Gnodtke said he would correct this, but he never did."

• Turner's legal advice on the township's zoning ordinance on dangerous buildings which was overturned by Charlevoix judge Richard May:

"I wasn't asked to provide any advice about this matter. There was a ticket issued by the zoning administrator. I was not consulted about the ticket or the circumstances of the ticket or the authority of the township to issue the ticket," Turner stated. "The first I heard about the ticket was when the district court called me and told me that a hearing had been scheduled. Judge May didn't overturn the township's ordinance. What he decided was that the ordinance requires a hearing officer, the township had never appointed a hearing officer, and the ticket wasn't properly issued."

• Allegation - Cleland believed Turner's advice was faulty on the removal and appointment process to the planning commission:

"I don't recall providing advice about the removal or appointment of persons to the planning commission, so I'm not sure what this refers to."

• Allegation - Furthermore, Cleland believed Turner misinterpreted Section 8.05.02 of our Ordinance which requires an escrow account for special use permit application and other matters wherein he advised the word shall as discretionary and not mandatory. Many other attorneys, Cleland indicated, advise that word is mandatory and not discretionary. That advise from Turner cost this Township an "awful lot of money."

"I never advised the township that the word "shall" is discretionary. This is the ordinance language in question: If the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals determines that the basic zoning fees will not cover the actual costs of the application review or appeal, or if the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals determines that review of the application and/or participation in the review process or appeal by qualified professional planners, engineers, attorneys, or other professionals is necessary, then the applicant shall deposit with the Township Treasurer such additional zoning fees in an amount determined by the Planning Commission or Zoning Board of Appeals equal to the estimated additional costs."

Turner added, "What I advised the township is this: If the planning commission makes the determinations described in the ordinance, then it would be mandatory for the applicant to make the escrow deposits. Another way to say this would be that the obligation of the applicant to make the escrow deposits depends on the Planning Commission first making the determinations described in the ordinance. I don't see anything in the ordinance, though, that obligates the planning commission to make this determination and the fact that this part of the ordinance begins with the word "if" lead me to conclude that the planning commission didn't have that obligation, which is the same conclusion that was reached by the Michigan Township Association."

• Allegation - Finally and most compellingly, when requested to provide what Turner's advice had been to the township board with regard to removal of planning commission member Sadie Bartosik after the Board had given trustee Bartosik permission to contact Turner, Turner advised he had talked with then supervisor Wynkoop and because of attorney-client privilege, would not comply with request. This raises the question, in Cleland's mind, who was Turner working for, the township board of trustees or Wynkoop?

"There's no question that I was working for the board of trustees and that if I had spoken with Mrs. Bartosik without the township board first determining to have waived atty/client [sic] privilege, that would have been a violation of my obligations to Norwood Township."

When contacted for comment, Turner said he was not surprised he was let go, but indicated in his letter that he was dismayed that payment was delayed and that he was maligned by accusations of wrongdoing.

"When I look at how factually wrong these claims are and when I consider that my integrity as a lawyer has been unquestioned for over 20 years, it's hard for me to resist that conclusion (that there is a political motivation," he stated.

Attorney Brian Graham's law firm is the board's acting interim counsel while the board seeks to hire a full-time attorney.

Soaring in Char-Em ISD Quiz Bowl League

Petoskey students took the top spot in the 13-team, six-school Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District Quiz Bowl League tournament completed recently.

Quiz bowl is an academic competition in which four member teams use buzzer systems in a Jeopardy-like contest.

More than 70 students from the schools competed at North Central Michigan College in the second of five tournaments scheduled for the Char-Em ISD Quiz Bowl League this school year.

The 13 teams played seven round-robin games to determine final placement in the championship round.

Petoskey A and Petoskey B, with identical 6-1 records, faced off for the grand championship title. Charlevoix was the highest placing C-D school with a 5-2 Record.

Seedings for the final round were determined by won-loss record with total score serving as the tie breaker.

In the finals, Petoskey A defeated the Petoskey C team to take grand champion honors.

Charlevoix A lost to Petoskey B in the consolation final round.

League schools not in attendance because of school conflicts were Beaver Island and Ellsworth.

The next league tournament is scheduled for January 30.

A middle school league is currently being organized.

Area schools interested in joining this free, fun academic league for middle school and/or high school are encouraged to contact Barry Cole, Char-Em ISD quiz bowl coordinator, at 347-0656.

Baby all smiles despite medical woes

INFANT

"That is when his doctors told us he needed to be put on the list," Smith said.

"He got the transplant on October 19, and has been doing great ever since. He was 12 pounds, but now he is 17 pounds. He is gaining weight like a champ," Smith added.

Marshall is currently on 13 different medications. In another year, he should only be on four, which he will have to take for life.

"He may need another heart transplant in 15-20 years. His doctors said they haven't ever had someone who has not needed another one. But I'll cross that bridge when the time comes," Smith said.

Smith is a single mom, and she lives at home with her parents.

She spends her day's taking care of her little brother, and her son. Smith said she plans on going back to work sometime after February, but does not plan on finishing her college education at this time.

"I can't work for awhile. Marshall cannot be in a daycare, and so he needs special care. I just don't see myself going back to school right now. He needs me too much," Smith said.

Smith said she has lived in Charlevoix most of her life. Her family is all in the area, and it is where she feels at home.

"I was in Nashville for a while, but I wanted to come home," she added.

When Smith found out her son was really sick she said she was very scared.

"I just started crying. The doctors told me I had one sick little boy. It was so so scary. I mean you see that kind of thing happen to other people. Certainly not to anyone you know, or even yourself. I was very very scared," Smith said.

"But he got through it all, and is doing really good. He's starting to crawl now, and he is getting into everything," Smith added.

Life for Marshall should be relatively normal now despite the ordeal he has gone through in his first year of life.

"He'll go to school and be a normal kid. He won't ever be able to have any exotic pets, or play football, but other than that, he'll be a happy boy,"

Smith said.

Donations for Marshall and his mother can be sent to 6685 North M66 Lot 72, Charlevoix, MI 49720. Call (231) 675-8654 for more information.

Charlevoix County also."

Aside from having the work done right, Straebel said it is of utmost importance to have it completed on time.

"We don't want to have any further construction going on in the park during our busy summer season," he said.

The plan for the highly anticipated project was created by lead designer Richard Hitz.

"His design will remain the same and we think the design is just fantastic," Straebel said. "What we're looking at is more the underground infrastructure, mechanical processes."

Fans of the original design will see no variation of consequence in the finished product.

"The design has been established and it has gone through, certainly a public vetting process," Straebel said. "As the stream was proposed, that is what the public will see in mid-May."

He added, "The community was certainly interested in continuing some form of trout amenity within East Park, but the old pond posed some challenges with keeping live wild trout in a confined environment."

The new feature offers a state of the art ecosystem which mimics what the trout would experience in the wild.

"The public will see shaded areas, sheltered areas, rocks and trees," Straebel said. "There are places where the trout could take shelter and have a more natural environment that would be more appropriate for this type of use."

To duplicate mother nature's landscape, the city brought in experts from fisheries, biologists and engineers.

"IT seems like a fairly straight forward project, but to mimic what mother nature does well is challenging," he said. "We did our due diligence and homework and are excited to move forward on this last piece of the park."

He added, "I think we developed a plan that will serve the trout stream for many years to come."

The trout feature, which uses recirculated water to maintain proper temperature and cleanliness, will be for viewing only.

Fishing will be prohibited.

Some children's toys may still contain dangerous chemicals

State lawmakers commit to strong, swift action

The Ecology Center today recently released the second annual consumer guide to toxic chemicals in toys at www.HealthyToys.org.

Researchers tested over 1,500 new, popular children's toys for lead, arsenic, mercury and other harmful chemicals.

The Ecology Center determined that one-third of the toys they tested had "high" or "medium" levels of chemicals of concern this year.

Lead was found in 20 percent of the toys tested, including 54 products or 3.5 percent that exceeded the 600 parts per million (ppm) state legal limit set last year and 164 or 11 percent above the American Academy of Pediatrics recommended ceiling of 40 ppm.

Children's jewelry remains the most contaminated product category.

"There is simply no place for toxic chemicals in toys," said Mike Shriberg, Ph.D., Ecology Center's Policy Director. "Our hope is that by empowering consumers, manufacturers and lawmakers will start phasing out the most harmful substances immediately, and change the laws to protect children from toxic chemicals."

Michigan lawmakers have already committed to aldress the problem.

Nearly half of 2009/10 Michigan House of Representatives members officially signed a platform that calls for a comprehensive approach to addressing toxins in children's products. The Healthy Michigan, Healthy Kids coalition is working with State Representatives to draft the Safe Children's Product bill package, which would implement the platform.

See the full platform and list of legislative signatories is available at www.Healthy-Michigan.net.

"I am committed to working with my colleagues to protect children from toxic chemicals," said Representative Rebekah Warren, Chair of the House Great Lakes & Environment Committee. "I look forward to the swift introduction and implementation of the Michigan Safe Children's Products Package."

In addition to allowing parents to search by product name, brand, or toy type to see if certain toys have toxic chemicals, the newly redesigned HealthyToys.org site also allows visitors to create a personalized holiday wish list that can be sent to family and friends, and provides a blog-friendly widget that can quickly search toy ratings.

Researchers tested for chemicals that have been associated with reproductive problems, developmental and learning disabilities, hormone problems and cancer, and that have been identified by regulatory agencies as problematic. Babies and young children are the most vulnerable populations because their brains and bodies are still developing, and because they frequently put toys into their mouths.

The testing was conducted with a screening technology – the portable X-Ray Fluorescence (XRF) analyzer – that identifies the elemental composition of materials on or near the surface of products.

Highlights from the HealthyToys.org 2008 findings:

• Lead is still in toys HealthyToys.org found lead in 20 percent of all the products tested this year. When children are exposed to lead, the developmental and nervous system consequences can be irreversible. The Healthy Michigan, Healthy Kids platform calls for implementing the American Academy of Pediatrics threshold level of 40ppm for toys sold in Michigan.

• It's not just lead – HealthyToys.org found that 2.9 percent or 45 products had bromine at concentrations of 1,000 ppm or higher. This indicates the likely, unnecessary use of brominated flame retardants—chemicals that may pose hazards to children's health. HB 4465, pending in the state House, would severely restrict the use of one type of brominated flame retardant. Arsenic was detected at levels greater than 100 ppm in 22 or 1.4 percent of products; 289 (18.9 percent) of products contained detectable levels of arsenic. Mercury was found above 100 ppm in 14 (one percent) of products; 62 (4.2 percent) of products contained detectable levels of mercury. The Healthy Michigan, Healthy Kids platform calls for no more than 40ppm of mercury or arsenic in children's products.

• It's not just china – HealthyToys.org has not found a consistent correlation between the country of manufacture and the presence of toxic chemicals in toys.

• Jewelry – Jewelry remains the most contaminated product category tested. Children's jewelry was five-times more likely to contain lead above 600 ppm than other products tested by HealthyToys.org.

• The good news – The good news is that 62% (954) of the products tested contain LOW levels of chemicals of concern, and 21 percent (324) of all products tested contain NO chemicals of concern. These products look and feel no different than other children's products on the shelf. These findings show that manufacturers can and should make toys free of unnecessary toxic chemicals. With millions of toys on the market, Ecology Center's HealthyToys.org could not test them all. However, visitors to the Web site can nominate other products to be tested.

The most commonly requested items will be tested each week leading up to the holidays. And, the Ecology Center and partner organizations across the state are sponsoring a series of Toy Testing Town Halls with state Legislators and environmental health experts.

DIY TV production?

Local man turns passion into programming

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

What began with a curiosity about public access television has culminated in nearly 10 episodes of various documentaries shown on Charter Communications channel 2.

While Rick Beemon is always looking for his next subject, his current endeavor concerns a clean water expo last summer in Traverse City.

"The Great Lakes are important to us all and they are very important to me," he said. "I went down and taped this event and it took maybe 35 to 40 hours to produce it since it was pretty much all day."

The episodes, which are soon to be archived on the Traverse City station's Web site, cover everything from environmental issues to a family trip.

"I did one on the CARE Fair, did one on global warming, did one on a rowboat ride up St. Claire Lake and I did one for the friends of the Jordan on the Alba Well—I have probably produced six or seven pieces for them."

Court dismisses lawsuit against county, sheriff

STEVE ZUCKER
NEWS-REVIEW

A U.S. District Court judge has thrown out a lawsuit brought by the Charlevoix County jail administrator in which she claimed she was treated unfairly by the sheriff after she spoke out at a public meeting about her concerns over the air quality at the jail.

In an opinion issued late Tuesday, U.S. District Court Judge Robert J. Jonker dismissed the suit against Charlevoix County and Charlevoix County sheriff George T. Lasuer brought by jail administrator Babette Meggison in May 2007.

Meggison's husband, Jerry, said neither he nor his wife had heard about the decision as of today, and declined to comment on Jonker's ruling.

In the suit, Meggison sought damages in excess of $25,000 on claims that Lasater violated her First Amendment right to free speech and violated the Michigan Whistleblower's Protection Act when he made organizational changes in the office after Meggison spoke at a Feb. 28, 2007, Charlevoix County

A survivor of sexual abuse hopes to help others

BENJAMIN GOHS

Heidi Miller was repeatedly sexually abused as a child, and she hopes her effort will help those who have been treated likewise.

In addition to creating a library of Christian-based materials on abuse, Miller is working to set up a child abuse prevention poster contest and a Christian leadership conference on abuse and assault next summer.

"Abuse needs to be talked about, prosecuted and the victims (must be) given support and encouragement," she said. "Abuse can happen in any family, and is happening in our community."

Miller said Christians should be on the forefront of prevention, healing and justice.

"To become leaders on this issue, Christians need to educate themselves," she said. "The books available in the library can help Christians adequately educate themselves on abuse. Order your Digital TV convertor coupon

If you don't have cable or satellite, you will soon need a convertor

In less than two months, the government-mandated DTV Transition will require millions of Americans to take action in order to maintain access to free over-the-air television and important emergency announcements. While supplies last, the government is offering two free $40 coupons per household to help cover the cost of digital converter boxes that will keep viewers connected.

As friends and families finish up their holiday shopping and prepare to visit relatives, the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights Education Fund (LCCREF) encourages families to ensure their loved ones are ready for the digital television transition. Families on fixed incomes, seniors, people with disabilities, communities of color, and those who speak languages other than English are most likely to be affected by the transition.

"As families come together this holiday season, we are urging folks to check in with their loved ones to make sure they are ready for the DTV transition. People who don't have cable, satellite service, or a new TV need to order their DTV convener box coupons in the next couple weeks in order to get their converter boxes in time for the Feb. 17 transition," said Wade Henderson, president of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, noting that it takes about a month for coupons to arrive. "This transition is about access to life-saving public service announcements. It's about letting communities know when a hurricane is about to strike, a snowstorm threatens a white out, that a fire is blazing toward it, or that there is a natural or national disaster."

For more information on how the DTV transition will impact vulnerable communities, visit: http://www.civilrights.org/dtv/. To order coupons or for more information on the DTV transition, go to: www.DTV2009.gov.

Charlevoix, Emmet emergency food and shelter grants

Charlevoix County has been awarded $32,672 and Emmet County has been awarded $47,672 in Federal funds under the Emergency Food and Shelter National Board Program.

These funds will be distributed by a local board and are used to supplement emergency food and shelter programs in these counties.

The funding period is Oct. 1 through Sept. 30, 2009.

The selection was made by a National Board that is chaired by the Federal Emergency Management Agency and consists of representatives from the Salvation Army; American Red Cross; United Jewish Communities; Catholic Charities, USA; National Council of the Churches of Christ in the USA; and, United Way of America.

The Local Board was charged to distribute funds appropriated by Congress to help expand the capacity of food and shelter programs in high-need areas around the country.

The Local Board is made up of representatives from Char-Em United Way, the Salvation Army, the Red Cross, Catholic Human Services, Community Foundations, local churches, Temple B'nai Israel, the Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawas, the Department of Human Services, local governments, and a representative of the homeless population. This board will determine how the funds will be distributed among the emergency food and shelter programs run by local service agencies in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

Under the terms of the grant from the National Board, local agencies chosen to receive funds must: be private voluntary non-profits or units of government; have an accounting system; practice non-discrimination; have demonstrated the capability to deliver emergency food and/or shelter programs; and if they are a private voluntary organization, they must have a voluntary board.

Qualifying agencies are urged to apply.

Emergency Food and Shelter funds were awarded to the following agencies last year: the Women's Resource Center, the Salvation Army, the Manna Project, St. Francis Church, Brother Dan's Food Pantry, Care and Share, SDA Community Services Center, and Good Samaritan Family Services.

Public or private voluntary agencies interested in applying for Emergency Food and Shelter Program funds must contact Martha Lancaster, Char-Em United Way, P.O. Box 1701, Petoskey MI 49770; phone (231) 487-1006; email info@charemunitedway.org for an application.

The deadline for applications to be received is 5 p.m. Jan. 19, 2009.

Getting involved

It's amazing what a person can accomplish with a lot of legwork and heart.

That's why we cannot say enough good about what Charlevoix Recreation Director Ike Boss and has done with the Mt. McSauba winter park.

Not only did his fundraising effort bring in nearly all the money needed to pay off the new ski hill groomer, but his ability to inspire others in the community to hold fundraisers ensured that the community got involved.

In addition to having state of the art equipment to groom the ski hill and trails, Boss worked with local youth who built features for the new snowboarding terrain park "The Training Grounds."

If you aren't up for skiing or testing your X-skills on the terrain park, you can watch the daredevils from the warmth of the lodge via Web cameras which are focused on the snowboarding area.

Not only that, but with the addition of the large ice skating rink and rustic warming area complete with a campfire pit, there truly is something for everyone.

Rated one of the top three small ski areas in America, Mt. McSauba offers two kilometers of cross country ski trails which are open seven days a week, downhill and cross country ski rentals and they now carry snow shoes and snow boards.

There are four rope tows, and six runs for the downhill skiers and remember sledding is free.

The skating rink is open 4 p.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Friday, Noon to 9 p.m. on Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. through Christmas break.

While Boss has managed to raise most of the funds to pay for the new ski hill groomer, there is still a little way to go.

So, if Santa was extra generous in filling your stocking this year, perhaps you'll consider giving to a great cause.

Efforts to raise funds for the new ski hill groomer have yielded nearly $80,000 with $48,000 left to pay off. To donate to this community-wide cause, call recreation director Ike Boss at 547-3253.

Tracks

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

One of the few positive things about the almost daily covering of new snow, courtesy of the lake effect, is being able to tell where all the animals have been.

Following the tracks of a squirrel or deer any other time of the year is extremely difficult for most of us. But with a new snow of an inch or so, every movement is perfectly clear.

Not only is it possible to tell where our local fauna have been walking, it is pretty easy to determine how many of them there are compared to earlier years.

For example, last winter our yard was nearly covered with squirrel tracks by nightfall.

They raided our bird-feeder of all its sunflower seeds on a daily basis.

This winter there is nary a squirrel track, which means there are almost no squirrels.

Last fall I saw not a single swimming squirrel in the channel.

My conclusion is that the local squirrel population is at a low point.

Should we be worried that squirrels will somehow become extinct in Charlevoix? Not at all.

It turns out that almost all animal populations undisturbed by any overt human activity normally go through stages with high numbers and stages with very low numbers.

It is nothing we are doing. Such fluctuations might best be called normal.

We should expect them.

What causes the fluctuations?

Parasites, diseases and some squirrel to squirrel antagonism, all of which are most important when there are large numbers of squirrels, bumping into each other all the time, provide the best explanation.

What has replaced the squirrels in our yard and at our feeder this winter?

It looks like the local deer population is on the rise.

The sighting of many smaller tracks in the neighborhood suggest that there are a large number of young deer this winter.

What to us may lead to the troublesome munching of shrubs, is for the deer a good thing.

It will almost surely be followed a few years down the road by more or less dramatic reductions in deer numbers in our neighborhood.

The natural world is an unstable place, as much as we would like it to remain constant.

We are probably responsible for only a small part of the instability.

We did not do anything adverse to our local squirrel population and we have very little effect on the numbers of deer.

Appreciating the natural world necessarily involves some understanding of how it works, and it does not work like a clock.

Mostly it lurches along courting disaster regularly and recovering from it with the same regularity.

Tracks in the snow can tell us that.

Puppies, mortgages and ulcers, oh my

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

Some women take up jogging or yoga for their New Year's resolution, and others vow to quit smoking: My wife has decided to kill me.

It all started when she said, "Let's buy a house."

Now, as any condemned soul in the sixth or seventh level of hell will tell you, buying a home can be a trying experience

Now more than a year into house hunting, and a day or so past the date we were supposed to close on the house we chose, I am at my wits end.

Oh, how I yearn for a predatory lender; one who would take my word for it on my income and credit history and simply hand me the cash, no questions asked.

But, thanks to the so-called housing crisis, we've gone through a vetting gauntlet rivaled only by terror detainees.

Don't get me wrong, the first 50 pages of the loan application seemed normal:

Name: No problem

Spouse: I know this one

Occupation: Professional rabble rouser

Did you spend any of 1969 in Cambodia? What?

Are you now, or have you ever been, a member of the Communist Party? Hold on.

And then came the fees—oh sweet humanity the fees

To make the trick work the bank goes over the fees with you line by line, and it really does make the charges seem reasonable.

$8.10 – flood certification fee?

$600 for snakebite insurance?

$1,250 for asteroid collision?

$320 for ogre indemnity?

And, I'm pretty sure they charged me $50 because I didn't know what an escrow mitigation insurance appraisal was.

I still say it sounds made up.

We were supposed to close on Dec. 30, but, silly me thought that was in Earth months.

As I write this my trusty Realtor is working on an extension. If it wasn't for our realestate folks I would have lost my mind completely.

The best part of this whole Clockwork Orange escapade is that the wife, usually an emotional rock, has been driven three shades of "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane." Those of you under 40 or who have never seen the movie can go to http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=648-2RE4XAk.

Every minor setback has got me hiding the wire hangers (I know, different movie) and cowering under the coffee table.

Let me assure you that her Gollum-esque descent into homeownership has left her quite insane.

I swear I can hear her in the wee hours, perched up on the roof and cursing my name.

"We wants it. We needs it. Stupid husbandses keeping us from our precious."

It doesn't help matters that I'm happy where we are: the rent is cheap, the landlord is cool and only one of my neighbors seems deranged.

It is this mental tilt-a-whirl which I blame for the wife's decision, in the midst of all this holiday/home buying chaos, to get pets.

After all, she reasoned, a new home needs new puppies. And, wouldn't you know it, one of them was mine.

Just when I thought fate had kicked me in the groin for the last time, I got a Christmas present that cries and poops—I guess I'm just lucky.

So now the ever-shrinking mobile home we currently occupy has the addition of two furry toddlers ... who bite and chew everything from table legs and shoes to guitars and fingers.

One is manic and the other can't stay awake because he suffers from sleep apnea.

I'm not kidding; he snores really loud and his eyes only close half way, so when he's sleeping he looks like an angry zombie dog.

In all fairness I don't blame the wife.

She figured we would be moving by now and have room for Sam and Tolstoy—I wanted to name them William Shatner and Hulk Hogan, but the wife wouldn't allow it.

So here I sit with a buyer ready to move into the trailer, munching Tums by the bushel basket and wondering when in the hell, if ever, we're going to move.

My only consolation is that, if the wife is trying to kill me, the joke is on her because I canceled my life insurance

LETTERS to the editor

UNITED WAY CHANGES LIVES

Editor:

Every day, the news is more discouraging: Our community is experiencing record unemployment, foreclosures, utility shutoffs, empty pantries and other urgent challenges.

There are many great organizations in our community working to help our neighbors, but their resources are being stretched thin.

Many generous people in our community want to do what they can to help. But what is the best way to make an impact with a limited charitable budget?

Most of us have a few charities that we know well and to which we regularly make donations. But how can we impact the broader community need?

One of our United Way Leadership Circle donors said it well, "I give to United Way because you make the donations that I don't know how to make."

He's right. Char-Em United Way is the most effective way to impact the challenges facing our community now and in future years. You can be sure that your donation to United Way will be well invested:

We regularly assess community needs and priorities.

We invest funds in proven programs and solutions.

Before investing in agencies and programs, we review their financial information, track record, and capacity to deliver what they promise.

We require funded agencies to report on how the funds have been used and the impact they had in alleviating the problem.

We encourage collaborative solutions to community problems.

We involve a cross-section of the community in our investment decisions.

We are efficient: Char-Em United Way's fundraising and administrative expenses are less than 10 percent.

We're local: 98.5 percent of what we raise stays in our community

We're accountable and transparent.

In addition to providing support for basic and urgent needs -- which is our highest priority right now -- Char-Em United Way is also investing in longer-term solutions to help create long-lasting changes. We support financial literacy education for youth, early childhood education programs, health services, programs to keep senior citizens independent, and much more. We are working to bring more effective volunteer connections, transportation, and information and referral services to the community.

United Way works to advance the common good by focusing on education, income and health. These are the building blocks for a good life – a quality education that leads to a stable job, enough income to support a family through retirement, and good health.

Our 2008-2009 Campaign goal is $333,000 and we are now at the 60 percent mark. The Frey Foundation has offered an additional $20,000 challenge if we make that goal. Last year, we were able to invest a record amount of funds into effective solutions to our community's most pressing problems. We will do that again this year, but only if we reach our Campaign goal.

We encourage everyone who can to make a donation to Char-Em United Way before year end. Together, united, we can inspire hope and create opportunities for today and for a better tomorrow. That's what it means to Live United.

Please support United Way at the most generous level you can. If you work for one of the 50 businesses that allow you to donate through payroll deduction, that is the easiest way. If your employer doesn't offer a workplace campaign, please ask if they will start one. If you've received our letter in the mail, please reply. You can also donate online at: www.charemunitedway.org (select the Give button) or by mail to P O Box 1701, Petoskey MI 49770.

CUT THE FAT

Editor:

I agree with you.

The problems of today are the result of labor and management contracts. Restrictions need to be in place for the loans/bailout/credit to the Big Three. Golden parachutes, excessive executive pay, should be no more. Excessive benefits for all need to be more realistic. You should reconsider the employment situation within the Big Three. You don't have to be from Flint, which I am, to be well-versed in the plight of General Motors and how it operates. You have to know that GM is top-heavy in white- and blue-collar employees, more than either Ford or Chrysler. Toyota, Honda, et al, all use fewer people to design and produce their products. In order to be competitive, the Big Three needs to reduce manufacturing costs. The major source of these costs is, employees, active and retired. Unfortunately, this means more unemployed. It's the price to be paid for the glut of labor, again at all levels. Retirees have to play a big part in this as well. They have to be willing to contribute more toward their benefits, just as active workers must. It seems apparent that Washington is willing to provide some financial resources but it needs all the employees to be a partner. That means sacrifices. Any workers not willing to cede some of their salary and benefits, risks not having a job at all. Try to get another job after that in this employment climate.

Good samaritans

Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently awarded a grant of $5,000 to Good Samaritan Pantry and Resale Shop of Ellsworth for the purpose of providing heating fuel for needy Charlevoix County families this winter. The check for $5,000 was presented on Dec. 11 by Sarah Allen, Program Officer for the Foundation (center) to Mary Peterson, Director of the Pantry (on the left). Jerry Troyer, Good Samaritan Board Chair witnesses the event. The $5,000 grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation to Good Samaritan will help keep 15 Charlevoix County families warm and in their homes by providing emergency heating fuel. The Foundation awarded $5,000 grants the last three years to Good Samaritan for the same purpose.

Pictured are just a few of the local quilters that mada placemats for the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging. These women (front, from left) Kate Smith, Cynthia Garland, Mary Snyder, Marg Jeakle and (back, from left) Michelle Milligan, Sue Miller, Meredith Krell, Michelle Milligan, Deb Franzoni and Eileen Milligan donated their time and used some of their own materials to make these placemats. The women are seen here at Hearts To Holly in Charlevoix.

Char-Em United Way

funding applications available

Char Em United Way's 2009 Community Investment Allocation process has begun. Non-profit agencies which provide programs and services meeting the health and human service needs of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties are encouraged to submit a Letter of Intent to apply for funding.

Letter of Intent applications can be requested by contacting Char Em United Way at 487-1006. They are due by January 30. The submissions will be reviewed by the United Way Allocation Committee, and agencies which meet United Way's funding criteria and priorities will be invited to submit a complete application.

"We are pleased to announce this year's funding availability" stated Martha Lancaster, Executive Director. "In 2008, we made Community Investment Allocations of $129,350 to 23 agencies in grants ranging from $250 to $12,000. This year, we hope to be able to provide a similar amount of funding. We have increased our Campaign goal to meet the increasing community need and hope that we will reach it. We are still accepting contributions, and all donations received through the end of April will be awarded in this investment cycle."

CEUW has established the following five funding priorities for 2009: fulfilling urgent and basic human needs; improving financial stability; promoting individual and family health and wellness; increasing independence and self sufficiency, and helping youth succeed. More information on these priorities, as well as other criteria for eligible programs and agencies is available from United Way.

"We have set these priorities because, with the increased need in our community for health and human services and with limited dollars available, United Way's Board of Directors must ensure that our Community Investment Allocations are being made as wisely as possible," Lancaster further stated. "And our investors (donors) want to know that we are making the greatest possible impact in the areas of need identified by our community. Therefore, CEUW is focusing on measuring results in programs and sharing our priorities with the community more effectively."

Agencies invited to submit a full application will be scheduled to make a presentation to CEUW's Citizen Review Panel in April. The Citizen Review Panel reviews the requests for funding, hears presentations, seeks additional information, and makes recommendations to the United Way Board of Directors. The Board of Directors will meet in May to consider the recommendations of the Panel and to make Community Investment Allocation decisions.

For more information about Char-Em United Way or the funding allocation, contact CEUW at 231-487-1006 or info@charemunitedway.org or write P.O Box 1701, Petoskey MI 49770

2009 Governors Service Awards

nomination form applications now available

The Michigan Community Service Commission announced today that nomination forms for the 2009 Governor's Service Awards (GSA) are currently available. The Governor's Service Awards are given annually to individuals, businesses, and organizations to acknowledge their commitment to serving their communities through volunteerism.

Each year, eight awards are presented in the following categories:

- Governor George Romney Lifetime Achievement Award for Volunteerism - honors an individual who has taken his or her volunteer service to the highest level - year after year
- Corporate Community Leader Award - honors corporations and businesses that excel in community involvement.
- Mentor of the Year - honors an individual who has made a significant difference in a child's life through mentoring.
- Outstanding Mentoring Program Award - honors programs that excel at developing and maintaining high-quality experiences for both the mentor and mentee.
- Outstanding Volunteer Program Award - honors organizations or clubs that make a difference in community life.
- Senior Volunteer of the Year - honors individuals who are age 65 or older.
- Volunteer of the Year - honors an individual who strives to improve the lives of neighbors, friends, community, or congregations.
- Youth Volunteer of the Year - honors individuals who are age 21 or younger.

A celebration will be hosted by Governor Jennifer M. Granholm and First Gentleman Daniel G. Mulhern to pay tribute to the finalists, including the award winner, in each of the eight categories that demonstrate the diverse nature of volunteers throughout the state. The event will be held in May or June 2009.

The 2009 GSA Nomination Form is now available at www.michigan.gov/mcsc . Nominations must be postmarked by Tuesday, Feb. 3, 2009. If you have questions or would like additional information, please contact Kathie Vasilion Robinson at vasilionk@michigan.gov or (517) 373-4200.

The Michigan Community Service Commission builds a culture of service by providing vision and resources to strengthen communities through volunteerism. In 2008-09, the MCSC is granting more than $5.3 million in federal funds to local communities for volunteer programs and activities. The MCSC is funding 18 Ameri Corps programs and 24 Learn and Serve programs. The Governor's Service Awards, Mentor Michigan, and Volunteer Investment Grants are also premier programs of the MCSC.

Meggison dismissed in lawsuit

Board of Commissioners' meeting about concerns she had about the quality of the air in the jail.

Meggison has been on sick leave from her position since March 9, 2007, amid claims that severe stress and anxiety from Lasater's action had made her unable to function at work.

In the opinion, the judge found that Meggison's speech was not afforded First Amendment protection because she spoke as a public employee and not as a private citizen. Meggison does have the right to appeal the decision.

Judge Jonker further found that Meggison had no claim under the Whistleblower's Protection Act because she had not shown sufficient evidence that she was subjected to an "adverse employment action" as defined under the act.

Speaking to the News-Review after learning of the court's ruling late Tuesday, prosecuting attorney John Jarema said he was pleased with the outcome adding, "I hope they (the Meggisons) don't waste any more taxpayer money on this frivolous case."

Jarema, and county commissioners Shirley Roloff, Chris Christensen and Joel Evans were dismissed from the case in earlier court actions.

Christensen said he, too, was very pleased at the news adding that with the case out of the way, the county board can start the new year off focusing on other matters.

"This is not just a victory for the county, but more importantly for the taxpayers. It is a chance to have a clean slate for the new sheriff and his administration, and a vindication for sheriff Lasater as he prepares for retirement," Christensen said in a prepared statement. "From a county standpoint we consider this issue finally behind us and hope that no more public monies have to be spent defending these types of meritless lawsuits."

Learn your risk

Diabetes linked to glaucoma, eye disease and blindness

If you've been diagnosed with diabetes then it's important to pay extra attention to your vision. Recent studies show that those with diabetes are 25 times more likely to develop blindness and other eye diseases. You can recognize National Glaucoma Awareness Month this January by learning the link between diabetes and eye diseases like glaucoma.

Diabetes is the leading cause of new cases of blindness among adults ages 20 to 74.

This is because elevated blood sugar damages retinal blood vessels, causing them to break down, leak or become blocked.

Over time this can lead to retinopathy—a complication that causes blindness. In addition to this condition, individuals with diabetes are also at an increased risk for glaucoma and cataracts.

People with diabetes who smoke, have poor nutrition, and do not control their condition have an even greater risk of developing eye complications.

Because many people with diabetes have slower healing time, eye injuries—even minor corneal scratches—should not be taken lightly.

People with diabetes can maintain optimal vision and healthy eyes by having an annual comprehensive vision exam and living a healthy, active lifestyle.

For more information on diabetes and your eyes, contact your local diabetes educator by calling TIPDON, Northern Michigan's Diabetes Outreach Network, at (800) 847-3665 or visit www.diabetesinmichigan.org.

Earl Young DVD available

The Charlevoix Historical Society proudly presents its newest production, a DVD of "The Life and Works of Earl Young, Charlevoix's Master Builder in Stone."

This 1 hour, 45 minute fully narrated disc traces Earl Young's life from his arrival in Charlevoix as an 11-year-old in 1900 to his passing in 1975. It documents the development of his artistic vision, beginning in 1918, that created just over thirty unique stone structures now known around the world. Over 400 images, including vintage photos taken by Earl himself early in the 20th century, plus video shot exclusively for this DVD tell the story of how this determined, highly imaginative man transformed the landscape of Charlevoix. Particular emphasis is given to the near loss of the Weathervane Inn restaurant building, his masterpiece, due to channel erosion in the early 1970s and how it was saved.

The DVD is available from the Harsha House Museum store.

• Man sentanced in cyclist's death

Russell Steven Mitchell of Bellaire was sentenced to as many as 15 years in prison for his role in killing Eric Perrine.

Mitchell had been drinking when he pulled his truck out in front of Perrine, then traveling on a motorcycle at the corner of Eddy School and Derenzy Roads causing Perrine to crash his motorcycle and die at the scene in August 2007.

The family of the deceased was ordered to receive restitution in the following designations and amounts:

Father Bryan Perrine — $11,300 for funeral costs, $39,389.98 for loss of society and companionship

Mother Joan Perrine $30,079.62 for loss of society and companionship

Sister Eva Perrine Ferris — $2,148.56 for loss of society and companionship

• Building department goes into county's told

The economic downturn affected governmental entities as well as private business this year as the Charlevoix County Building Department was moved from its own budget to the county's general budget due to a shortfall in its fund balance.

This move was made for the first time since laws on how such departments were to be run back in the late 1990s.

Building department head Ken Doty has said that, until construction picks back up and his permit fees are raised to levels comparable with state and national levels, his department will need a helping hand from the county coffers.

• County road millage

The measure, which failed to pass by 158 votes in 2006, passed political muster earlier this November by a 96-vote margin. The 15-year, 1-mil levy is expected to raise nearly $2 million in its first year and will be used to repair or replace more than 61 miles of county roads including: Camp Ten - 6.39; Springvale - 5.45; Six Mile Lake - 3.38; Kings Highway (Beaver Island) - 4.04; Deer Lake - 3.47; Korthase - 2.65; River - 2.2; Marion Center - 7.12; Norwood - 1.76; Peninsula - 1.5; Ferry - 1.97; Slashing - 2.59; Chandler Hill - 1.3,

Ellsworth Road - 3.79; Boyne City-Charlevoix from Nelson to Pincherry - 5.59; Boyne City-Charlevoix from Pincherry to Western Ave. - 8.14 miles of road to be repaired or reconstructed are approximate.

• Major drug bust

Two Pontiac men were caught with cocaine and heroin on Bridge Street in July.

Thousands of dollars in cash, cocaine and heroin were discovered during a traffic stop near the corner of U.S. 31 and Carpenter Street in Charlevoix. The bust was a culmination of investigations by Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, Charlevoix Police and Cheboygan County Sheriff's Department.

The drugs' street value was estimated at $2,000 to $3,000.

• No ship for Charlevoix

Despite earlier assertions by Congressman Bart Stupak (D-Menominee) that the U.S. Coast Guard must allocate an ice-breaking asset to the northern Great Lakes, preferably Charlevoix, there has been no movement on finding a replacement cutter for the decommissioned Acacia.

Coast Guard spokesmen have previously said that the USCG feels it can maintain an adequate level of service with the assets it currently has on the Great Lakes.

• Economic woes for local business

In addition to numerous lay-offs by several Charlevoix manufacturers, long-time business Charlevoix Manufacturing closed its doors.

After nearly 30 years in business, the aluminum foundry and machine shop, which specialized in the automotive, robotics and decorative industries, closed due to severe decrease in business.

President Jim Hater said, despite trying hard to diversify his product line, as much as 70 percent of his business was sent overseas where labor is far cheaper.

Charlevoix Manufacturing once employed 85 people, but had only 17 workers when it closed.

• One special runner

While Logan Smith suffers from a severe cognitive impairing condition known as Klinefelter Syndrome, he dedicated himself to earning his varsity letter in cross country at Charlevoix High School.

The Rayder trained, watched his diet and focused to trim minutes off his times and even beat the times of several opposing team runners.

Smith's parents credit Logan's tenacity and the dedication of Rayder cross country coach Ken Plude for Logan's success.

• Submariners dedicated a new World War II memorial

Submariners from all decades from World War II to present gathered in East Park to dedicate the new World War II Submarine Veterans' memorial and celebrate and remember those who died while on duty.

Hundreds of lives were lost and 52 submarines were sunk during World War II alone, one of which carried the father of local woman Carrol Pines. Pines' father was captured and spent much of his stint in the war in a Japanese prisoner of war camp.

• St Marys' monument stolan

Desperate or just plain dumb, someone or several people absconded with a 170-pound Petoskey stone and 100-pound maple tree trunk base were stolen from the cement manufacturing plant in mid-August.

The monument, built by a former long-time employee, resided in the factory's main lobby until it was pilfered.

Officials say there is still no word on the monument's whereabouts, but that there is a $1,000 reward.

• No money for Meggison

A U.S. District Judge recently threw out the lawsuit brought by former Charlevoix County Jail administrator Babette Meggison against her former employer.

Judge Robert J. Jonker said Meggison was not privy to an undetermined amount of money, in excess of $25,000, despite her claim that her First Amendment rights were violated in her whistleblower case. (See related story, page 1)

• Charlevoix: Little Hollywood?

Possibly the most anticipated sequel you've never heard of hit the big screen in Charlevoix during Venetian week this summer when two local comedy troupes joined forces to make "Die Soft 2: The Rise of Team McClean."

This comedy/action movie a la "The Naked Gun" and "Police Academy" stars local actors and cameos by some familiar Charlevoix faces.

• Dairy Queen no more

Now operating as the Dairy Grille, Pat Hayden, owner of the formerly titled Dairy Queen can do as he pleases.

Hayden struggled through several years of strife with the Dairy Queen corporate offices over his desire to offer the menu he wished—a menu which included hamburgers made from fresh meat.

Hayden finally settled the matter late last year and opened earlier this spring as the Dairy Grille in the same location it has been for decades.

There's a new sheriff in town
W. Don Schneider completes new sheriff school

COURTESY PHOTO

Charlavoix Kiwanis Club members Vince Currier, Carolyn Navarre and Charlevoix County Sheriff-elect W. Don Schneider are seen presenting retiring sheriff George T. Lasater with a certificate of appreciation for his decades of service to the youth of Charlevoix on Dec. 23. Currier also presented a Boy Scout handbook and a wooden plaque from Boy Scout Troop 11. Tha local Kiwanis chapter holds Troop 11's charter and bestowed the handbook on Lasater to replace the worn copy he keeps in his office.

Charlevoix County Sheriff-elect W. Don Schneider recently completed a two-week program designed for newly elected Sheriffs sponsored by the Michigan Sheriffs' Association (MSA). Sheriff-elect Schneider, who will officially take office on Jan. 1, 2009, satisfied all course requirements and earned a certificate of completion.

"The New Sheriffs' School consists of two weeks of highly intensive training," said MSA Executive Director Terrence L. Jungel. "Graduation from the school proves Sheriff elect Schneider is dedicated to protecting the citizens of Charlevoix County and the Office of Sheriff."

The New Sheriffs' School, which was held in Lansing from Dec. 8 through 19, was co sponsored by the Michigan Commission on Law Enforcement Standards (MCOLES) and the Clinton County Sheriff's Office.

Twenty seven of the 30 county Sheriffs who were elected for the first time in November attended the school.

Those eligible to attend included four current Sheriffs who were appointed to finish out a partial term.

A few of the topics addressed were The Role of the Sheriff, Secondary Road Patrol, Corrections, Crime Victims' Rights, Mental Health, Community Relations, Preparing a Budget, Freedom of Information Act, The Role of the Undersheriff, Media Relations, Emergency Management, Internal Investigations and Line of Duty Death.

Training was provided by current and retired Sheriffs who are experts on the subject they presented. In addition, these Sheriffs served as mentors to the Sheriffs-elect, offering advice and sharing their experiences. "The most effective weapon we have in our arsenal is knowledge," said Executive Director Jungel. "Our goal was to prepare these elected Sheriffs for the issues they will face in their new position. Successful Sheriffs make our communities safer."

The Michigan Sheriffs' Association is the oldest law enforcement organization in Michigan.

Its mission is to ensure the safety and security of Michigan citizens by assisting the elected Sheriffs and their personnel in the development of resources and skills through education and training.

For more information on MSA, or to support its mission by becoming a citizen member, visit www.michigansheriff.com.

Snowmobile trail maintenance approved

A bipartisan plan that will help maintain and improve the grooming operations on the state's snowmobile trails was approved by the Senate last Thursday and sent to the governor, said Sen. Jason Allen, chair of the Senate Commerce and Tourism Committee, who sponsored a key bill in the package.

Allen said the Michigan Snowmobile Association believes its members will be unable to continue grooming operations unless there is an increase in the trail permit fee.

Effective July 1, 2009, the current snowmobile registration fee will go from $22 to $30 and the fine for operating a snowmobile without a registration will rise from $50 to $200.

Senate Bill 1489 specifies that $5 from each registration fee may be used to purchase lands, lease lands, and secure easements to expand trails. Under Senate Bill 1490, sponsored by Sen. James Barcia, D-Bay City, $8 from each registration shall be deposited in a new snowmobile trail easement account.

Snowmobiling is an integral part of tourism in northern Michigan and throughout the state, Allen said.

By protecting the trails we have, and expanding them for the future, we are making a wise investment.

Maintaining these trails properly will attract visitors and enhance the safety of everyone using them.

State seeks grant proposals to expand agricultural products

Submission deadline is Jan. 12, 2009

Michigan Department of Agriculture (MDA) Director Don Koivisto recently announced USDA's Federal-State Marketing Improvement Program (FSMIP) will distribute $1.3 million in federal matching funds nationwide to the food and agriculture industry. The program is administered by MDA and other state departments of agriculture.

"We encourage Michigan food and agriculture organizations to take advantage of this opportunity to expand their programs," said Koivisto. "The program leverages federal and private resources to develop and enhance Michigan's dynamic $63.7 billion agriculture industry."

FSMIP funds a wide-range of applied research projects that address barriers, challenges, and opportunities in marketing, transportation, and distribution of U.S. food and agricultural products domestically and internationally.

Eligible agricultural categories include livestock, livestock products, food and feed crops, fish, horticulture, viticulture, apiary, and forest products and processed or manufactured products derived from such commodities. Reflecting the growing diversity of U.S. agriculture in recent years, FSMIP has funded projects dealing with nutraceuticals, bioenergy, compost, and products made from agricultural residues.

Proposals may deal with barriers, challenges, or opportunities manifesting at any stage of the marketing chain including direct, wholesale, and retail. Proposals may involve small, medium, or large-scale agricultural entities but should potentially benefit multiple producers or agribusinesses. Proprietary proposals that benefit one business or individual will not be considered.

Proposals should include an additional five percent in the salary/fringe line for MDA FSMIP grant oversight. Proposals reflecting a collaborative approach between states, academia, and the farm sector are of particular interest

The application and guidelines are available at: www.ams.usda.gov/tmd/fsmip.htm Proposals must be received by 5 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 12, 2009. MDA will review and forward approved submissions to USDA.

Applications should be submitted electronically to Mike DiBernardo, MDA Agriculture Development Division, at dibernardom@michigan.gov or (517) 373-9144

Little Traverse Conservancy

COURTESY PHOTO

Local Nature Preserves Available for Skiing and Snowshoeing. Looking for some new places to venture with your cross country skis or snowshoes? The Little Traverse Conservancy is recommending several nature preserves throughout the organization's five-county service area for outdoor adventure this winter. Some nature preserves have plowed parking areas and some have trails that are groomed by volunteers. In Emmet County, trails will be groomed at the Goodhart Nature Preserve found north of Harbor Springs off of Robinson Road. Other nature preserves in Emmet County where parking is available include the Round Lake Nature Preserve, nestled between Petoskey and Harbor Springs as well as the McCune Nature Preserve, about 7 miles outside of Petoskey. In Charlevoix County, volunteers are grooming trails at the Driggers Preserve located about 5 miles west of Horton Bay on the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road. The Ransom Nature Preserve located between Petoskey and Charlevoix is also a good destination for the more adventurous skier or snowshoer, because of the hilly topography. For more information about these properties, please contact the Little Traverse Conservancy office at 231.347.0991 or visit www.landtrust.org where you will also find a list of upcoming winter events. There is no charge for the use of the trails, but caution is reminded when parking in the winter.

DHS there to help in hard times

Department of Human Services serves hundreds in area

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

You don't need a crystal ball to see how bad the local, state and national economies are, but there is help.

The local Department of Human Services offers help with everything from cash and food to day care and help for juveniles and older adults.

"As the economy worsens our service delivery increases," stated human services chief administrator Bill Denemy in an e-mailed response to questions. "As people are losing their jobs or having their hours of employment reduced there is a greater need for cash, food, medical, day care, and emergency programs."

People call the agency looking for help with food, medicine, rent, house payments, heat and other utilities, home and car repairs, transportation and more

"When families struggle to meet their basic needs we see more abuse, neglect, and substance occurring increasing the demand for our supportive and protective services," Denemy stated. "Currently we are averaging about 100 people a day coming into the office and receive on average over 500 phone calls a day to our main switchboard.

As the person in charge of implementing the operation of financial assistance and social service programs, Denemy is on the front lines of seeing need from locals.

"We are a Dual County Office of the Department of Human Services State of Michigan, delivering programs and services to the residents of Charlevoix and Emmet counties," he stated. "Clients can call or stop into the office, Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m."

In Charlevoix County alone there were 256 unduplicated recipients of cash assistance - $534,000; 2,152 unduplicated recipients of food assistance - $2,956,800; emergency relief - $63,124; 42 families for child day care - $386,510; 1,587 Medicaid recipients: Department of Human Services does not administer this program but does determine eligibility

"We provide such things cash assistance, food assistance, emergency relief, child day care and determine eligibility for medical assistance," Denemy stated. "We help feed children and adults keep homes warm and provide access to quality medical care."

He added, "In the services area we provide such things as Adult and Children's Protective Services, Juvenile Justice (Delinquency) Services, Foster Care Services, and Adult Independent Living Services."

While fighting poverty and abuse is an ever-lasting duty, one of Denemy's biggest hurdles is working to dispel stereotypes about the less fortunate.

"It is unsettling to me to think that there are still individuals who view us as the welfare agency serving uneducated, lazy, unclean individuals," he stated. "This is far from the truth. The vast majority of our clients are hard working, law abiding, tax paying citizens, who are temporarily down on their luck. We all have experienced this in some fashion this past year from someone in our families, to our neighbors, to our friends."

He added, "For example, individuals who have been employed for a long period of time all of a sudden are faced with the plant closing or losing their job with short notice and no immediate alternative. That is where we come in providing temporary assistance to needy families helping them to get through the difficult times of their lives. We also have a very positive impact upon the economy."

Denemy said northern Michigan's tourist industry is maintained by minimum wage jobs.

"Our department helps to maintain that work force by supplementing cash assistance, food assistance, medical assistance, and emergency relief. Without our support this workforce would be difficult if not impossible to maintain," he stated. "Additionally in Charlevoix county alone last year we were able to generate close to $3 million dollars in food assistance. This is 100 percent federal dollars that was brought into and helped stimulate the local economy."

The Department of Human Services employs more than 40 people, which generates additional community revenue.

"More importantly, we help to protect county residents from abuse and neglect, assist them in maintaining and residing in their residence regardless of advanced age, along with burial assistance when appropriate," he stated. "All in all we are far from a welfare agency. We proved a very valuable service in a multitude of ways to the county and its citizens."

Denemy said the root of what his agency does is fight poverty.

"There is nothing more saddening than a child that is hungry. Poverty has been prevalent for many years and will continue to be until all of us take active efforts," he stated. "What can you do? You can be a foster parent. Help a neighbor or friend in need Become a mentor. Provide transportation. Get involved with and praise your child for his school accomplishments. Just take a moment out of your busy day and make someone smile. Together we can make a difference."

The following illustrates the hundreds of thousands of people helped each year in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties by the department:

Food Assistance:

- In 2006, 515,030 households; 1,133,793 recipients
- In 2007, 555,744 households; 1,204,409 recipients
- In 2008, 589,668 households; 1,259,325 recipients

Supplemental Security Income:

- In 2006, 221,743 cases
- In 2007, 225,347 cases
- In 2008, 227,915 cases

Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program:

(Number of households that got crisis energy assistance)

- In 2006: 79,819
- In 2007: 104,449
- 2008's numbers were not available by press time

If you or someone you know needs help, call (800) 580-9844.

Children and adult protective services are provided round the clock, seven days a week. Call (231) 347-1700.

According to Denemy, his agency's top priority is to assist children, families and vulnerable adults and help keep them safe, and able to reduce poverty so they can sustain themselves.

More than 800 complaints combined were received and handled by the agency last year in the areas of child protection, juvenile justice, child abuse and neglect, adult protective services and adult independent living.

Department of Human Services FAST FACTS:

- A record 1.82 million Michigan residents receive some type of support from these programs—18 percent of the population.

- In Michigan, 1 out of every 5 people live in or near poverty—That includes 500,000 children.

- At the Michigan Department of Human Services, we help feed children and adults, keep homes warm and provide access to quality medical care.

- The Poverty Summit on Nov. 13 launched a statewide initiative to reduce poverty and maximize economic opportunities for all Michigan residents. The Summit embraced Gov. Jennifer Granholm's 2008 State of the State priorities of a job for every worker, education for every child, training for every citizen, health care for every family and safe places to live and work for everyone.

- There are a number of things the agency hopes to accomplish during our poverty reduction initiatives following the summit. They include: creating 400,000 new jobs, providing No Worker Left Behind training for 100,000 displaced workers, reducing the number of people who cycle between welfare and employment and ensuring access to health care for Michigan's 1.1 million uninsured residents.

- Michigan launched the No Worker Left Behind Initiative last year as an an ambitious plan to train 100,000 citizens in three years for jobs in high demand populations, emerging industries and entrepreneurial endeavors. This initiative is based on the premise that the best way to beat poverty is with a good job.

- In the first year, they outpaced that goal by enrolling 37,725 in training.

- The agency hopes to step up the pace in the second year and help grow Michigan businesses and help more workers get new jobs. In the first two months of the second year, August and September, they put 40 percent more people into training than in year one.

Jobs, Education and Training (JET) program launched in October, 2007, consists of activities and services intended to increase participants' self-sufficiency and thereby reduce or eliminate a family's need for public assistance.

- JET offers job search assistance, education and training activities, and employment-related supportive services such as transportation allowances, uniforms, tools, and automobile repairs.

During Fiscal Year 2007:

- More than 6,800 people participated in education and training activities through JET in 2007.

- Placed over 33,000 public assistance recipients into full-time employment.

- Over 19,000 public assistance cases were closed because of income gained from employment activities.

Under the Vibrant Cities Initiative, the Save the Dream program was designed to help reduce foreclosures through early intervention. While the agency cannot help all homeowners in jeopardy of foreclosure, the Home Ownership Counseling Network may increase helpful resources available to Michigan homeowners threatened by the future possibility of foreclosure.

cable access while down state, said he simply went to the station and took a few classes on how to use their equipment.

"We were down in Grand Rapids. My wife did a paneled show with two other members of the Friends of the Jordan on GRTV and I was talking with the receptionist on how things work and she said 'you should see if there's a station up near you," he said. "I found out about Up North Media, which is the station in Traverse City."

He added, "I'm really good at watching TV and so I know what TV looks like. Those are basically the only qualifications you have to have, though there are some things to learn about the process."

Scenes are shot with the camera before being uploaded to a computer where the audio and video can be edited.

Visit upnorthmedia.org for more information on how you can produce your own TV show.

"Video is a very important part of getting your news," Beemon said. "I'd like to see more links between newspaper and video, wherever it comes from."

He added, "I'm hoping that we (Charlevoix) can have public access at some time."

Beemon said his next project has yet to be determined, but that he will shoot "Whatever I think is important enough and looks good on video."

He added, "You could call it a hobby, but it kind of gets addictive. You begin thinking about how everything you look at would make a good story."

Beemon shoots his subjects on mini digital video tape, but would eventually like to go to all digital.

"Mini DV is at the pinnacle of this technology," he said. "You can get some pretty good video cameras out there that cost maybe $1,200 to $1,500."

However, Beemon said, the equipment at Up North Media is free to use other than a nominal yearly membership fee.

"I think this is something everybody should be a part of," he said.

Beemon said there are endless subjects from which to choose, and gave the following example as a reason why everyone should be out documenting stories important to them.

"We have a little piece of land on a lake down by Ellsworth that had freshwater clams in the shallows, and the zebra mussels have pretty much invaded every inland lake that there is," he said. "I have always felt fortunate and up until about four years ago we didn't see any indication of zebra mussels, but in two years those freshwater clams were gone and they're gone forever."

Beemon added, "Those clams have probably been there 10,000 years and in a few decades that invasive (species) wiped them out. I didn't see any story on it. I don't think anybody said "gee, we lost our freshwater clams."

ABUSE

Harvard, this book is a classic that calls on the churches to step forward in leadership on this issue. I recommend this to everyone."

Miller also recommends "A Door of Hope" by Jan Frank.

"Written by a Christian sexual abuse survivor, a resource for healing from a Christian perspective that I would recommend for any survivor and also for supporters who want to educate themselves," she said. "Facing The Brokeness, Meditations for Parents of Sexually abused Children, by KC Ridings: This book goes far beyond being helpful for parents, it has an excellent 'Letter to Pastors' by a Mennonite Pastor recommending they preach about abuse and support justice as well as healing and mercy. This is recommended reading for everyone,"

Also on the list at the newly formed library, open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Thursday at the Community Reformed Church located at 100 Oak St., are "Speaking Out, Fighting Back" by Dodd and Gallager, which was written by two Catholic nuns involved in ministry to abused women; "Broken By You, Men's Role in Stopping Woman Abuse" by Morton Paterson; "Keeping the Faith, Questions and Answers for the Abused Woman" by Marie Fortune, which was written by a United Church of Christ minister—recommended for domestic violence for Christian women: "We Weep for Ourselves and Our Children: A Christian Guide for Survivors of Childhood Sexual Abuse" by Feldmeth, Ross and Finley; and "Ending Violence in Teen Relationships: A Resource Guide for Parents and Pastors" by Reverend Al Miles.

"There will be books to read with children to help them recognize abuse and tell about it, and copies of my article on sanctuary trauma available," Miller said.

Miller has written various pieces on abuse, including some of her remembrances as a rape crisis counselor.

If you or someone you know needs help, call Childhelp USA at (800) 4-A-CHILD or (800) 422-4453.

"The national child abuse hotline is a resource important for everyone to know about," Miller said. "Manned by master's level counselors available around the clock, children that are abused or have friends that are abused can call."

Miller said the hotline is also a resource for stressed out parents, adult survivors of abuse, runaway youth and anyone with related issues.

"The agency has a computer data base with all the government abuse hotlines in the US, and also referral information on self help groups, domestic violence shelters, advocacy groups, abuse treatment programs and many other programs. All services are offered free of charge," she said. "My plans for the future include a Child Abuse Prevention Poster Contest, a Samaritan abuse and assault ministry. A Christian leadership conference on abuse and assault."

She added, "Anyone that is interested in participating should contact me. I have done presentations to adults and youth that are faith based on abuse prevention, response, advocacy and healing, using biblical stories and examples as well as examples of Christian children and their families. I am willing to do presentations based on a free will offering."

- Personal Action Toward Health: P.A.T.H.

This six-week course, designed by Stanford University to change the way people think about their health, will focus on those 50 and older.

Certified instructors Beth Egler and Nancy Bottomley will be teaching this course.

Subjects include: techniques to deal with problems such as frustration, fatigue, isolation, and poor sleep. Appropriate exercise for maintaining and improving strength, flexibility, and endurance. Proper use of medications, communicating effectively with family, friends, and health professionals. Healthy nutrition, pacing activity and rest, and, how to evaluate new treatments.

This course will be offered at 1:30 p.m. beginning Jan. 8 at the Pine River Apartment complex, 210 W. Garfield St., Charlevoix, and for 6 consecutive weeks.

The course is offered through Tipdon in partnership with the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging.

The Chronic Disease Self-Management Program is a workshop given two-and-a-half hours, once a week, for six weeks, in community settings such as senior centers, churches, libraries and hospitals.

People with different chronic health problems attend together.

Workshops are facilitated by two trained leaders, one or both of whom are non-health professionals with a chronic diseases themselves.

Each participant in the workshop receives a copy of the companion book, Living a Healthy Life With Chronic Conditions, 3rd Edition, and an audio relaxation tape, Time for Healing.*

It is the process in which the program is taught that makes it effective.

Classes are highly participative, where mutual support and success build the participants' confidence in their ability to manage their health and maintain active and fulfilling lives.

SEVERE WEATHER PREPAREDNESS POSTER CONTEST

Fourth-, fifth-graders could win cash bonds.

To draw attention to the need for being prepared in the event of severe weather, the Michigan Committee for Severe Weather Awareness is sponsoring a Severe Weather Awareness Poster Contest, open to all students currently enrolled in fourth or fifth grades.

The deadline to enter is Feb. 1, 2009.

Posters must illustrate what individuals and families should do to prepare for Michigan severe weather, such as tornadoes, floods, snow storms, severe cold, lightning and thunderstorms, according to contest sponsors.

The first place winner will receive a $200 U.S. Savings Bond; second place will be awarded a $100 U.S. Savings Bond; third place will receive a $75 U.S. Savings Bond; and honorable mention will be awarded a $50 U.S. Savings Bond.

Posters must be approximately 15 inches by 20 inches and submitted on quality poster or illustration board.

The work must be original and may be in any media with the exception of pencil, chalk, charcoal or glitter. All posters will become the property of the sponsoring organization.

The artist's name, grade and telephone number, along with the name, address and telephone number of the student's school, and art instructor (if any), must be on the back of the poster.

Entries must be postmarked no later than midnight on Feb. 1, 2009.

To enter, send posters wrapped flat to National Weather Service, 9200 White Lake Road, White Lake, MI 48386.

For further information, contact Lori Conarton at the Insurance Institute of Michigan (517) 371-2880 or Rich Pollman (248) 625-3309, ext. 726.

The Michigan Committee for Severe Weather Awareness was formed in 1991 to coordinate public information efforts regarding flood, tornado and winter safety.

The Committee includes representatives from the Insurance Institute of Michigan, National Weather Service, Emergency Management Division of the Michigan State Police, Michigan Emergency Management Association, Department of Environmental Quality, WDIV-TV in Detroit, State Farm Insurance, American Red Cross and Michigan Earth Science Teachers Association.

For more information, visit the Michigan Committee for Severe Weather Awareness Web site, www.mcswa.org.
